Labor Fight To Moderate Pay Control Molds Crisis

Hold-Line Order Break Predicted As Board Begins Living Cost Study

By the Associated Press

Mounting pressure from labor organizations for a loosening of wage controls lent new stringency to the Nation's increasing economic problems yesterday.

With President Roosevelt's labor-industry-public board ready to open an investigation today into the wartime cost of living, the economic picture presented these principal facets:

1. The United States Chamber of Commerce interpreted the pay raise just granted coal miners as the probable entering wedge of a break in the stabilization program.

2. With striking coal miners expected to return to work under a higher-pay agreement, steel workers were reported determined to seek a 15-cent an hour pay increase.

3. Chairman William H. Davis of the War Labor Board told Congress that present wage controls are forcing workers to pay more for the anti-inflation program than "other segments" of society.

4. Congressional foes and advocates of subsidies to keep down retail food prices—payments the Administration claims are necessary to stave off inflation—continued in indecisive battle.

5. While a strike vote was being conducted among more than 1,100,000 rail employes, a special presidential board prepared to submit by November 15 a report on its investigation of their higher wage demands.

The living-cost investigators, all drawn from the War Labor Board which has jurisdiction over wages, were instructed to report in 60 days. The inquiry followed complaints by union leaders that living costs have mounted faster than wage increases.

Mine Plan Under Study

Meantime, John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers chief, and Secretary of Interior Ickes as Federal boss of the mines, sought to meet the minor reservations which the WLB made in approving their agreement hiking the daily basic wage of the soft coal miner from $7 to $8.50 but requiring an hour longer work day.

UMW officials said these negotiations would not hinder virtually all miners from returning to the pits today. Reports from the fields, however, indicated that many are confused and uncertain about the new wage scale.

"From the single viewpoint of granting labor's demands—no matter what the method—the stage may now be set for a retreat from President Roosevelt's hold-the-line anti-inflation order." the United States Chamber of Commerce said in a statement on the coal dicision.

Steel Leaders to Meet

The chamber also renewed a protest that a rollback of prices through subsidies would not solve the food problem, and advocated coordination of Government food activities in a single agency, and simplification of price controls.

Naming of Plane Proves Dubious Honor to Fla. Girl

Sebring, Fla., Nov. 7 (AP).—Maj. Clarence L. Thacker of Kissimmee, Fla., told a Florida girl he would name a Flying Fortress for her, the Hendricks Field Public Relations office said.

Then, the story goes, she saw an Associated Press wirephoto from England showing the major standing by his plane.

The name on it: "Bat Out of Hell."

Simplification Of Taxes Proposed

Important proposals for the simplification of the existing cumbersome income tax laws are made in an article by Harley L. Lutz, former president of the National Tax Association, on page 11 of this issue. The article is one of a series.

Murray Asks Central Agency On Contracts

Sees Termination Clauses Inviting Postwar Confusion

A central agency "under a strong mandate from Congress" was called for by Senator Murray (Democrat) of Montana yesterday, to "take final responsibility for the speedy settlement of canceled war contracts."

Taking cognizance of the appointment Saturday of Bernard Baruch to head a new unit in the Office of War Mobilization with jurisdiction over contract termination problems, Muurray, who is chairman of the Senate Military Committee's subcommittee on contract terminations, declared in a statement that "certainly Congress would want to set forth fully the policies to be followed by anyone charged with handling this important problem."

Sees Postwar Confusion

He charged that the present termination clauses used by various procurement agencies are "conflicting and incomplete . . . an invitatio to postwar confusion."

The Senator said that the procurement agencies "have not exercised their full responsiblity to the thousands of American business concerns operating under subcontracts," adding that many subcontractors are operating under contract termination clauses that deprive them of any claim against their prime contractors."

He charged that the procurement agencies are doing nothing to correct the situation, adding:

"Furthermore, many subcontract termination clauses—and prime contract termination clauses as well—are masterpieces of confusion, in the good old Philadelphia lawyer tradition of unreadable fine print and unintelligible verbosity."

The agency he proposed would be given "full authority and power under basic policies set forth by Congress (1) to see that terminated contracts are settled quickly and equitably with due protection of the Government, and (2) to see that all companies with terminated contracts may obtain, within 30 days after application, a single Government loan or advance payment to cover a greater part of

Sen. Russell's Demand Stirs FSA Battle

Living Cost Probe Begins as Economic Factors Multiply

by the Associated Press

A demand by Senator Russell (Democrat) of Georgia that the Senate include funds for the Farm Security Administration in the $214,854,124 deficiency appropriations bill passed by the House Friday, raised prospects today of another spirited contest in Congress.

The House Appropriations Committee flatly rejected an FSA plea for $6,500,000 in administrative funds and $37,500,000 in borrowing authority, and the item never was submitted on the House floor.

"The continuation of the Farm Security Administration is vital to the war food program," Russell told reporters. "I hope the Senate Appropriations Committee and the Senate will see that adequate provision is made."

OWI Requests To Be Checked

Senator McKellar (Democrat) of Tennessee, chairman of the subcommittee which will consider the bill, disclosed that he had instructed the committee's enlarged staff of experts to "look very carefully" into the need for a five-million dollar appropriation the House voted for the Office of War Information.

The House rejected, 146 to 139, an amendment by Representative Taber (Republican) of New York, to cut the five million dollar allotment for the activities of the overseas branch to one million dollars.

Administration spokesmen argued the money was a military necessity to increase psychological warfare and propaganda.

Chavez Backs FSA

Senator Chavez (Democrat) of New Mexico, another member of the Appropriations Committee, announced his support of funds for the FSA, asserting:

"I think it's the only agency of the Federal Government that is helping the farmer who needs help."

Opponents, including the American Farm Bureau Federation, have accused the FSA of collectivist activities.

Government to Cancel Leaves Of Workers at Christmas-Time

By Jerry Kluttz

Annual leave of Federal employes will be cancelled during the Christmas season between the approximate dates of December 20 and January 10. The Office of Defense Transportation this week will ask that Federal workers be kept off trains, buses and planes during the holiday period in order to give more military people a chance to visit their homes. The ban, of course, isn't airtight and a few exceptions will be made for those who have a good excuse for using public transportation. However, no travel restrictions will be placed on the Thanksgiving period. Thanksgiving won't be a holiday for Government employes and ODT sees no need for cancelling leave for what few employes will get it.

State Undersecretary Edward Stettinius on a recent day was on a lounge car en route to New York. The passenger in the adjoining seat gave the handsome, platinum-haired official that don't-I-know-you? look. As the train approached New York, the passenger would glance at Stettinius with a studied scrutiny. The train was just about in New York when the passenger's face lit up. Stettinius graciously returned the man's smiles as he put out a hand and said:

"Why I know you! You're Paul McNutt!"

Reds Cut Foe's Main Rail Link; Yanks Flank Key Italian City; More Japanese Ships Blasted

Enemy Shipping Still Pouring In For Showdown Over Rabaul

Southwest Pacific Headquarters (Monday), Nov. 8 (AP).—A probable torpedo hit on a heavy Japanese cruiser at Rabaul and night bombing attacks on a light cruiser and destroyer tender in New Ireland waters with unknown result were announced today as Japanese shipping kept moving into this area for a showdown battle.

These actions followed by a day the initial heavy Allied aerial blows which sank a heavy and a light Japanese cruiser and damaged seven others, two destroyers and two large cargo ships in the Bismarck Sea-Rabaul area.

Australian-flown Beauforts scored the probable strike reported today and at the same time destroyed a cargo vessel in Friday evening operations against Simpson Harbor at Rabaul, the key New Britain base Japan is determined not to lose.

Ships Off Bougainville Bombed

Mitchell bombers from Admiral Halsey's Thirteenth Air Force swept the southern coast of Bougainville, sinking or damaging three small coastal vessels and numerous barges.

(The Tokyo radio declared that more than 56 Allied warships had been sunk and 78 damaged from October 31 to November 5 in the "battle of Bougainville Island." The station also repeated for the third straight night its assertion that two Allied aircraft carriers, two heavy cruisers and two destroyers were sunk in the engagement.)

Land, sea and air operations were the lightest since the spurred drive to take the Northern Solomons began on November 1.

Next Move Up to Japs

A spokesman said ground operations on Bougainsville and Choiseul Islands apparently were proceeding according to plan and "it's up to the Japanese to make the next move." Marines who landed on the west central coast of Bougainville on November 1 were reported three days ago to be consolidating their positions and mopping up enemy units on offshore islets after securing their beachhead.

Nothing official has been heard from American Army units on Choiseul since November 3, when they were reported driving the enemy from one position four miles from the original landing point.

There has been no indication that the Japanese have attempted to reinforce their comparatively weak force at Choiseul, and so far the much stronger garrison at Bougainville has made no serious effort to challenge the Marines' hold on the Empress Augusta Bay sector.

Four large enemy barges have been sunk in the Vitiaz Strait, above the Huon Peninsula on New Guinea.

Americans Grab Strategic Height With Brilliant Surprise Move

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Nov. 7 (AP).—American troops in brilliant mountain fighting which surprised the Germans have seized dominating heights outflanking strategic Mignano in Italy, headquarters announced today, winning positions for a plunge up a broad valley to by-pass the Nazis' powerful new Aurunci Mountain strongholds.

(Indicating a deep and rapid Allied penetration in the central part of the battlefront, Berlin said the Germans had abandoned Agnone, Caroville and Forli, all in a wedge-shaped territory 16 miles deep north and northeast of Isernia. The Germans appeared to be falling back rapidly all along the eastern end of the front.)

A British offensive to the east smashed forward as deep as 5 miles, reeling the Germans back from their Trigno line, as Allied warriors captured 52 towns and villages in a blazing climax to a year of war since the Allied landings in French North Africa.

Fighting desperately, the Germans threw still another division—the 94th infantry—against the Fifth Army. Nine Nazi divisions now are pitted against the Allies, six of them engaging the Fifth Army.

Galluccio, 3 miles southwest of Mignano, was captured as Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's soldiers surged forward to take heights rising to 3500 feet on both sides of Mignano.

These victories raised the possibility of by-passing Mignano completely for a sweep up the Via Casilina along the broad valley leading to Cassino and Rome, in a drive outflanking the Aurunci Mountain range on which the Nazis intended to establish the west coast anchor of a new defense line.

Nearer the west coast, British Fifth Army patrols crossed the Garigliano River at least at one point.

The Eighth Army, beating back a series of sharp, tank-spearheaded counterthrusts, hammered out gains near the Adriatic coast for a total advance of 10 miles in three days.

A general attack drove the Germans back from the Trigno River along a 19-mile front inland from the Adriatic, and the few remaining Nazi strongpoints near the Trigno's headwaters were left untenable.

Allied planes ranged wide. U. S. Warhawks pounced on 200 German war vehicles parked at Metkovic on the coast of Yugoslavia, destroying 40 and damaging 50 more, and other fleets ripped up enemy tanks, motor vehicles, and trains in Italy in an exceptionally successful series of operations.

The heaviest fighting aground was met by American doughboys driving north and west into the mountains from Venafro. There the Nazi command threw in reinforce-

Fortresses Blast Duren Again; Many Meet Death in London

Sixth Consecutive Onslaught Causes Havoc in Suburbs

London, Nov. 7 (AP).—German raiders, setting off London's sirens for the sixth successive night, bombed the crowded suburban areas tonight and apparently caused many casualties.

A packed dance hall, restaurant, two movie theaters, stores and a saloon were among the places badly damaged.

A witness said the main street of one suburb was "like a battlefield," with many dead and wounded lying amidst shattered glass, splintered wood and chunks of masonry.

The largest number of casualties was in a hall where many servicemen and women were dancing. Rescuers clambered over the debris and found bodies on the floor. An entire corner of the hall was a mass of rubble.

Two emergency mortuaries were set up.

Several persons, caught in the street, were killed or injured as were others who took shelter in or doorway and on the stairway to the dance hall.

The windows of a bus were blown in, injuring several passengers.

Fighters Protect Big Planes All Way To Target and Back

London, Nov. 7 (AP).—American Flying Fortresses today raided Germany for the third time in five days, bombing Duren, site of important airplane parts and light metals plants, and other targets, with practically no opposition, and without losing a single bomber.

It was the 'Americans' second blow in two weeks at Duren, 25 miles southwest of Cologne and 150 miles southwest of Muenster, where American heavies hit on Friday.

Powerful Thunderbolt fighters flew tight protection for the bombers all the way to the target and back, about 700 miles, and fliers who are veterans of 25 raids said they didn't see a single German plane and that antiaircraft fire was intermittent and light.

The Fortress operations over the continent were part of an exceptionally active day with formations of planes droning back and forth across the Channel intermittently from morning until late afternoon.

The only American casualty was a fighter lost on a supporting sweep

Allies Massing For Invasion, Devers Hints

Eisenhower Also Indicates New Front Is Near, in Broadcast

London, Nov. 7 (INS).—Lieut. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, commanding general of the European theater of operations, announced tonight American and British forces are now being amassed for "the main assault" against Germany.

In what was taken as a hint that the day is nearing when Anglo-American forces will storm Hitler's western European defenses, Devers declared in a broadcast to the United States:

"Before us now lies the main assault for which we are massing manpower and equipment in accordance with thoughtfully planned world strategy.

"This is a crucial moment in the history of the world. We cannot falter."

Devers spoke on the "Army Hour," as did U. S. Secretary of War Stimson, who spoke from Washington, and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who spoke from his North African headquarters.

Stimson and Eisenhower particularly praised the armies of Russia for the terrific blows they have inflicted on the Nazis.

Eisenhower also hinted at a coming new front in western Europe when he pledged to "the Russian forces and their great leader" that "every single thing we can do to advance the common cause will be done promptly, determinedly and to the utmost of our ability."

13 Troop-Laden Allied Ships Blasted—Berlin

Nazi Story of Air Blow In Mediterranean Unverified, However

London, Nov. 7 (AP).—German radio broadcasts declared today that Nazi airmen had sunk or damaged 13 fully loaded troop transports and two destroyers from an Allied convoy encountered in the western Mediterranean off the North African coast.

The claims were without confirmation in Allied quarters.

By the varying German accounts, the Allied force was made up of 22 transports and 8 destroyers, and only nine transports and six destroyers escaped damage.

The transport victims were said to total 140,000 tons.

A DNB dispatch quoted Hitler's headquarters as announcing that the 13 transports and two destroyers—encountered in waters in which they might have been proceeding to reinforce the Fifth and Eighth Armies in Italy—were hit "with destructive effect" and several of the troop carriers were seen burning or "in a sinking condition."

A subsequent broadcast of a German transocean dispatch declared the 13 transports and the two destroyers "were sunk."

DNB said the attack constituted "a new and heavy blow against enemy troop and supply transport in the western Mediterranean." Nazi bombers were said to have carried out the raid "in bold, low-flying assaults."

Returning fliers were quoted as saying that several transports were seen burning and in sinking condition and "many thousands of young American and British reserve troops went down with the ships."

Gary Cooper In Australia

Somewhere in Australia, Nov. 7 (AP).—A lanky six-footer emerged from a U. S. Army staff car and, unnoticed, entered the leading hotel of one of Australia's larger cities today. He was film actor Gary Cooper, en route to operational bases to the north.

Russians Take Fastov in Race To Close Mighty Traps on Nazis

London (Monday), Nov. 8 (AP).—Russian troops racing toward the Rumanian border in an effort to trap hundreds of thousands of battered Germans anchored between the Dnieper River and the Black Sea yesterday captured the key rail junction of Fastov, 35 miles southwest of fallen Kiev.

The capture cut the main rail link connecting the German forces in the northern Ukraine with those battling so desperately against developing disaster at Krivoi Rog, 210 miles to the southeast.

So swift was the Russian breakthrough, carried out on the twenty-sixth anniversary of the Soviet revolution, that German airmen were nabbed before they could get their planes off the ground, and whole trainloads of Nazi equipment were seized, Moscow said.

Germans Suffer Heavy Losses

Seventy towns and hamlets were reported swept up by Gen. Nikolai F. Vatutin's tanks and infantry, advancing at a mile-an-hour clip toward the Rumanian border, 150 miles to the southwest.

Eighteen miles northwest of the Ukraine capital the Russians plunged on through Nemyeshaeva, on the rail route to Korosten, hacking the Germans to pieces and steadily pressing them back toward the Pripet marshes.

Huge losses were inflicted on the Germans, said a midnight communique, and a large number of prisoners was taken. More than 120 guns and 400 trucks with supplies were declared captured in addition to the intact trainloads caught in the yards of Fastov.

German broadcasts admitted Nazi withdrawals under the impact of "superior forces."

The Soviet communique suggested a breakthrough as catastrophic for the Germans as the recent Red army plunge across the Nogaisk steppe from fallen Melitopol. One Soviet unit captured "all the equipment of the 175th German Artillery Regiment," the bulletin said.

Murderous Fire Rakes Foe

Soviet Stormovic fighters laid down a murderous fire on retreating Axis troops whose failure to make a successful stand imperiled huge German forces in the Krivoi Rog-Nikopol-Nikolaev triangle in the Dnieper bend.

Near one captured village the Russians destroyed ten German planes "which did not have time to take to the air."

In the Crimea, the Russians declared they beat down German counterattacks on their bridgeheads near Kerch at the eastern end of the peninsula, killing 1000 of the enemy northeast of Kerch.

Soviet amphibious forces invading the peninsula, which has already been sealed off by the Russians on the north, improved their positions and captured 16 guns, 3 ammunition dumps and other booty, Moscow said.

Harmon Lost Day Before His Promotion Came

Headquarters of the U. S. Fourteenth Air Force in China, Nov. 3 (Delayed) (AP).—Orders promoting Tommy Harmon, Michigan's famed all-American football player, to first lieutenaant came the day after he was lost i a dive-bombing attack on Kiukiang, Yangtze River fort, on October 30.

He was listed as missing in action today.

The flight of P-38 Lightnings in which Harmon was flying was jumped by some 10 to 15 Zeros as it tore into shipping and docks at Kiukiang, the report said, adding that four Lightnings failed to return and two Zeros were destroyed.

Two Lightnings were seen to crash in flames but it could not be seen what happened to the other two.

Guests Throng Soviet Embassy On Revolution Anniversary

By Hope Ridings Miller

Basking in the warmth generated by the recent Moscow Conference, Washington officialdom in droves called at the Soviet Embassy yesterday to celebrate the 26th birthday anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

From 5 to 7 o'clock, almost 1500 guests climbed the scarlet-carpeted stairway, smiled their way through one of the biggest reception crowds since Pearl Harbor, and tossed off countless glasses of vodka—all by way of proving that Washington is in the greatest "loving-Russia" mood in its history.

Traditionally a barometer of international developments and trends, the annual Soviet reception marking "The Great October Revolution"—celebrated in November because of the 13 days' difference in the old and new Russian calendars—never fails to write a colorful chapter into Washington history.

This year, at least, it launched the second social "front" of the season, the first having been opened only a few days ago when several hundred of the same guests attended the reception at the Turkish Embassy.

The type of party that rates a "wow" in Washington, yesterday's fete drew topnotch "names" by the carload—among them the Vice President and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, House Speaker Sam Rayburn, Mrs. Cordell Hull, Admiral William D. Leahy, a brace of Cabinet members and their wives, several Supreme Court justices, diplomats by the dozen, and enough celebrities from out of town to add a special note of interest in the crowd of familiar faces.

Down from New York especially for the party were Paul Robeson, whose dark face set off with his Othello beard towered above the throng, and Dr. Serge Voronoff, of ape gland and rejuvenation fame, who arrived with his dashing blonde wife (the former Gertrude Schwaets, cousin of Mme. Lupescu.)

The new Soviet Ambassador, Andrei Gromyko and Mme. Gromyko, standing in the spacious reception hall in full view of the heroic canvas that depicts the final battle of the October revolution, shook hands with Capital celebrities for almost two hours. Wearing a softly draped frock of black chiffon and crepe accented with touches of sequin, Mme. Gromyko was smiling as cheerfully and greeting as graciously toward the end of the party as at the beginning. The Ambassador, however, was beginning to show signs of strain as guests continued to arrive after 7 o'clock.

Motion picture and still cameras clicked on for half an hour after

Sabotage, Killings

Guerilla War on Nazis Flares In France, Holland, Denmark

London, Nov. 7 (AP).—Reports of sabotage, assassinations and increasingly daring guerilla operations came today from France, Holland and Denmark, and the war-battered Nazis, preparing for an uprising in Norway, were said to be erecting street barricades.

In France, guerillas attacked seven town halls, seizing ration cards and police records of suspected workers, while another band encircled a village near Valenciennes and wounded two gendarmes in a gun battle, according to reports from within Frange.

A paper factory was said to have been burned at Rouen, and several collaborationist policemen were killed. In Limousin, a guerilla force was reported to have driven back Vichy mobile reserve troops in a skirmish. From Limoges came a story of a regiment of mobile reserves returning to their base with 35 killed or missing after a clash with guerillas.

An Oslo dispatch said German police in the Norwegian capital were preparing entrenchments in the center of the city. A thick protective wall six and a half feet high was said to have been erected outside the main police station.

Assassination of still another Dutch Nazi was reported by Aneta, official Netherlands news agency, which also told of the freeing of several patriots from Nazi prisons and the burning of a town hall.

The news agency said a Dutch Nazi schoolteacher named Borger, who had aided in betraying Dutch patriots, had been shot dead.

War Sidelights

Anti-Fascist Action Stirs Reprisals

Bern, Switzerland, Nov. 7 (AP).—Assassinations of Italian Fascists and sabotage against German forces have increased to such an extent in northern Italy that the Fascists Party secretary, Alessandro Pavolini, has ordered summary trials and executions of the "moral instigators" as well as those directly responsible.

Special Fascist tribunals were ordered created on the spot within 24 hours after each case to try those responsible.

A Milan dispatch said Italian Partisan activities were so widespread they indicated a "well organized plan of civil war."

6000 Nazi Planes Lost

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Nov. 7 (AP).—A year of war against the North African Air Forces in this theater has cost the German air force nearly 6000 planes, Allied announcements said today.

These heavy losses have been "a major contribution to the decline of the Luftwaffe throughout Europe," headquarters said. Allied losses in the same year were about 1500.

Other achievements were the sinking of 185 enemy ships totaling 173,400 tons and damaging of 353 others of 460,800 tons.

Cretan Leader Quits

Cairo, Nov. 7 (AP).—Cretan Guerilla Leader Manoli Bandouvas has voluntarily quit his mountain stronghold to spare his countrymen from reprisals they have suffered at the hands of the Nazis.

Arriving here after a two-year campaign against the invaders of his island homeland, Bandouvas said more than 1000 Cretan men, women and children had been slaughtered, the Province of Vianno laid waste, and 10 villages burned by the Nazis.

One of the exploits of the band led by Bandouvas, he said, was the annihilation of an entire German company.

2000 Flee Nazi Prison

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Nov. 7 (AP).—Approximately 2000 British Empire troops escaped from a prison camp in one of the biggest mass breakouts in history, when German guards took over an Italian prison camp upon the capitulation of Italy, fugitives related today.

Eight hundred were recaptured, but hundreds of others already have filtered through to the American-British lines. Among them were four Canadian fliers, who told the story today.

All Latvians Mobilized

Stockholm, Nov. 7 (AP).—The newspaper Aftontidningen said today that every man in Latvia between 17 and 60 who could carry weapons had been ordered mobilized to help the Germans, now battling the Russians less than 55 miles from Latvia's eastern frontier.

Enemy Supply And Ammunition Depots Assaulted

New Delhi, Nov. 7 (AP).—Allied planes, giving tactical support to American and Chinese engineers carving a new Burma Road, struck at Japanese bases and communicatons in the Hukawng Valley and upper Chindwin area of Burma yesterday and last night.

American planes left supply dumps and buildings blazing from Shaduzup to Kamaing, and the supply base of Shaduzup itself was attacked. RAF divebombers bombed and strafed targets in the upper Chindwin area.

Akyab town and province, the Japanese supply base on Burma's west coast, one of the most bombed areas in this theater, was attacked yesterday and last night.

Hard Fighting Along Yangtze

Chungking, Nov. 7 (AP).—Bitter battles raged along the central Yangtze River front today where the Japanese have amassed an army estimated at 30,000 men to forestall any Allied offensive, the Chinese High Command announced.

The Chinese reported one victory, the recapture of Sintienpu, about 50 miles southeast of the Japanese base at Shasi, but acknowledged that Japanese columns driving on the Yangtze port of Sungtze were continuing their advance.

Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell announced American airmen had gone to the defense of the central Yangtze Chinese forces Tuesday, blasting at Japanese warehouses and supply dumps at Shasi and strafing enemy shipping on the Yangtze south of Shasi.

The RAF bombed three Nazi air bases in France. A contingent of Bostons hit Bernay, and Typhoons attacked Beaumont le Roger and Tricqueville—the latter struck by American marauders Wednesday.

Duren Is Rail Center

Duren, a rail center on the main-lines from the Ruhr and Cologne to industrial Aachen, is the site of the Durener Metallwerke turning out light metal and copper alloy castings, sheets and tubes for planes.

The United States heavy bombers seemed heading for a new record month's operations in view of the scale of their raids in the last week.

American fliers attributed the Luftwaffe's wariness and the absence of a heavy antiaircraft barrage to their strong escort and a protective overcast along the route, which was unfavorable to the enemy but which did not hamper bombing.

Cat Bites Youth; Two Children Bitten by Dogs

In view of the traditional rivalry between dogs and cats it's only fair to the dogs to tell you the Health Department records show that cats have been biting a few people too.

Yesterday's victim was Donald M. Crites, 16, of 1551 33rd st. nw., bitten on a finger of his right hand while trying to retrieve his pet from a tree in the front yard of the home. He was treated at Georgetown Hospital.

District Health authorities said yesterday that two and possibly three cats examined this year had been found rabid.

Two more victims of dog bites were reported yesterday. They were Melvin Yocum, 8, of 329 11th st. ne., treated at Casualty Hospital after being bitten on the right leg in he rear of 312 12h st. ne., and Carol A. Tucc, 4, of 400 Newcomb st. se., treated at Children's Hospital after being bitten on the left leg in a neighbor's back yard.

Yeggs Get $3000 Checks, $500 Cash From Food Store

In the fourth safe robbery here in the past week, yeggs took $500 in cash and $3000 worth of checks from the Giant Food Shopping Center, Inc., office at 945 Bladensburg rd. ne., early yesterday or late Saturday night, police reported last night.

The robbery was discovered about noon yesterday by David Levinson, a property checker for the store chain. Detectives said the yeggs had entered the safe by tearing loose the door hinges.

ments in a furious effort to retain the heights dominating the main inland highway to Rome—the Via Casilina—running through the narrow mountain gap at Mignano only 40 miles short of Cassino.

The enemy, who in recent weeks has seemed consistently to have underestimated the mountain fighting skill of U. S. troops, apparently fully realized his danger too late.

The Nazis had staked a considerable portion of their available armor in a fruitless struggle in the last three days to halt the tremendous drive that wiped out their Trigno River defenses and now has driven them back to within a mile of the little Sinella River. Their next major stand is likely to be attempted along the Sangro River, 14 miles above Vasto.

Thus the full year, ending today, since Allied troops landed in North Africa to rid one continent of the Nazis and take a springboard to invade another, found the Germans compelled to abandon plans for holding in southern Italy with a comparatively small army.

Reports Conflict On Cairo Activity Of Anthony Eden

New York, Nov. 7 (INS).—The British radio reported tonight that British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden saw three Kings in Cairo today—King Farouk of Egypt, King Peter of Yugoslavia and King George of Greece. The broadcast was heard by NBC.

An earlier British broadcast, also heard by NBC, said that Eden had returned to London from Cairo after concluding talks there with Turkish leaders.

Although the broadcasts apparently were in conflict, it was believed that Eden may have flown to London directly after his conferences with the three Kings, two of whom head governments-in-exile, those of Yugoslavia and Greece.

The broadcast gave no details concerning Eden's reported talks with the three Kings.

14 Convicts Raid Arsenal, Escape

Douglas, Ga., Nov. 7 (AP).—Fourteen convicts, most of them longtermers, raided the arsenal of the State prison camp near here this afternoon and escaped, after wounding two guards who sought to stop them.

Warden C. H. Shaw identified the ringleader of the convicts as "Wild Bill" Byrd, long-termer from Atlanta, who was serving as a trusty.

The warden said the break apparently was well planned.

As the convicts started out, one of them covered a guard and ordered him to drop his gun. Instead, the guard fired and the convict returned the shot, striking the guard in the face, wounding him seriously.

A second guard rushing to his assistance was wounded by the convicts, who commandeered a State truck and fled.

Mann Predicts Slaying of Hitler, Revolution in Year

Chicago, Nov. 7 (AP).—Thomas Mann, author and German exile, predicted tonight Hitler would be slain and Germany would be swept by revolution within a year.

Addressing the 17th triennial convention of the National Council of Jewish Women, he said Germany had the economic strength to fight for another year but added the great majority of the German people "realize the war is lost to them" and prefer to surrender to the Western Powers.

He said the Moscow pact had shattered the hope of the German people for a split in the Allied camp.

of the Latvian and old Polish borders, the communique said the Germans were "losing one position after another" west and southwest of Nevel.

Nazis Admit Taking Up 'New Lines'

Four hundred Germans were killed in that theater during the day and six localities seized.

The Russian smash southwest of Kiev forced the Germans "to take up new lines," one Berlin broadcast said. It added that the Russians were using more than 250,000 troops in that single area.

The bulletin said 219 German tanks and 74 planes were knocked out and shot down on all fronts on Saturday.

"Pursue the enemy day and night . . . annihilate or capture his men and material," Marshal Premier Josef Stalin ordered.

Stirring victory scenes were enacted in Moscow when Stalin announced the fall of Fastov.

Twelve artillery salvos from 124 guns boomed a night salute to the units taking Fastov. Their formations henceforth will bear the name of that vital junction.

Berlin said German blood was flowing as never before, and that new Russian attacks beyond Kiev "have made the Germans' positions even more dangerous than before."

German broadcasts said the Russians were bringing up infantry and tank reinforcements on the Perekop Isthmus at the northwestern gateway into the Caucasus. Red army units also were reported trying to force an entry into the northeastern corner of the surrounded peninsula.

On Other Fronts

The Stalingrad hero, General Vatutin, was using perhaps 500,000 men to exploit the Kiev breakthrough, dispatching them in three directions.

North of the Ukraine capital, taken by storm Saturday, the Russians were pressing Field Marshal Gen. Fritz Erich von Mannstein's forces back against the Pripet Marshes. To the west, the Russians were driving toward Zhitomir, another rail junction 55 miles beyond Fastov. To the southwest, they were plunging toward Zhmerinka, on the Lwow-Odessa trunk line, the last big artery available to the Germans in southwestern Russia.

A communique supplement said bitter all-night street battles preceded the dawn capture Saturday of Kiev. During the conflict 100 German tanks were disabled or burned, many prisoners taken, and considerable war material captured by the Russians, who broke into the city on the north and the west.

375 Buffalo Mill Strikers Again Refuse to Return

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 7 (AP).—Three hundred seventy-five blooming mill employes refused today for the third time to end a walkout at the Republic Steel Corporation's Buffalo plant which has resulted in a tie-up of war steel production and idleness for at least 1800 workers.

David R. Sneddon, president of Republic Local 1743, United Steelworkers of America (CIO) said the men insisted that what they termed "unsafe working conditions" be corrected before resuming operations.

A company official, emphasizing the concern knew of "no 'unsafe working conditions'," said "we're willing to discuss any problem with them at any time."

Canadian Ace Is Grounded For Low Flying

London, Nov. (AP).—The Sunday Chronicle said today that Flight Lieut. George Beurling, ace of Canadian fighter pilots, had been grounded on a charge of low flying while piloting a training plane over an English air field.

The newspaper quoted Beurling as saying: "I don't know how long I am likely to be grounded. All I am keen about is to get back up there and get some Huns."

Beurling shot down his thirtieth enemy plane recently.

Wary Troops Keep Watch At Jap Camp

Tule Lake, Calif., Nov. 7 (AP).—Heavily armed troops kept watchful eyes on 16,000 Japanese interees at the Tule Lake segregation center today, while the first of several investigations got under way to determine the cause and possible cure of repeated uprisings there.

The Army retained full control, but administrative work at the center still was carried on by the War Relocation authority, which Thursday night called in the troops when a Caucasian guard was beaten and around 500 Japanese invaded the administration area. Twenty Japanese armed with clubs and knives were taken into custody and some of them were injured.

An investigator for the congressional Dies Committee met today at the center with Lieut. Col. Verne Austin, commander of the troops, and representatives of the WRA.

In the meantime, members of the State Senate committee on Japanese resettlement arrived for hearings to start tomorrow, and Representative Claire Engle, Democratic Congressman representing this district was en route by plane from Washington.

As the investigations began, there was increasing evidence they would center to some extent around activities of the Buoku-Kai, the so-called Japanese military society described in official records as an arm of the Japanese military intelligence.

(A report of the Dies Committee has said that the Buoku-Kai once had branches in about 50 West Coast cities and had headquarters in Los Angeles.)

2 Billion Measure Falls 8½ Billions Short of Requests

Unless unforeseen issues arise, the House Ways and Means Committee will report this week a two billion dollars tax bill—$8,500,000,000 short of the Administration's request for new revenue.

The House probably will open debate on the measure a week from today, and tax leaders expect it to be on the President's desk by December 15.

Representative Knutson (Republican) of Minnesota, Ways and Means minority leader, plans to offer a motion today to refer to the House Postoffice Committee present provisions in the new tax bill for upward adjustments of second, third and fourth class postal rates.

However, this would not disturb the Ways and Means decision to recommend a boost in the local first class letter rate from 2 to 3 cents and an increase in air mail charges from 6 cents to 8.

Knutson said he felt the committee should not alter the second, third and fourth class rates pending a report by a special committee in the Postoffice Department now studying possible adjustments of these rates.

Final committee action on the tax bill awaits a report by a subcommittee, headed by Representative Disney (Democrat) of Oklahoma, studying possible modifications of the law regulating the renegotiation of war contracts for recovery of excess profits. This subcommittee probably will report tomorrow.

Meanwhile, it was announced yesterday that postal revenues have passed that one billion dollar mark for a 12-month period for the first time.

Revenues for the 12 months ended September 30 totaled $1,006,000,000, Postmaster General Walker said. Expenditures totaled $994,000,000, resulting in a surplus of 12 million dollars. Walker called attention to the fact that the period is neither a fiscal nor a calendar year.

Revenues in September totaled $81,767,178, an increase of 15 per cent over September, 1942, and expenditures $86,897,395, an increase of 19.4 per cent.

For the first quarter of the current fiscal year (July-September) revenues were $241,502,483 and expenditures $261,080,853, leaving a deficit of $19,578,370. Revenues were up 17.1 per cent over the corresponding 1942 quarter and expenditures rose 1.8 per cent.

Gallipoli Ceded To Allies by Turks, Berlin Story Says

Madrid, Nov. 6 (Delayed) (AP).—A dispatch from the Berlin correspondent of the evening newspaper Madrid indicated today that a story was current in Berlin to the effect that Turkey had "ceded the Gallipoli Peninsula to the Allies" as a possible Balkan invasion route.

The correspondent said none of the German military critics discussing a possible Balkan invasion route "made the slightest allusion to the report that the Turks had ceded the Gallipoli Peninsula to the Allies."

British Captain Gets Seven Years

London, Nov. 7 (AP).—A British army captain, who admitted at a court-martial that he gave highly-secret information to a former leader of the Communist Party of Great Britain, has been sentenced to seven years imprisonment.

The war office said today that Acting Capt. Ormond Leyton Uren had communicated to Douglas F. Springhall, former national organizer of the Communist Party, "information of a highly secret character which he had acquired in the course of his official duties and which was calculated to be or might be directly or indirectly useful to an enemy."

Kaiser Exults in Song Over Cleared-Up Plans for Brewster

Copyright 1943, New York Tribune, Inc.

New York, Nov. 7.—Henry J. Kaiser, ship and airplane builder, speaking today to 7500 men and women at LaGuardia Field, found prose too pedestrian to express his exultation over the progress of his war production enterprises and lifted his voice in a jubilant chant of a popular song.

Kaiser was rejoicing because the tangled affairs of the Brewster Aeronautical Corporation, of which he became president October 7, were leveling out for stepped-up production, and because, as he disclosed later to reporters, two of his West Coast shipyards established the astonishing record last month of delivering 32 Liberty ships and four aircraft carriers.

"I feel so cheerful I could sing for you," Kaiser told his audience of Brewster employes and their families, and the microphones carried his throaty chant across the field splashed with the sunlight of a beautiful November day:

"Oh, what a beautiful morning,
"Oh, what a beautiful day,
"Oh, what a beautiful feeling
"Everything's going our way.'

Congress Indications Point To Truce in Subsidies Battle

By Alex H. Singleton
Associated Press Staff Writer

A war-of-nerves battle over the Administration's subsidy program to hold down food prices gripped Congress yesterday with the signs pointing to a truce.

Two weeks after a measure to outlaw all subsidies following the first of next year emerged from the House Banking Committee, neither side appears ready for an immediate test of strength.

The situation closely parallels that of five months ago, when the Administration won the first round by vetoing a similar restriction and gaining an extension of the subsidy program until the end of this year.

Representative Crawford (Republican) of Michigan, outspoken foe of subsidies, conceded that the current battle probably would result in a similar outcome—a temporary extension of the subsidy program until one side or the other can count noses and be assured of a clear-cut determination of the issue.

Just as it was earlier in the year, the subsidy issue was tacked onto a measure to extend the life of the Commodity Credit Corporation which finances some of the Administration's programs to assure farmers a price for their products above the ceiling erected by the Office of Price Administration.

Crawford contended that the delay in bringing the bill to the House floor for action developed because both sides were "strategizing."

Cites Kentucky Election

He interpreted the Republican election victory in Kentucky as proof that "the people in the country districts don't want subsidies and showed it—the election Tuesday was a terrific wallop for the Administration."

Simultaneously, he said that the Administration is waging a vigorous war to maintain the subsidy program nd deaclared that its strategy would center around placing the blame on Congress if prices rose.

"As a result," he said, "both sides, the Administration and Congress, are over the barrel."

Ky. Police Chief Is Hidden From Mob After Killing Youth

Carrollton, Ky., Nov. 7 (AP).—Normal conditions prevailed here today following a night in which a 17-year-old youth was killed and the chief of police was taken to Frankfort, Ky., to protect him from a crowd, Sheriff Paul Sercy reported.

The sheriff said James Wiley was shot last night when he attempted to interfere with the jailing of his brother, Pvt. Henry Wiley, on furlough from Fort Knox, Ky., after his arrest by Police Chief Charles Dolby, 63, on charges of disorderly conduct. Wiley died early today.

The slain youth pressed through a crowd which pursued Chief Dolby, who had arrested the soldier following a free-for-all fight in a poolroom, and demanded that his brother be freed, the sheriff said. It was reported Dolby fired his pistol as the milling throng advanced.

Dolby fled to the city hall and barricaded himself in an upstairs room after the crowd started closing in and threatened to lynch him, officers said. The crowd, which by this time had grown until it filled the square fronting the jail and city hall, pressed about the municipal building and demanded that the chief emerge and give himself up.

A riot call was sent to Kentucky highway patrolmen, who arrived as the city hall was about to be invaded. Dolby surrendered to them and they spirited him through a rear door and alley to Frankfort.

Officers said the crowd stormed the city jail, where Private Wiley had been lodged, until authorities decided to release him.

Shipyard Workers' Feeding Studied

The Maritime Commission last night announced plans to provide better food and feeding facilities for shipyard workers on their jobs, with Federal financial aid.

Lack of such facilities was reported, after a Commission investigation, to be "a direct and immediate cause of absenteeism" as well as a cause of labor turnover. Because of "particularly pressing need" in the San Francisco Bay area, the Commission said the program would be started in shipyards there first.

A workers' feeding committee in each yard will have "as great authority and responsibility as is feasible" over operations of the new facilities, but the Commission said this by no means ruled out the use of contract caterers.

"Purely cooperative ventures have been found unsuccessful, through lack of experience or failure to employ experienced management in such venture," the Commission said.

Sailor Detained In Moore Girl Case

New York, Nov. 7 (AP).—New York police said today that Edward J. Moore, fireman first class, United States Navy, was detained at St. Louis, Mo., for questioning in the disappearance last Sunday of Margaret Leighton Moore, 14-year-old Park ave. girl.

Miss Moore, daughter of Maj. David Dodge Moore, Army Medical Corps, returned Thursday. She told police she had met the sailor in Central Park and had gone to Columbus, Ohio, with him on a bus. Lambert Field officials at St. Louis said Moore reported there four and a half days late from his leave.

their money tied up in terminated contracts and subcontracts."

He said the agency would have t use the procurement agencies and their personnel but would have to establish policies under the legislation called for in his statement.

The Montanan did not indicate whether its author thought the proposed central agency should be under the direction of the General Accounting Office, the War Production Board or the Office of War Mobilization, indicating that his view would be given when he and other members of the subcommittee, including Senators Truman (Democrat) of Missouri and Reversomb (Republican) of West Virginia, make their report to the full Military Affairs Committee.

Murray simultaneously made public a comparison between contract termination clauses used by the War Department, Navy Department and Maritime Commission, as well as the one proposed by the War Production Board. The comparison covered such topics as formulas used in settlements, approval of payments to subcontractors, standards followed in payments to subcontractors, certain controversial cost items, disposition of materials and date of stopping work.

Scheduled to Testify

Murray announced that the Small Business Committee, in its investigation of contract termination procedure, will hear testimony this week from A. M. Carter, acting chairman of the Smaller War Plants Corp.; Robert P. Patterson, Undersecretary of War; Francis Biddle, Attorney General, and Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board.

Baruch meanwhile will meet Tuesday with the heads of all Government procurement agencies to lay the groundwork for unified policy in the revision and termination of war contracts.

Loot Retaken Before Theft Is Recovered

A rookie District policeman yesterday recovered $3000 worth of stolen gold plate and silverware about 2½ hours before the theft was noticed.

In connection with the robbery, which was thwarted through the diligence of Policeman Karl H. Moscowitz of the Second Precinct, a 17-year-old Philadelphia Negro is being held at the District Receiving Home.

While Mrs. William Crozier, wife of the late general who was Chief of Ordnance during the last war, was in Philadelphia, the youth scaled her residence at 1735 Massachusetts ave. nw., and entered through a second-story window, police said.

Moscowitz noticed the youth carrying a bulky package at 14th and N sts. nw. about 6:30 a. m., and took him in custody when he was unable to state satisfactorily what the box contained. About 8 a. m., Thomas Hayes, butler at the Crozier home, notified police, who were able to report that all the missing items had been recovered.

meets at Philadelphia today, apparently determined to press for a wage increase above the "Little Steel" ceiling it helped establish in July, 1942.

Allan Haywood, the CIO's national organization director, said he believed "all unions of the CIO will be demanding lifting of the "Little Steel" formula and increased wages in the near future."

While Philip Murray, president of the CIO and the USW, continued to decline comment on the purpose of today's meeting, informed union sources who would not be quoted said a bid for a 15 cents an hour increase for the Nation's 900,000 steel workers is expected.

Such an increase would raise the basic rate for common labor in the industry from 78 to 93 cents an hour. The War Labor Board decision which established the "Little Steel" formula gave an increase of 44 cents a day above levels of January 1, 1941.

Fortresses Blast Duren Again, Without Loss of Single Bomber

Chicago, Nov. 7 (AP).—The Transportation Association of America, composed of shippers of all kinds, in a letter mailed to members of Congress, today said that Vice-President Henry Wallace "misrepresented" the organization's position in a speech at Dallas, Tex., on October 20.

The association said that, "in order to concoct the charge that we propose 'regional monopolies' for transportation Mr. Wallace left out the word 'competitive'" in his speech.

The association quoted Wallace as saying, "The 'plot' has been sugar-coated to deceive the people. In the name of efficiency, economy, and under the slogan 'preserving the enterprise system,' it is proposed that Congress permit the creation of 'integrated transportation systems.'"

"Whether or not he knew it,' the association said in its letter, "the 'plot' which Mr. Wallace discovered was this association's national transportation policy.

"We advocate competitive common-carrier transportation systems rather than hundreds of separate companies, each attempting to profitably perform its particular water, rail, highway or air services. We want competition—and plenty of it—between such systems."

The association said "We cannot believe that Mr. Wallace would deliberately lend himself to misstatement. As he is not a transportation 'expert,' we must conclude that his address was prepared by someone else. The diction is familiar; it sounds like a statement prepared by Thurman Arnold and filed by the anti-trust division of the Department of Justice with the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee last spring."

'De Marigny's Wife to Speak In His Behalf

Nassau, Bahamas, Nov. 7 (AP).—Red-haired Nancy Oakes de Marigny, who never has wavered in her loyalty to the husband accused of killing her father, will speak out publicly in his defense this week as one of the final witnesses at his trial for murder.

The 19-year-old girl was in the United States last July when Sir Harry Oakes was struck on the head and set afire in a bedroom of his estate, Westbourne, but Alfred de Marigny's attorneys nevertheless will call her to offset the testimony of her mother, Lady Eunice Oakes, who told of the troubles which beset one of the world's wealthiest families after Nancy was married to the dashing, twice-divorced defendant.

First witness tomorrow will be Maurice B. O'Neil, chief of the New Orleans bureau of identification.

It is to him that the defense is looking for testimony to combat fingerprint evidence offered that De Marigny was in Sir Harry's room at the time of the slaying. The defense has suggested the fingerprint on exhibit was faked and actually did not come from a bed screen in the death room, as Capt. James O. Barker of the Miami police has testified.

De Marigny was careful to say in his testimony that he was asked to pour a glass of water for Capt. E. W. Melchen of the Miami police while he was being questonied.

Barker later came to the room, De Margny said, and asked "is everything okay?"

Bored Oakes Jury Requests Six Blondes'

Nassau, Bahamas, Nov. 7 (AP). The shadow of rebellion at being locked up for three weeks appeared last night among the 12 jurors who will decide the guilt or innocence of Alfred de Marigny in the Oakes murder trial.

When they hanged the waiter at the Rozelda Hotel their usual written order for dinner, he read:

Six blonde hostesses."

The jury consists of 12 men.

Christmas Lives Forever

Wherever thoughtfulness of others shines like a star a-top a Christmas tree, the true spirit of Christmas is found — the Christmas Store is ready to do its share in keeping that spirit untarnished for you

Earlier than ever, during September and October, joyous planning for Christmas-for-others was in the air, as Washingtonians came to Woodward & Lothrop for gifts for those who so especially deserve a vast share of our thoughtfulness—our men and women in service overseas.

Now you are making lists again, but, this time, for those at home—for the children whose radiant eyes already are full of Christmas and also for those "back home" who so richly deserve tangible expression of your love—and, importantly, for men and women in the service here in America. Need we remind you, then, that an even finer thoughtfulness is expressed in your shopping early—early in the day, too, if you can. You know, as we do, that personnel shortages are severe, that many items are unobtainable and that transportation and delivery systems are overtaxed. The post office requests that you mail all your gifts in November, so early shopping helps you and others.

Christmas lives forever—war has never won a victory that dimmed its essential glory. So, this year, in the Christmas Store, let your choice of gifts show the special loving forethought that makes Christmas not just a day when presents are exchanged . . . but a day given over to making others deeply, memorably joyful.

To Patrons of The Waldorf-Astoria:

Because of current conditions of congested travel and crowded hotels, we feel it our duty to reach Waldorf patrons with this frank statement of what is required to meet the situation.

In the first place, please give us notice in advance of your anticipated arrival and departure. But remember that such notice alone does not constitute a reservation. It must first be confirmed by us. Then, it is equally important to realize that transportation out of New York is difficult to obtain on short notice, because of the unusually heavy demands for railroad accommodations. Therefore, those coming here will find it wise to obtain out-going travel accommodations at the same time they secure accommodations to New York. Otherwise, departure delays are likely.

This whole matter becomes one of planning and cooperation. We are not asking you not to come to New York. We are simply suggesting, in your interest and ours, how to come.

THE MANAGEMENT

Doughton, 80, Is Felicitated On Birthday

President Roosevelt took the lead yesterday in honoring Robert Lee Doughton on his eightieth birthday.

Party lines vanished as praise was heaped on the North Carolina Democrat who heads the House Ways and Means Committee, which originates all tax legislation.

In a letter to Doughton, the President said:

"Dear Bob:

"Hearty congratulations on your reaching the four-score mark.

"The best thing about being 80 in your case is that you are too busy with the present and future to spend much time dwelling on the past.

"With every good wish for your continued health and happiness,

"Very sincerely your friend,

"Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Representative Knutson of Minnesota, Ways and Means Republican leader, called personally to congratulate Doughton, and later told newspapermen:

"Doughton is one of the grand men of this era. With his sound judgment and discernment, he is the ideal man to head the important Ways and Means Committee in these critical times. Doughton stands for national solvency, economy in Government and individual initiative. He is as highly regarded by the Republicans on the Ways and Means Committee as he is by the Democratic members."

Speaker Rayburn (Democrat) of Texas and House Democratic Leader McCormaick of Massachusetts were among those sending birthday messages.

Doughton visited his office after attending church yesterday to open birthday messages. His desk was banked with flowers and presents.

He was given a dinner Saturday night by the North Carolina congressional delegation, and the 25 Ways and Means members plan to fete him at another dinner tonight.

SUNOCO

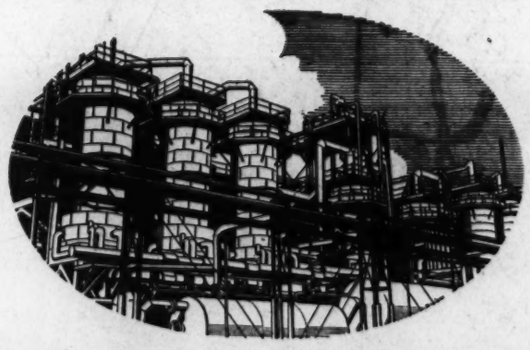
A SUPER AVIATION FUEL CONCENTRATE

50% more powerful than U. S. standard 100-octane test fuel



One reason for Allied mastery of the skies is the superiority of the fighting fuel that powers our planes.

Millions of gallons are being made every week by Sunoco. This huge quantity and the high quality of our output are made possible largely by Dynafuel, an exclusive development of Sunoco engineers and chemists.

50% More Power than U. S. Standard 100-Octane Test Fuel

Sunoco Dynafuel is more than a gasoline; it's a super aviation fuel concentrate which tests 50% higher in power than U. S. standard 100-octane test fuel! That is because Dynafuel contains a larger percentage of certain ingredients which have extraordinary power-producing qualities.

Increases Quality and Quantity

Dynafuel is never used undiluted, but is blended with gasolines produced by other methods, in order to step up their quality. The Dynafuel Process also increases quantity—because it utilizes even those portions of the crude which formerly went only into low-grade fuels.

A Triumph of Private Initiative

Dynafuel was developed by Sunoco without government aid or subsidy. The company risked its own capital, its own credit, in order to pay the huge costs of building the plants for its production.

It is through such free play of private initiative that all American progress has been achieved.

Opens Up a New Future for Motorists

Dynafuel is not now available for civilians. Every drop is reserved for military needs. But just imagine what this super fuel will mean to future motor car development! The same processes and equipment which have contributed so importantly to the war may well revolutionize post-war travel, both on the highways and skyways of America.

8th Week Passes With No U-Boat Sinking in Atlantic

By the Associated Press

Navy Undersecretary James V. Forrestal's comment that the next Churchill-Roosevelt statement on the antisubmarine campaign "will show a most extraordinary record of success" pointed up an 11-week record of only three announced sinkings in the western Atlantic.

Last week was the eighth since August 21, in which no United Nations or neutral merchantmen were announced as U-boat victims in these waters.

Since Pearl Harbor 689 non-Axis cargo ships have been announced as sunk in the western Atlantic.

LOEW'S COLUMBIA

Pleasant Weather Provides Many Thrills for District

It was the kind of a day that made you think "what a nice day it was."

When you woke up yesterday, you kicked off the wool blankets and wondered if maybe you'd slept through the winter and the war. And you heard the church bells and a lot of things, like children playing football across the street and out-of-season hedge shearing, that you hadn't listened to for quite a while.

You shouted "Pistol Packin' Mama" into your shower and didn't mind getting up at all because it was such a nice kind of a day.

Chores Forgotten

And when you forgot about the furnace you'd intended to fix or the ironing you'd been putting off and just walked around and looked at the nice day.

The service boys on weekend leave forgot they'd been marching all during the past week and would be marching all this week, pinned a chrysanthemum on their best girls and trotted them through the city parks. They threw their coats back over the park benches and just sat and enjoyed the day.

A young couple wheeled their baby into Lafayette Park and spread a wool blanket over the fall leaves, where they could watch the couples go by, arm-in-arm. Under the nearby statue of Lafayette, two shoeshine boys matched pennies and didn't even ask the Sunday strollers if they wanted a shine.

Ways To Enjoy It

The street photographer wore a summer white sweater as he caught leisurely walkers. A sailor, who didn't seem to care what time of day it was, whistled "O, What a Beautiful Morning." A taxi driver suggested that his fare and he forget about their destination and cruise through Rock Creek Park for a while.

Everybody who could find a canoe paddled in the Potomac, and everybody who could find a bicycle pedaled along the Mall.

You wondered if a brisk wind would suddenly come up and turn it into the sort of day you'd expect November 7 to be. But it just kept on being a nice day.

THE FEEDING OF WORKERS IN INDUSTRIAL PLANTS

The problem of providing proper food, for men and women engaged in the production of vital war materials, is one which has a direct bearing on the total war effort. Good wholesome food, attractively served, increases efficiency, promotes good health, raises the morale and reduces absenteeism among these workers. Far-sighted employers have come to realize that this matter of providing nutritious food has become a responsibility of management because a well-fed worker is a more productive one.

To be of greatest value an industrial cafeteria should do more than merely provide food. The food served should be well-prepared, attractively served and should provide a stimulating variety from day to day. It is important that those in charge should have had experience in the production of good food on a quantity basis.

About a year ago the Howard D. Johnson Company entered the field of industrial feeding and today is serving a group of industrial concerns, colleges and Government installations throughout the East. To this field we have brought the same principles of quality, service and cleanliness which had proved so successful in our pre-war activities.

We are in a position to add a few more such operations to this group and have the necessary managerial and supervisory personnel to assure satisfaction. If you have a mass-feeding problem at your plant we would be glad to send a representative to call upon you and conduct a survey of your requirements, without obligation.

Randolph to Urge U. S. Autos Be Housed in Federal Buildings

By Linton Burkett

Utilization of already available garage space for Government-owned cars, underneath Federal buildings, will be urged by Representative Randolph (Democrat) of West Virginia, he announced last night following the receipt of a report on the uses of the Federal Works Administration's $180,000-a-year Capital garage at 1312 New York ave. nw.

Joining with the West Virginia solon was Representative Ramspeck (Democrat) of Georgia, who said he "advocated" a thorough inspection of the garaging of Federal cars.

In a statement given to The Post, Representative Randolph said:

"It is not my purpose to be a carping critic. I am, however, not fully satisfied with the reply received to my recent inquiry as to the facts on the uses to which the Capital Garage is being put.

Will Seek Information

"In an effort to delve more deeply into the subject, believing it to be of interest and concern to the taxpaying public, it would appear that information as to the full utilization of already available space in Federal Government buildings for garage purposes should be obtained.

"I, therefore, shall ask this information from the proper authorities.

Representative Randolph had reference to a report received by him from Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming on the Capital Garage project. General Fleming is head of the Federal Works Administration, which operates the garage.

General Fleming reported that the garage was costing taxpayers a total of $181,555 a year to rent and maintain. In it now are placed, nightly, 268 of the 1100 Government owned cars in the city. The garage was capable of housing more than 1300 cars when it was under private management.

Files Stored on Three Floors

However, three of the floors in the structure have been allocated to use as storage space for Government files. The FWA estimates that the rental of this filing storage should be $48,000 a year.

In this connection it was pointed out that the City Postoffice, with a building that is insignificant, in area, as compared with those occupied by other agencies, is able to house its 250 cars in its basement, nightly, without recourse to privately owned buildings.

Indicative of the unpopularity of the Capital Garage site was the instance of one agency in the city which has assigned to it 103 cars. Asked to make use of the facilities of the Capital Garage building, the agency conceded to it the storing of 35 cars, two of which were ready for the junk pile and awaiting Treasury Department condemnation; five were "inactive" and the remainder were trucks which, for the most part, had remained parked in the open, previously. The "loan" of the cars to storage was declared by the agency to be only temporary.

Unused Space Reported

It was reported to Representative Ramspeck that there existed considerable unused space beneath the Department of Commerce Building, the Department of the Interior, the new municipal center and other structures.

During the daytime, when Government cars are supposed to be in active service, the parking spaces under these vast structures are being used by employes to park their privately owned cars.

The Representative from Georgia indicated that a survey of storage facilities of these Federally-owned buildings by some agency, possibly the Bureau of the Budget, with a view to making the fullest use of the space, would be forthcoming in the interests of economy.

While it was not possible to ascertain accurately the parking space available in the buildings, unofficial estimates were to the effect that if fullest use were made of the storage space already available in Federal-owned buildings, there would be ample room for more than the number of cars now owned by the Government without recourse to renting a privately owned garage.

Committee to Hear Protests Against SEC Nominee

By International News Service

The Senate Banking Committee plans to conduct a hearing this week on protests against President Roosevelt's nomination of Robert K. McConnaughey to be a member of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

"This case seems to be that of the appointment of another man with no experience to the Securities and Exchange Commission," said Senator Robert A. Taft (Republican) of Ohio, who has received protests against the appointment.

"It is represented that Mr. McConnaughey has no experience whatever in securities or security registration, or in the active practice of the law. He has spent most of his time as a Government employe since leaving law school.

"There probably wouldn't be much question raised if it were not also charged that the SEC is being made up of young New Dealers, mostly lacking in any practical experience. The oldest man on the commission is Judge Healey, and it is reported he will quit."

Army Aids Bengal Food Deliveries

New Delhi, Nov. 7 (AP).—With Army assistance, food deliveries into outlying starvation districts of Bengal are being doubled, Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck, Indian army commander, said today.

Seventy to 90 persons still are dying daily in Calcutta hospitals. Thousands and perhaps hundreds of thousands are destined to die before relief efforts can take full effect. Chanting groups of beggars and destitute families still are bearing their own starved dead to places of cremation in Bengal.

Role of Church in Promoting World Peace Forms Topic of Many Sermons

The church's role in shaping world peace was stressed in many Protestant churches yesterday—as World Order Sunday heralded the coming here tomorrow of the Christian Mission on World Order.

The visit of a member of nationally prominent clergymen to local pulpits coincided with World Order Sunday, the observance of which was urged by the Federal Council of Churches, New York City.

Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin, moderator of the Presbyterian Church, USA, (Northern) and president of Union Theological Seminary, New York City, spoke at Covenant-First and New York Avenue Presbyterian Churches.

The moderator said that we must win at one and the same time the "outer and inner wars" if we are to have a just and durable peace. We "thank God," he said, that "there are heartening signs that the church is ready to stand by agreements for world organization." While he did not specifically mention the Christian Mission on World Order in his sermon, he highly praised the project in an interview later with Donald F. Bautz, Federation of Churches' Defense Commissioner.

Dr. Donald W. Richardson, Moderator of the Presbyterian Church, US (Southern), spoke at dedication exercises for the new edifice of the Bethesda (Md.) Presbyterian Church and also last night at Central Presbyterian Church here.

Dr. Russell J. Clinchy, pastor of the First Congregational Church of Hartford, Conn., told of his observations on a recent tour to England in speaking at Mount Pleasant Congregational and First Congregational Churches. He is former pastor of Mount Pleasant Church.

Local Observances

The Washington phase of the Christian Mission on World Order tomorrow will be observed at Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and H sts. nw.; First Congregational Church, 10th and G sts. nw.; Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 9th and Massachusetts ave. nw., and in 20 high schools and four colleges. Day sessions will be at Calvary Church, and night sessions in the other two churches.

The local mission, one of similar projects being held in 100 major cities this month to mold public opinion for a just and durable peace, is being sponsored by the Washington Federation of Churches and the Washington council of Church Women. The Federal Council of Churches, New York City, is sponsoring the national mission in cooperation with other religious bodies.

"Realism in religion will be demanded by the postwar world," the Rev. Dale Crowley, well-known radio evangelist, said yesterday, in urging support of the mission.

"Religious nationalism, or modernism, failed to deliver the world from the catastrophe of war," said Crowley in a broadcast over WRC. "As a fungus growth on the body of Christianity, it will be discarded as an empty counterfeit. A 'dead' orthodoxy will likewise be spurned by those who are measuring true values.

"Men will not be interested in mere credal statements which do not pulsate with life and power, based on supernatural revelation, but will look for a faith which is real not only in its doctrinal pronouncements but also in its practical, down-to-earth expression."

Read What the Spragues Are Doing Now to Build their Personal Post War World

You can do the same Practical Things they are doing

BERT SPRAGUE, a college man, is now a welder in a war plant. He feels that he is in the thick of the battle for Victory.

But he's also working and planning for personal benefits in the peace after Victory.

He's doing seven practical things that will help make his hopes for his Post War World come true . . . things which our Government suggests we all can do. Here they are:

1. Buy and hold war bonds—to lend our country the money it needs now to fight the war to Victory.
2. Pay willingly your share of taxes—including increased taxes—that our country needs.
3. Provide for your own and your family's future by adequate life insurance and savings.
4. Reduce your debts as much as possible and avoid making needless new ones.
5. Buy only what you need and make what you have last longer.
6. Live faithfully by the rationing rules to conserve goods of which there are shortages.
7. Cooperate with our Government's price and wage stabilization program.

That's a war program, true. But it's the way of life that Americans have always followed. Our fathers found in hard work and thrift the roads to freedom and personal security.

By following this wartime plan of action, we not only will help provide for the future we want, we'll deal a very practical and immediate blow at rising prices—help keep the cost of living within reasonable bounds.

Most of us are doing some of the seven practical things the program calls for. Let's all do all of them. You'll find the budget form here a big help in getting started. Why not begin today!

AMERICA'S LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES bring you this plan of action not only to help you to win the kind of future you want, but to urge you to join wholeheartedly with all loyal Americans to keep down living costs during these critical war days.

By acquiring life insurance, with the guidance of their life insurance agents, 67 million policyholders have already joined together in taking one of the effective steps our Government suggests.

Remember that the premiums you pay for your life insurance are also helping to pay for the war—for a large part of them are invested in Government bonds.

Besides doing war work, BERT SPRAGUE is an air-raid warden. His budget below shows how much of his current income he is putting into building the future he wants. Match your budget with his! Use the column at the right for your figures.

Envoys' Costs Called World Inflation Sign

By the Associated Press

Inflationary trends almost all over the world, mounting to enormous pressures in many areas, are reflected in diplomatic living cost figures reported by the State Department to the House Appropriations Committee.

Cost rises are so precipitate, particularly in rents, that one Congressman, Ludlow (Democrat) of Indiana, suggested "we're being socked everywhere in foreign countries." But the State Department, in the testimony made public, took the position that general economic trends are back of it.

"It's due to varying degrees of economic stress," said G. Howland Smith, Assistant Secretary of State, "and I do not think it is by design of any sort."

Committee Sympathetic

Even the economy-minded committee felt sympathetic, approving one million dollars added foreign service expense funds and hiking from $3000 to $4000 the maximum annual rent allowance. A $5000 maximum had been sought.

"The department is convinced," said Monnett B. Davis, chief of the foreign service administration division, "that it is no longer possible for chiefs of mission to obtain suitable quarters within the $3000 limit in many capitals, and we anticipate the situation will become worse before it gets better."

Worst fixed among the diplomats for rent, possibly, is Minister Alexander Kirk in Cairo, Davis told the committee, though others paying rentals in excess of their allowances include Ambassadors Winant and Biddle in London; Minister Lane in Bogota; Minister Wadsworth in Beirut; Ambassador Norweb in Lima; Minister Johnson in Stockholm and Minister Harrison in Berne.

Cairo Expenses High

"In Cairo it would be impossible to get quarters that a chief of mission should occupy within the $3000 limit or anything like it," said Davis. "Minister Kirk pays $12,588 in excess of the maximum allowance of $3000 and consequently our minister is well housed, but there are not many people in the service who could pay that price."

Some foreign capitals, Davis said, "have kept inflationary trends pretty well in check" but he reported cost increases of 50, 60 or 100 per cent in some parts of the Middle East, and several thousand per cent in China.

Living costs, other than rent, for foreign service abroad average about 25 per cent more than in Washington, it was developed, with the level in China, for instance, being regarded by the State Department as "astronomical."

There costs are about 7000 per cent over the prewar level, department spokesmen testified, "and about 250 to 300 per cent over Washington."

My Uncle Abraham Reports . . .

By Ben Hecht

I have an Uncle who is a Ghost.

But, he is no ordinary Ghost like so many dead uncles.

He was elected last April by the Two Million Jews who have been murdered by the Germans to be their World Delegate.

Wherever there are Conferences on how to make the World a Better Place, maybe, my Uncle Abraham appears and sits on the window sill and takes notes.

That's how he happened to be in Moscow a few weeks ago.

My Uncle Abraham sat on the window sill of the Kremlin and listened with great excitement, to one of the Finest Conferences he has ever attended since he has been a World Delegate.

He heard every word that Eden, Molotov and Hull spoke.

Last night my Uncle Abraham was back in a Certain Place where the Two Million murdered Jews meet. It is the Jewish Underground. Only Ghosts belong to it.

When the Two Million Souls had assembled, my Uncle Abraham arose and made his report to them as World Delegate.

"Dishonored dead," said my Uncle Abraham. "Fellow Corpses and Ghosts from All Over. Of the Moscow Conference I have this to report. The Conference made a promise that the world was going to punish the Germans for murdering all the different peoples of Europe—Czechs, Greeks, Serbs, Russians, French hostages, Polish officers, Cretan peasants. Only we were not mentioned. In this Conference, which named everyone, only the Jew had no name. He had no face. He was like a hole in Europe on which nobody looked."

A Ghost from the Lime Kilns of Warsaw spoke.

"Why is this?" asked this Ghost. "Why is it that we who are dead are without a Name in the Conferences of Fine People?"

"This I do not know," said my Uncle Abraham. "I can only report what exists. Jews do not exist, even when they are dead. In the Kremlin in Moscow, in the White House in Washington, in the Downing Street Building in London where I have sat on the window sills, I have never heard our name. The people who live in those buildings—Stalin, Roosevelt and Churchill—do not speak of us. Why, I don't know. We were not allowed by the Germans to stay alive. We are not allowed by the Four Freedoms to be dead."

A Woman Ghost from the Dynamite Dumps of Odessa spoke.

"If they didn't mention the Two Million murdered Jews in the Conference, isn't that bad for four million who are still alive? The Germans will think that when they kill Jews, Stalin, Roosevelt and Churchill pretend nothing is happening."

And from the Two Million Ghosts came a great cry.

"Why is this silence? Why don't they speak of Us?"

My Uncle Abraham raised his hand.

"Little Children," my Uncle Abraham spoke: "Be patient. We will be dead a long time. Yesterday when we were killed we were changed from Nobodies to Nobodies. Today, on our Jewish tomb, there is not the Star of David, but an Asterisk. But, who knows, maybe Tomorrow—!"

This ended the Meeting of the Jewish Underground.

My Uncle Abraham has gone to the White House in Washington. He is sitting on the window sill two feet away from Mr. Roosevelt. But he has left his notebook behind.

Statement On Atrocities

Signed by President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin.

The United Kingdom, the United States and the Soviet Union have received from many quarters evidence of atrocities, massacres and cold-blooded mass executions which are being perpetrated by Hitlerite forces in many of the countries they have overrun and from which they are now being steadily expelled. The brutalities of Nazi domination are no new thing, and all peoples or territories in their grip have suffered from the worst form of government by terror. What is new is that many of these territories are now being redeemed by the advancing armies of the liberating powers and that in their desperation the recoiling Hitlerites and Huns are redoubling their ruthless cruelties. This is now evidenced with particular clearness by monstrous crimes on the territory of the Soviet Union which is being liberated from Hitlerites and on French and Italian territory.

Accordingly, the aforesaid three Allied powers, speaking in the interests of the thirty-two United Nations, hereby solemnly declare and give full warning of their declaration as follows:

At the time of granting of any armistice to any government which may be set up in Germany, those German officers and men and members of the Nazi party who have been responsible for or have taken a consenting part in the above atrocities, massacres and executions will be sent back to the countries in which their abominable deeds were done in order that they may be judged and punished according to the laws of these liberated countries and of the free governments which will be erected therein. Lists will be compiled in all possible detail from all these countries, having regard especially to invaded parts of the Soviet Union, to Poland and Czechoslovakia, to Yugoslavia and Greece, including Crete and other islands; to Norway, Denmark, the Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg, France and Italy.

Thus, Germans who take part in wholesale shooting of Polish officers or in the execution of French, Dutch, Belgian or Norwegian hostages or of Cretan peasants, or who have shared in slaughters inflicted on the people of Poland or in territories of the Soviet Union which are now being swept clear of the enemy, will know they will be brought back to the scene of their crimes and judged on the spot by the peoples whom they have outraged. Let those who have hitherto not imbued their hands with innocent blood beware lest they join the ranks of the guilty, for most assuredly the three Allied powers will pursue them to the uttermost ends of the earth and will deliver them to their accusers in order that justice may be done.

The above declaration is without prejudice to the case of German criminals whose offenses have no particular geographical localization and who will be punished by joint decision of the governments of the Allies.

They Can Be Saved . . . Only The Will Is Needed!

Not because they were Poles or Dutchmen, not because they were peasants or officers—just because, and only because, they were Jews, more than two million men, women and children have been deliberately murdered by the Germans.

The Jews of Europe have suffered more fatalities from atrocities than all the United Nations combined. In the face of such a tragedy it is folly, indeed it is sinful, to debate whether Jews are a religion, a nation or a race—to insist on calling them "refugees." Thus remain passive to their disastrous plight—ignoring it and surrounding it with silence.

They are a specific group of human beings whom our common enemy has publicly threatened to exterminate entirely. This Committee believes it is an inescapable duty of all Americans to actively oppose Hitler in this respect also, and to do all that is humanly possible to save the 4 million Jews who are still alive in Europe.

They can be saved. Experts agree on that. Only the will is needed.

Sweden and Denmark have just proved it by saving 6000 Jews in a few days.

Our offices and representatives in Washington and in London, in Palestine and in Turkey, are steadily working in this direction, trying to get large-scale government action.

It is now strictly a race for time against death.

Every day that passes dooms thousands who can be saved.

We appeal for your help. Particularly if you are a Senator, a Congressman or a Government official, for you represent the will and the conscience of the American people. This conscience has never before been found wanting.

From those of you who can afford it, we also ask for financial help. By your support, by your action, the speed, scope and effectiveness of the campaign to save the Jewish people of Europe will be determined.

Over They Go

On the heels of the raid on Schweinfurt, seat of Germany's ball-bearing industry, Dr. Goebbels and his henchmen made the welkin ring with loud boasts of the enormous losses inflicted on the raiders. These losses were, indeed, heavy—60 four-engined bombers. The loss was not excessive in view of the importance of the target and the extent of the damage inflicted upon it. But if any Germans believed that the Schweinfurt raid marked the end of daylight bombing they have since suffered a bitter disillusion.

On Wednesday upward of 1000 American Flying Fortresses, Liberators and escorting fighters carried out a great raid on the German naval base of Wilhelmshaven. More than 1300 tons of bombs were dropped. In view of the size of the attacking force, the losses were slight—five Fortresses and Liberators. Moreover, the same day that saw the Wilhelmshaven raid also saw raids carried out by the RAF on Duesseldorf, Cologne and other points in the Ruhr and Rhineland. These attacks were followed by another 1000-plane raid Friday on Gelsenkirchen and Muenster at a cost of 10 heavy bombers, two medium bombers and five fighters. Yesterday's pounding of Duren was accomplished without the loss of any of our planes.

Coming on top of the disastrous defeat being administered to the Wehrmacht by the Red Army in the Dnieper Bend, and the political solar-plexus blow emanating from the Moscow conference, the resumption of large-scale Allied bombing of German cities constitutes extremely bitter medicine for the Nazis.

Our Failure To Tax

The Ways and Means Committee is approaching the end of its labors on the new tax program. As it now stands, the committee bill would yield a paltry two billion dollars compared with the 10.5 billion dollars of new revenue asked by the Treasury and the still larger sums previously requested by the President. The crying need for additional taxes—a minimum of at least 10.5 billion dollars—was emphasized by Stabilization Director Vinson in an address last week before the Investment Bankers Association. As proof of the ability of the American people to bear much heavier taxes, Mr. Vinson pointed to the rapid expansion of consumer purchases of food and clothing, and the great increase in spending for nonessentials and amusements. Compared with average outlays during the period 1936-39, he said, expenditures in clothing stores had risen over 100 per cent; at eating and drinking places, 143 per cent, and in jewelry stores, 218 per cent.

Mr. Vinson's testimony is reenforced by the Treasury's study of taxes in the United States, the United Kingdom and Canada. The Treasury estimates that personal incomes of the American people will reach the stupendous figure of 152 billion dollars in the fiscal year 1943-44, with 131 billion dollars of disposable income available for buying consumer goods and services after payment of personal taxes. The supply of purchasable goods and services is valued at only 89 billion dollars, leaving an inflationary gap of 42 billion dollars to be bridged. Comparable data for the calendar year 1942 put the inflationary gap at only 26 billion dollars, showing that the volume of excess income in consumer hands is mounting rapidly because of failure to tax away the surplus.

In the United Kingdom the gap between personal income at the disposal of consumers and the value of goods and services that could be bought was not quite five billion dollars in 1942. That is a very large sum, to be sure, compared with a British figure for disposable income of approximately 24 billion dollars. Nevertheless, the ratio of disposable income to supply of consumer goods and services was only 124 per cent for the United Kingdom in the calendar year 1942, compared with 133 per cent in the same year for this country, and 147 per cent for the current fiscal year.

These ratios are a sort of measuring rod indicating the inflationary potentialities of rapidly expanding incomes under a system of wartime deficit financing. Instead of looking at these danger signals, however, and reflecting that they are more ominous here than in Great Britain, our legislators prefer to point to the higher per capita taxation of the American people as an excuse for refusal to raise income taxes to adequate levels. They are quite unmoved by the Treasury's statement that "except at the lowest income levels where the Victory tax affects the situation, the combined income tax and the employe social security contributions are higher at all levels of income in the United Kingdom and Canada than they are in the United States." A glance at the detailed comparisons by income classes shows that British taxes in the low-income groups are very much higher than levies under our tax laws.

Job Of Unscrambling

There is no more difficult assignment in the whole sphere of wartime and postwar activities than that given to Bernard M. Baruch by OWM Director Byrnes. Mr. Baruch's great service in clearing up the rubber dilemma a year and a half ago and his more recent report on manpower are both overshadowed by the immensity of the problem that has been dropped into his lap. For he has been asked to work out plans and policies through which the economy of a great nation engaged in total war can be unscrambled when the fighting is over and redirected by orderly processes into the activities of peacetime.

Mr. Baruch is admirably qualified for this assignment. In addition to his outstanding service as chairman of the War Industries Board in the last war, he has functioned as the President's chief trouble-shooter on the home front through most of the present hostilities. He has a profound knowledge of business and industry; he knows the men who are directing the production of war supplies and has their confidence as well as that of the Administration and the public. He is courageous enough to say what he thinks and independent enough to reject pressure from any source. Even more important, he knows how to tackle a big undertaking without delay, and he carries with him through the toughest assignments a keen sense of the national interest.

All these qualities will be much in demand, for the problems of wartime and postwar adjustment are becoming more critical every day. Our war-making is certain to stop much more quickly than it began, and chaos will be an unwelcome companion of victory unless the Government is ready to meet the consequent shock to our economic system. The Government is far from being ready to meet this obligation now.

The extent of our unpreparedness to cope with such an emergency is illustrated by the fact that there is no agreement as to the power of governmental agencies to cancel contracts. The War Department insists that it has authority to negotiate settlements when contracts are terminated at the convenience of the Government. But the Comptroller General believes that settlements thus negotiated are an infringement upon his powers under the Budget and Accounting Act. Such a controversy, if left unsolved by Congress, might have the effect of holding up settlements indefinitely and of wreaking havoc upon our economic system at a most critical time.

The whole problem of postwar employment is tied up with this question of prompt settlement of wartime contract obligations. Reconversion of industry will be a baffling undertaking at best. The Government will have to decide what industries shall have first call upon scarce materials for a resumption of civilian manufacturing. It will be bedeviled by questions as to what plants within a given industry should be first relieved of war contracts. Some of these questions will probably have to be answered before the war is over, with full knowledge of the fact that resumption of civilian industry even on a small scale will encourage a scramble for premature reconversion. Had questions of this sort merely been allowed to accumulate until the end of the war, the outlook would be truly frightening.

We think that the creation of a postwar adjustment unit within the Office of War Mobilization holds special promise because it should lead to an integrated policy as to the termination of war contracts, the disposal of surplus war materials and the reconversion of war plants. The diffusion of war procurement powers among many agencies has proved to be a costly mistake. The least the Government can do is to avoid similar mistakes in the demobilization of our industrial war machinery. And that appears to be the gist of the assignment given to Mr. Baruch.

Manpower Formula

Labor, management and farm leaders have submitted to the War Manpower Commission a comprehensive program for more effective mobilization of the country's human resources. They appear to be unanimous in their preference for implementing this mobilization on a voluntary basis. It is at least significant and greatly heartening that men of such diverse points of view should have been able to agree on a formula. The proposals submitted to the WMC were indorsed by the presidents of the National Association of Manufacturers and the Congress of Industrial Organizations, by the presidents of the Farm Bureau Federation and the National Farmers Union.

Their program plainly had its inspiration in the Baruch manpower report and in large part follows its findings. Like the Baruch report, it is vigorously critical of some of the present procedures of the WMC. The more credit, therefore, to Paul V. McNutt for characterizing it as "a most effective document." As he points out, the recommendations embrace something much more than mere opposition to a national service law. They commit the principal organizations of management, agriculture and labor to active participation in a network of local manpower plans. The test of the recommendations must lie, of course, in the effectiveness with which the proposed voluntary collaboration is put to work throughout the country.

Voluntary manpower stabilization programs have had a fair degree of success in several areas of critical manpower shortage. What is proposed now, in substance, is to extend these voluntary agreements to war-production communities everywhere. The program calls upon "local management, labor and agriculture to attack manpower and production problems, community by community and plant by plant, in cooperation with the appropriate agencies." It pledges, also, "all possible steps to assure the maximum utilization of potential manpower reserves not now engaged in necessary war activities in each community." This should hasten repeal of the Pace amendment which prevents use of Federal funds to aid the free movement of agricultural workers. We are too near the bottom of the manpower barrel to be able to afford any further wastage.

Allied Relief

Two very important international conferences will assemble this week to deal with problems connected with the administration of relief in liberated countries. The first conference convening today in Ottawa is being held for the purpose of putting the statistical food services of the United States, the United Kingdom and Canada on a comparable basis.

The second conference opening Wednesday in Atlantic City will discuss plans for carrying out the purposes of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, established last September by the United States, Great Britain, China and the U. S. S. R. "to meet the basic needs of the victims of war in territories controlled by the United Nations, including areas liberated from enemy control." Other Allied nations have been invited to participate in the undertaking but delegates representing the four powers mentioned constitute the central committee.

Now the time has come for setting up a working organization able to carry forward this stupendous task. One of its first problems will be to determine how much is needed, what is needed and where. Obviously the Ottawa gathering, which is primarily concerned with statistics of food supply and demand in two of the largest food supply countries of the world, will provide information of basic importance for the guidance of the officials of the UNRRA.

These two conventions afford tangible evidence that the work of succor and rehabilitation to which this Nation is committed is not a remote undertaking. It is an obligation that will soon take shape in the form of definite commitments that must be translated into action. Since the United States will necessarily be called upon to provide a very large share of the food, clothing and other supplies required by the destitute peoples of Europe and Asia, the American people have a very intimate personal concern in the outcome of the deliberations at Ottawa and Atlantic City. It is to be hoped that a full report of the discussions and the decisions reached will be available, for the public is not only interested, it is entitled to know what tentative promises are being made and what the fulfillment of those promises implies in terms of material sacrifices.

Equal Opportunity

President Roosevelt has made it clear that his Fair Employment Practice Committee is no dummy corporation. When he reestablished it some months ago, he implemented it with a general order that anti-discrimination clauses be included in all Government contracts and subcontracts. Recently this order was called into question by the Comptroller General on the ground that it was a mere directive and therefore not binding upon contracting officers. Now the President has stated categorically that his order was in fact an order and that the inclusion of antidiscrimination clauses is mandatory.

This clarification should greatly assist the FEPC in its patient work of assuring to minority groups a fair opportunity to take part in the war effort. It not only gives the FEPC teeth but demonstrates that the teeth are capable of biting. The victims of discrimination now know that their Government means to protect their rights. It is essential that they know this, for only with this knowledge can they be expected to await patiently the sometimes painfully slow processes of democratic evolution through which they will ultimately win full equality.

SONG TO GOD

Now in thy temple, tongues of bells are heard,
The trumpet vine rings redly on warm wind,
And golden swings the honeysuckle where bronze bird
Hovers and pierces with a rapier thinned
By thrusting at the honey of thy heart.
Silver the clapper of the jewelweed swaying;
Lightly it strikes, and where the purple thistle
Quivers beneath the butterfly's long staying,
The foxglove listens for the phoebe's whistle,
And out of love of thee, in mood of praying,
Rings muted memory of the reverent sound.
Each music spirals like an incense raised
To thine eternal arches, to the carved blue air
That always, when thy name is sung or praised,
Echoes the upper light, the earthly fair.

Coal Strike Settlement

By Mark Sullivan

Surrender to Lewis

WHAT IS HERE SET DOWN is a statement of a small number of concrete facts and conditions about the coal strike—and especially the manner of its ending.

Last week, some eight million Americans were under arms, many of them abroad, in actual combat against the enemy. In this condition, another group of Americans, some half million in number, the members of Mr. John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers, were on strike. By their strike, they were interrupting the supplies upon which our soldiers depend, without which they cannot fight, by lack of which the war will be prolonged.

To state the same condition from another point of view: On the verge of winter, with the supply of coal already short, with deprivation of fuel already certain, the production of coal was interrupted by a strike.

The strike was not against the owners of coal mines—it was against the Government of the United States.

The strike was ended by surrender of the Government, a surrender under circumstances that made it humiliating.

THE GOVERMENT—through one of its agencies, the War Labor Board, and also through the head of Government, President Roosevelt — had laid down as a principle that no labor dispute would be settled while a strike was on; that return of strikers to work must be a prerequisite of settlement. The principle, as once stated by a member of the Labor Board, was that the Government of the United States must not be put under duress, that the Government would never yield to a gun held at its head. This principle the Government last week surrendered. The surrender led one member of the Labor Board, Mr. Wayne L. Morse, to dissent. Mr. Morse, solitary in his support of principle, said the agreement composing the surrender "was negotiated under stress of a strike . . . was dictated at the point of a strike weapon."

The surrender was accompanied by, in part accomplished by, what the New York Times calls a "device," and The Washington Post described by the more vernacular term, "double cross." The War Labor Board had officially decided that a certain item of the increase in pay demanded by Mr. Lewis, amounting to 37½ cents a day, would be "more than the board is able to approve under the . . . act of Congress." Immediately afterward President Roosevelt put the case in the hands of another Government agency, Secretary of the Interior Ickes. Thereupon Mr. Ickes granted the increase which the War Labor Board had denied. Justification for the increase was put on a ground which caused the cynical to smile: "The prevailing customary 30-minute lunch period is hereby reduced to 15 minutes, and the miners agree to work said additional 15 minutes . . ." Neither cynics nor serious persons believe that in practice the miners actually will—or in such an arduous occupation can—be expected to cut their lunch time to 15 minutes.

TRANSFERRING THE CASE from one Government agency to another recalls another surrender of the Administration to Mr. Lewis, accompanied by the same maneuver. In 1941 Mr. Lewis was demanding a closed shop. President Roosevelt declared that he would never grant a closed shop, and that Congress would never enact one. The predecessor of the present War Labor Board, the old Labor Mediation Board, denied the closed shop. Subsequently Mr. Roosevelt turned the case over to an arbitration board —which gave Mr. Lewis the closed shop.

In the long struggle between Mr. Lewis and the Government—in large part a personal controversy between Mr. Lewis and Mr. Roosevelt—Mr. Lewis has won, completely and absolutely. That he is more powerful than the Government is proved not merely by the Government's present surrender. It is proved, in a most direct way, by two incidents of the recent phase of the struggle. Twice President Roosevelt has issued a command to the miners—once that they should not go on strike, on a later occasion that they should cease striking. Both times, the miners did not obey the President of the United States. In similar conditions Mr. Lewis issued similar commands — and the miners obeyed the labor leader.

By showing himself more powerful than the Government, Mr. Lewis, of course, becomes the most powerful labor leader in the country. Other labor leaders, in order to hold their following, will be obligated to imitate him.

D. C. Firemen

Our first open fire this fall set our chimney on fire.

If, as we believe, the firemen who responded to this call, are a fair sample of Washington's firefighters, the Capital City has reason to be proud of the men in this highly important civic service.

The group of men who came to our house were as cool and quiet and businesslike as if they had been a Commando Task Force. In a matter of minutes they had inspected the house from roof to cellar, extinguished the fire, cleaned the chimney, mopped up the floor around the chimney and put everything they had disturbed to rights.

Austria

By Paul Schubert

Future Position

THE MOSCOW declarations, general on many points, were specific about Austria. The Anschluss put through in Hitler's surprise coup in March, 1938, is considered illegal, null and void —Austria is to be restored to the status of an independent state. The future international relations of this state will be colored markedly by the behavior of the Austrian people.

By setting forth the principle that enemy Austria is to be rendered independent, and the further principle that none of Hitler's forcible conquests is recognized, the powers clearly envision a Europe resubdivided into numerous states of various sizes, capacities and strengths, all independent.

The next great and knotty problem to be solved is the problem of federation—how to bind these sovereign states together into larger cooperative entities for the overcoming of some of the economic and political follies which marked Europe "between the wars."

AUSTRIA CANNOT, of course, be truly "independent." What is now called Austria has not been independent for many centuries —not since the days of petty states and feudal kingdoms.

When Europe began the process of federation, back in the Middle Ages, the "binder" that knit states together took two forms. One was purely feudal—a structure of power and social allegiances under which groups of monarchs acted together for their mutual benefit.

A second binder was religion. Austria became affiliated with the Holy Roman Empire—became, in time, the dominant state of this empire, and when the Holy Roman Empire broke up, Austria became the leading state of a group of heterogeneous states whose chief binder remained, in many ways, religion, though the crown, the accident of geography, and the development of European economics all played a part.

The point is, Austria's chief right to a place in international society, lay in Austria's capacity to act as one unit of a federation.

At the end of the World War the Austro-Hungarian Empire, too, was broken up, as the Holy Roman Empire had been before it.

Austria, now independent, was left as a petty, relatively isolated state, alone in middle Europe.

Other middle-European states were likewise independent and alone. For some, there were abortive attempts to set up larger groupings, such as the Little Entente which purported to weld Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Yugoslavia together, and the Balkan Entente which later attempted to bind the Balkans into a working whole.

BUT NONE of these agreements or alliances broke down the economic barriers which turned Europe's small states to the ridiculous effort to make themselves self-sufficient, truly independent of one another.

Czechoslovakia, with 13 million population, manufactured some 16 different models of motorcars, almost exclusively for home consumption. Austria, next door to Czechoslovakia, did not import Czech cars (except on payment of high duties), but set up an Austrian automotive industry, necessarily in miniature.

Austria, casting about for some economic federation, found an apparent way out in trying to become another Switzerland: i. e., in creating a tourist industry profitable enough to provide a credit balance for international purchases. Austria had mountains, snow, scenery, hotels . . . Austria had Salzburg, Innsbrueck, Vienna. Austria catered to the English, the Americans, to Czechs and Rumanians, but above all to Germans, for Germany was swept by a tremendous skiing craze during the '20's and '30's, and Austria offers some of the best skiing on the continent.

It was Hitler who upset the Austrian dream. Hitler didn't want Germany's marks crossing the frontier. Hitler wanted to annex Austria . . . but "legally," by the process of having Austria declare herself a National Socialist state and petition for Anschluss to the Reich.

So Hitler closed the frontier to German tourists, except on the payment of 1000 marks for an exit-visa.

The result was an Austrian economic panic. For Austria cannot live alone. Austria will never be self-sufficient.

Perversely, the Austrians did not resent Hitler and the Germans for this action. They resented their own government, for, failing to accede to Germany's wishes. By 1938 Austria was riddled with Nazi fanatics, eager to climb aboard the glittering bandwagon of German success. Cheering thousands hailed Hitler's entry as the dawn of a new prosperity.

Now Austria appears to be getting ready to board a new bandwagon. But to hand this country "independence" will mean little unless some effective form of economic federation goes along with it.

Spiritual Myopia

I have noted with interest your editorial defending the Farm Security Administration against attempts to destroy it by what you call "the Farm Bureau Administration's hatchet men." Your views seem to me painfully old-fashioned.

We already have a creditably high rate of farm tenancy in this country, running as high as 75 per cent of the farm population in some areas. This notable advance in our economy was brought about by the big fellows who took over the little fellows. If, now, they can abolish the FSA they can increase the rate of farm tenancy perhaps to the saturation point. This will give millions of farm tenants the privilege of working for the big man and burdening him with the wealth they create for him, while they themselves remain as poor as jaybirds and consequently free of the burdens of ownership. The less a tenant has, as the Farm Bureau will tell you, the happier he is. One detects, therefore, a note of nobility in its efforts to increase the wealth of its members and thefeby pile up torturing responsibilities for themselves while leaving the tenants free to enjoy themselves without worrying how they are to meet their taxes.

We are, moreover, a progressive people. There is a certain archaic poesy in Mr. Lincoln's statement that a nation cannot exist half slave and half free, and doubtless it made some appeal to the quaint people of his time. But we are more enlightened than the men of his day, and having already enslaved half of the people on the land we have merely to continue to apply our progressive methods to enslave the other half. Other nations, moreover, have usually enslaved foreigners, but we go them one better and enslave our own people on the theory perhaps of "America for Americans," thereby proving what a country can do when nearly everybody in it has received at least a common school education. And if by any chance this should prove to be a mistake, please remember that since we are the biggest and most powerful people in the world it is fitting that we make the biggest and most catastrophic mistakes in keeping with our size and power, leaving it to lesser nations to make the puny errors that become them.

Moreover, sir, if in your spiritual myopia you should detect a quality of degradation in farm tenancy, bear in mind that we are going in for progressive degradation, spreading it farther and farther and showing that we are not a people to do things by halves. It seems to me, then, that the Farm Bureau in attempting to increase tenancy by abolishing the FSA is serving the sacred cause of what is called "free enterprise," the freedom to be poor and dispossessed being as dear as the freedom to be rich and propertied. And if your hypersensitive conscience is nonetheless troubled by what you mistakenly take to be the unhappy plight of the tenants, recall, sir, that they are churchgoers, where it is promised them every Sunday that they will get their reward in heaven throughout eternity while those who own them here will eat high off the hog only for the short period they are on earth.

Fine Preaching

It is bad enough to mistreat our citizens of Mexican extraction, but it is even worse to mistreat Mexican citizens who have come up to help us with the war effort. The following paragraphs from an article in the October 4, 1943, Novedades (Mexico City) show that notice is being taken in the Mexican capital of our unfriendly acts toward Mexican citizens. The article is headed:

Mexicans Continue To Be Humiliated in the United States

The discrimination against Mexicans continues strongly in the United States, according to the Federation of Mexican Workers and other sources of information which they have in Mexico, even the Office of the Foreign Secretary.

The Federation of Mexican Workers has information that people are hostile toward the Mexicans, especially in the State of Texas. Not only are day laborers who have gone to help with agricultural work badly treated, but even consular representatives are humiliated. For example, the Mexican Consul at Houston was forced to eat in the kitchen with Negroes and Mongolian cooks.

It appears to me that if we do not do a little less preaching and a little more practicing where the two peoples come together our good neighbor policy is likely to fall flat, and it might drag hemisphere solidarity with it.

There have been a number of conferences between American and British representatives during the last several months. Armageddons

FIFTEEN DECISIVE BATTLES OF THE WORLD, by Sir Edward S. Creasy. Edited with new chapters and 30 maps by Robert Hammond Murray. (Military Service, $3.)

The republication of this celebrated opus in a thoroughly modernized edition, from which all the Greek and Latin quotations, most of Creasy's original footnotes and some of his Victorian longueurs have been discreetly expurgated, brings up again the question of just what it is that decides the decisive battles. Is there a destiny that shapes those historical ends we see are rough-hewn by all these swords, bayonets and bombs? Are the character of history and the destinies of men at the mercy of mere freaks of fortune like the loss of a tenpenny nail, or the blunder of a brass hat, or Napoleon's bad cold at Borodino and whatever it was that ailed him at Leipzig, or the bad storm that overtook the Invincible Armada, or the carelessness about a postern gate at Constantinople? If so, what becomes of all the supposed laws, or rhythms, or cycles of history?

Or are such seemingly tremendous accidents merely the foam on what Colonel Lindbergh's Lady, in a neat phrase, has called the wave of the future? This, you perceive, is merely the old metaphysical riddle of casualty, which is quite unanswerable by any positive logic —something that in no way discourages men like Professor Toynbee from devoting a lifetime to the quest for an answer.

If we take the determinist, view and say that long before the decisive battle is ever joined the historical dice have been loaded, then we come to the problem of Cleopatra's nose. If I see the point of Pascal's epigram, it is this: Providence in its inscrutable wisdom may make use of the most apparently frivolous instruments. The implication seems to be that had Cleopatra been less beautiful, Antony might not have been ruined at Actium; indeed, there might never have been such a battle. A less infatuated Antony might not have lost that "greater cantle of the world." as Shakespeare calls it, which, if you remember, included Judea. This being so, it is curious that Actium does not appear either in Creasy's list of decisive battles or the rival and longer list produced a few years ago by Maj. Gen. J. F. C. Fuller. Yet it could be plausibly argued that an important relationship exists between the Battle of Actium in 31 B. C. and the greatest Event in all human history which occurred about a generation later. Most Christian historians, at any rate, have seen the pacification of the empire under Augustus as part of the divinely ordered preparation of the stage for the great drama of Christianity. The connection is at least no more tenuous than the connection that Creasy himself, following Dr. Arnold, traced between the destruction of the Athenians at Syracuse and the mission of St. Paul more than four centuries later, or the connection that both Creasy and General Fuller trace between the defeat of Quintilius Varus in the Teutoburger forest and the plays of Shakespeare.

Creasy, of course, was well aware of the etiological problem in history, but he sternly ruled it out of bounds, which after all was a bit of common sense. "When I speak of probabilities," he wrote in his preface to the original edition of 1851, "I speak of human probabilities only. When I speak of Cause and Effect, I speak of those general laws only, by which we perceive the sequence of human affairs to be regulated." Presumably, General Fuller has been studying much the same human probabilities and general laws. Yet we find Creasy, a scholar writing for soldiers, and Fuller, a soldier writing for scholars, in agreement in only seven instances as to which battles were the really decisive ones—Arbella, the Teutoburger Wald, Chalons, Tours, Hastings, Blenheim and Saratoga. Creasy passes over Zama and Hadrianople. Fuller slights Orleans, the Armada and Pultowa, but Creasy ignores the Fall of Constantinople and the Battle of Lepanto. Fuller chooses Jena and Leipzig where Creasy had chosen Valmy and Waterloo. Except for Arbella and Saratoga, Creasy never looked beyond Europe. Fuller takes us now to the Turks at Manzikert, now to the Templars at Hattim, now to the Sepoys at Plassey.

But Creasy's editor, Mr. Murray, has appended to the present edition essays of his own on three battles overlooked by Creasy, namely Tenochititlan (the Aztec capital), Quebec, and Ayachucho (Peru), and six battles, Gettysburg, Vicksburg, Sadowoa Gravelotte, Sedan and Mukden, which have occurred since Creasy's time. These, it seems, were selected according to formula that Creasy himself had borrowed from Henry Hallam, namely, a decisive battle is one which, had it gone the other way, "would have essentially varied the drama of the world in all its subsequent scenes." He has dutifully analyzed and described them according to Creasy's method, but not, alas, in Creasy's excellent prose. General Fuller's formula seems slightly more mystical. He looks for a battle which epitomizes the "clash between the things that are becoming and the things that have become."

I suspect that what it all amounts to in the end is this: that history is not, as we fondly suppose it, a gazing crystal wherein to read the future, but rather a mirror which charmingly reflects back to us whatever faith, or philosophy or prejudice we may happen to bring to it.

Inflation Control

By Ernest Lindley

Tests For Congress

THE ELECTION RESULTS undoubtedly will stimulate anew a sense of independence in Congress, perhaps especially among the Republican members. The election did not deter the Senate from at last adopting a resolution indorsing international collaboration to enforce the peace. It will not prevent the appropriation of sufficient funds for the Army and Navy. But there are other matters before Congress now, which require treatment with a view solely to the national interest. These cluster around the central problem of preventing inflation or controlling the cost of living.

LINDLEY

A week ago, the President submitted to Congress a very comprehensive message on food production and the cost of living. It demonstrated (1) that the average income of farm operators has risen more than the average income of other parts of the population and that it has reached a new all-time peak; and (2) that food production has increased tremendously.

Almost entirely as a result of the rise in food prices, the cost of living is above the September, 1942, wage-price stabilization level. It would be still higher but for the use of various types of subsidies or equalization payments, which now run at the rate of about 800 million dollars annually. It will be still higher in the future if these subsidies and equalization payments are not continued and extended to cover a few additional items.

OPA is forcing down the prices of certain food products by reducing the excessive margins of distributors. But this method alone will not maintain the present level of living costs, much less restore the level of September, 1942.

ORGANIZED LABOR is demanding that the lid on wage increases be removed or raised, chiefly on the ground that the cost of living has risen above the level at which it was supposed to be stabilized. For a considerable portion of the wage-earning population the argument is without much real merit. Take-home wages have risen substantially on the average even since September, 1942, not counting the important increases prior to that date. Part of the wage earning population could absorb a still further increase in the cost of living and still be better off than it ever was before. But another part cannot. And the large sector of the population which is dependent on fixed salaries cannot—in fact, this group has been squeezed hard already by the war.

It is impossible to be certain about the effects on labor generally of the compromise in the soft coal case. The fact is that, once again, the miners gained by defying the Government and imperiling the war effort. The National War Labor Board's hand was forced. The amount of money involved was small, but the principle was important. Fortunately, most leaders of organized labor behave more patriotically than John L. Lewis and most union members are either more patriotic or better informed than the mine workers appear to have been. But the latest concession to Lewis was an encouragement to other labor leaders to imitate him.

THE WAGE STABILIZATION LINE may be allowed to bulge here and there, as in the case of the miners, but almost certainly it will not be broken unless the price line is broken. A refusal by Congress to approve the continuation and moderate expansion of equalization payments of subsidies for food would break the price line, making further increases in wage rates almost inevitable.

The prospect of obtaining an adequate tax bill from Congress was never very good. But even six or seven additional billions in taxes and compulsory savings are better than three or four billion. Adequate taxation is a backstop for price and wage control. Weak taxation makes price controls harder to enforce. If the wage and price lines are to be allowed to bulge or break, higher taxation is all the more imperative.

The easy way out for timid politicians is to let prices and wages rise and to do little or nothing more about taxes. The price and tax problems now before Congress are a test of its courage and grasp of affairs.

Income Tax Simplification Still Means Little to Many

By Harley L. Lutz

Professor of Public Finance, Princeton University; former president, National Tax Association; former member Commission of Financial Advisers to Chile and Poland.

In a press release recently issued by the Treasury, the following question and answer occurred:

"Q. How complicated a job is it to fill out my September 15 declaration?"

"A. It is not complicated at all. You can figure out your estimate and write out your declaration form in 10 minutes or less."

But that was before September 15. A great many persons are now in a position to refute the above statement on the basis of personal experience.

The act of 1943 made two very important changes in our income-tax procedure. One may go so far as to say that they are the only significant changes that have been made since the beginning. Although there have been hundreds of income-tax amendments since 1913, it seems as if most of them made the law harder to understand and comply with. The 1943 changes were intended to give the taxpayer a much-needed break. They were:

(1) A change in bookkeeping, whereby the tax is made a liability against current rather than past income;

(2) A change in collection procedure, whereby part of the tax (or all of it in some cases) is to be collected on income at source.

Both of these changes are good and should be kept. There may be grumbling at the amount of tax being taken out of pay checks and pay envelopes, but at the end of the year it will be a great relief to find that so much of one's tax has been paid.

Yet the act of 1943 left much room for improvement. It was not a tax act, in the strict sense of the word, but merely a law relating to tax collection and tax payment. Consequently, it made no changes in the fundamental tax law. Certain procedures of tax return and tax collection were grafted onto the main body of the law, but the job could not be smoothly done because of the complications in that law.

Goal Not Achieved

As soon as this hybrid arrangement began to function, the defects began to appear. These defects were not in the new principles of withholding and current tax payment, but in the law. They were the product of the complications which had developed in the evolution of the income tax.

The situation which calls for remedy may be stated briefly. It is that the goal of putting a large proportion of the taxpayers on a current basis will not be realized. The withholding-tax rate is 20 per cent, but the taxpayer is liable for payment of three separate rates on his income, namely, a normal tax rate of 6 per cent, a first surtax bracket rate of 13 per cent, and a net victory-tax rate of 3 per cent, or 22 per cent in all. The purpose of the withholding-tax rate of 20 per cent may have been to collect in that way all of the tax that should be paid by all persons receiving wage or salary income, and who would not be subject to further surtax. The Treasury circular mentioned above stated that about 29,000,000 persons would have their full tax liability collected at source.

But this cannot, assuredly, happen in all cases. It will not be true for those persons getting more income in 1943 than in 1942, nor will it be true of those who are paying income tax for the first time in 1943.

Nevertheless, the purpose was sound and its attainment should be made possible. This requires only certain simple changes in the tax law, as follows:

(1) Merge the victory tax into the withholding tax;

(2) Designate the new withholding rate as the normal tax rate, with a standard set of deductions, allowances, and exemptions in the determination of taxable income;

(3) Eliminate the requirement of a year-end return in all cases in which there is no income other than wages or salary and in which there is no liability for surtax. Since the withholding rate now includes the first surtax rate, liability for surtax would mean, henceforth, an obligation to pay at the second-bracket rate. In terms of the 1942 act, this would mean a surtax net income in excess of $2000.

Sees General Benefit

All taxpayers would benefit from this arrangement. Those who are required to file the declaration of estimated income will be rid of the double-barrelled form which required one determination of so-called net income for the victory tax and another for the ordinary income tax.

Those taxpayers with surtax net incomes not in excess of $2000, and whose income consists entirely of wage or salary, will then have no more trouble about paying income tax than they now have about paying cigarette tax. The Treasury will be spared the burden of receiving, filing, and sometimes, perhaps, examining millions of returns, each involving a small income and a small tax.

The principal objection to this plan will come from the devotees of the victory tax, for, strange as it may seem, that tax has its defenders. It is said that 11 or 12 million persons would pay no income tax were it not for the victory tax with its exemption of $624.

Some More, Some Less

A more accurate way of stating the case would be that the elimination of the victory tax would cause some persons to pay less tax and some others to pay none. Perhaps in all there would be 11 or 12 million persons involved. There is no evidence that so large a group would be completely exempted.

It will be recalled that the act of 1943 requires withholding at the net victory-tax rate of 3 per cent when that would produce a higher tax than the 20-per-cent rate on net income. The real purpose back of the defense of the victory tax is, therefore, to collect more from the small income.

But there is another way of dealing with the small income, if that is the thing to be done. The victory tax is a complicating factor for all taxpayers, and in view of the alternative method available for taxing those with small incomes, it is improper to burden everyone else with a cumbersome procedure merely because of a reluctance to consider that alternative.

In a merger of the three tax rates, as here proposed, the new combined rate should be 22 per cent. This would not be a tax increase, for everyone must actually compute his tax, other than surtax, at rates which make this total. The 22-per-cent rate would tend to maintain revenues at the current level. The revenue loss would be limited to the difference between the amount collected from persons who now pay victory tax only and the amount which some of them would pay on net income at a 22-per-cent rate. If necessary, a slight adjustment of the personal exemptions would result in offsetting this loss.

Auto Strikers Return to Work

Detroit, Nov. 7 (AP).—Officials of the United Automobile Workers (CIO) said tonight that two strikes blamed for keeping more than 10,000 war plant workers in idleness over the weekend had been settled, and that the employes would return to their jobs tomorrow.

The union ordered foundry employes of the Ford Motor Co., where an estimated 7000 were idle yesterday, to return to their posts ni the big Rouge plant at Dearborn pending negotiation of a grievance attributed to a dispute between a foreman and a subordinate.

In Flint, Mich., a spokesman for General Motors said the Buick division's foundry and related departments would be ready for 3800 returning workers. Carl Swanson, regional director of the UAW-CIO, said strikers who walked out Thursday, after the disciplinary suspension of two employes, would go back to their jobs tomorrow morning leaving a demand for reinstatement of the pair to grievance negotiations.

Steinbeck Tells How Barbara Won War With Simple Idea

John Steinbeck, who has just returned to this country from an assignment as a war correspondent, interrupts today his series on the Italian and North African campaigns to write about Barbara, the young girl on the home front.

By John Steinbeck

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Barbara has done almost everything you can think of for the war. She has collected newspapers and bound them into bales and set them out for the collectors. She has thought about being a WAC or a lady Marine when she is old enough and she is strongly attracted to being an Army nurse in helmet and baggy pants, serving in the jungle side by side with handsome but hurt soldiers. Two of her uncles are in the Army and the man she is practically engaged to is overseas. Barbara intends to marry him just as soon as she is out of high school. Her near-fiancee is a public-relations officer in London with a flat at Athaeneum Court in Piccadilly, but Barbara thinks of him as fighting and dying for his country.

Barbara would like to fight and die for her country, too. She can see the bronze plaque in the foyer of the Assembly Hall. "To the heroic memory of Barbara, who sacrificed her life for principles of liberty and justice."

The war is going on and Barbara has not really done anything. She cuts off both ends of cans and tromps them flat for salvage. But it is not enough. Tromping tin cans is not enough.

Barbara had been bending over the drawing board for a long time. When she sat up her eyes were tired, but her mouth was stern with purpose. Neither her weariness nor her sternness, however, interfered with her golden beauty. Her skin was as fresh and clear as a gardenia petal.

"And there it is"—she said. "Now we shall see whether the fools can understand it."

When the taxi deposited her at the front porch of the Pentagon Building in Washington, she was simply, almost severely, dressed and she carried the briefcase with the blueprints with her. Only a few people turned and looked after the lovely girl. Only a few noticed the purposefulness of her lithe stride as she climbed the steps.

Helped by Professor

Naturally her first experience were disappointing, but she had almost expected that colonels and people like that said to her without even looking at her blueprints—"there are so many cranks and crackpots. My dear young woman," they said, "do you realize how many inventions we have to look over every day?"

Barbara might have got nowhere had it not been for a kindly old professor in the War Department. He was just strolling by and his eye happened to land on the unrolled blueprint. Then he stopped in his tracks and his mouth fell open. Feverishly he examined the drawing. "Young woman, I mean young lady," he cried, "do you know what you have here?"

"Yes, sir," Barbara said simply. "I have brought it to serve my country."

That was the break in the wall of opposition, for the professor was very powerful in the War Department. It was a matter of very few minutes before forces were at work.

Barbara sat at the head of a round table. Henry L. Stimson sat on her right and Frank Knox was on her left. At the foot of the table General Marshall stared intently at her. There were other generals at the table, but not ones any one ever heard of. Sitting easily in her chair at the head of the table, Barbara described the weapon in simple language. Then stepping to a blackboard, she drew a quick sure sketch to illustrate the principle. General Somervell, who was halfway down the table, got up to his feet the better to watch.

"So Very Simple"

Barbara finished her sketch and turned to face the room. She was through. Now it was up to them to understand.

There were tears in Secretary Stimson's eyes. Secretary Knox beat softly on the table with his open hand. General Marshall said quietly: "So simple. So very simple. Why didn't we think of it. It must have taken the fresh, clear, hard brain of this lovely girl to do what we overlooked." Then he stood up. "Gentlemen," he said, "I think this young lady has won the war. Somervell, can we manufacture this secret weapon?"

"By the million," said Somervell, huskily. "But Barbara will have to go to the battle front to show the soldiers how to use it. Her sacrifice has been great, but more is required of her. She must face the very front lines with shot and shell all around her."

Barbara's face was like the face of Joan of Arc. "I'm ready when I am needed," she said quietly.

A Girl General

General Marshall cleared his throat. "I know it is unusual," he said. "We have never had a girl general in the Army—still—Well, the President has been listening to this secret conference over a privat wire and I think if Barbara will consider——"

But Barbara leaped to her feet. "Gentlemen," she said, "I have no wish for honors. I want only to serve my country. I do not want to be a general. I only wish to be a simple American girl. I shall be ready to go to the front lines whenever you see fit to call." She bowed slightly and walked out of the room. A young and handsome general shook his head. "So lovely," he said. "So young and lovely."

When Barbara walked down from the front porch of the Pentagon Building, a great crowd had collected. They did not cheer. They were too filled with emotion and admiration. They stood silently staring at the beautiful young girl who had delivered her country and had single-handed won the war. Barbara got into the back seat of the big black limousine.

Now she was alone she realized how great the strain had been. Now she could let down, could even cry. Big tears came into her eyes and her breath caught, for she was only a young girl. Unsteadily she cut off the other end of the tomato can and tromped it flat and put it in the garbage can.

Rep. Luce Sees Her Bill Giving McNutt 'Jitters

By the Associated Press

Representative Clare Boothe Luce (Republican) Connecticut, expressed the opinion yesterday that War Manpower Chief Paul V. McNutt's "sudden headlined jitters about the possibility of some congressional action" on the manpower problem was prompted by her introduction of a bill to create an Army and Navy maintenance corps of draft-deferred civilians.

McNutt, commenting on a report of the management-labor committee of the War Manpower Commission released today, said he was "now seeking vigorously to prosecute" recommendations of the advisory group, which insisted that labor draft legislation was unnecessary.

"My bill is a very limited national service act, designed chiefly to accomplish many of the things Mr. McNutt promised to do yesterday, such as scrutinizing thoroughly existing manpower needs, replacing deferred combat material with men who are not combat material, in order that we shall not have to draft more fathers, etc.," Mrs. Luce said in a statement.

WAC Company Flies to Algiers For New Duties

The WACs will assume clerical, stenographic and other administrative jobs, said Col. David R. Stinson, of 5462 30th st. nw., Washington, D. C., chief of staff of the Twelfth Air Service Command.

The new company marched from the planes through mud to a welcoming ceremony. For a number of the women it was their first air journey.

Norge salutes America's war mothers

Planning balanced rations, packing lunch boxes, preparing snacks at odd hours for work-sharpened appetites—these are some of the contributions to victory made by the housewives of America. Other patriotic duties performed by them include doing their own washing and ironing, raising and preserving much of their own foodstuffs, practicing economy and conservation every day and in every way possible.

We at Norge, completely in war work, honor these efficient, tireless workers on the home front . . . as we do the women who give generously of their time in war plants and those who volunteer in the armed forces, in Red Cross, A.W.V.S. and O.C.D. activities.

Norge Rollator refrigerators and other home appliances are doing their part, too, by lightening the household duties and adding to the efficiency of America's women war workers.

Soon after the victory, Norge will salute these women with a brilliant new line of household appliances that will emphasize America's new-era standards of living.

'Skins Streak Snapped in 14-14 Steagle Tie

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

There were moments in that Notre Dame-Army game when it appeared the Irish had no right to beat the Cadets by any such extreme score as 26-0. Dashing Jimmy Walker, who could always turn a phrase, once said "when you've seen a great fighter beaten, you've seen a great fight." Well, it was a whale of a ball game because a very good Army team was being licked.

POVICH

There were moments, too, when the Irish seemed to deserve all of their 26 points, notably during that magnificent show of sustained power when they marched 74 yards to a fourth-quarter touchdown in pulverizing assaults at the Army line on 16 consecutive plays. But the Cadets were yielding only grudgingly.

What the score might have been save for the loose ball handling by West Point, notably by Glenn Davis, is a conjecture of no great comfort even to Notre Dame's fine football team. Because fumbles twice stopped Army drives and added up to a possible differential of three touchdowns when a third fumble set up one of the Irish scores.

The Army wasn't beaten until it was worn down by the ceaseless pounding of the Irish in the second half. That 6-0 lead in the first half looked exceedingly skimpy. Don't forget, Notre Dame had a first down on the Army 11 in the first quarter and pulled up short after four running plays at the Army line, with the Cadets taking possession on their own 2. Murphy, Stanowicz and Myslinki in the Army line were smearing the Irish.

And Army was clearly outplaying Notre Dame in the scoreless second quarter. Anderson intercepted a pass by Lujack on the Army 15, and the Cadets prodded 65 yards upfield before Coach Leahy, in panic, hauled his second string line out of there and rushed in his No. 1 forwards.

That's when Army's series of fumbles began, and they weren't all Army's fault. The Irish tacklers were piling into Army's backs with a viciousness to please any coach. And in each case it was a ballhawk Notre Damer who recovered.

In that second quarter, the Irish staved off two Army drives. At left end, Limont averted an Army touchdown by refusing to be sucked in on Anderson's long dash and slowed the play to a point where the Irish secondary had a chance to haul down the runner. When he was hit, he fumbled, and Klubitski recovered on the Irish 30-yard line.

A bit later with Army doing very well on a drive that started on its own 40, they had a first down on the Irish 14 when Davis fumbled and Coleman recovered for Notre Dame. West Point's T-formation attack was potent at that point but not as smooth as Notre Dame's execution of the style and Davis scarcely had possession of the ball as he hit into the line.

When he wasn't fumbling, this Davis looked like somebody who belonged in Notre Dame's great backfield. He was off on a dazzling 15-yard run through the Irish line at the start of the third quarter when Mello tried to swipe the ball from him with the consequence that it squirted into the air and was caught by Miller for a 32-yard runback to the Army 13.

The Notre Damers were very big and rough and also very cute. After they got nothing from Army's 13-yard line and West Point took over the ball, Davis started around left end and big Jim White, Irish tackle, herded him back toward the goal, not content with throwing Davis for a 5-yard loss. White simply grabbed the ball out of Davis' arms and it was Notre Dame's ball 8 yards from the goal. From there, Lujack passed to the touchdown.

Isolating those fumbles, Army was a dangerous kind of team for three quarters, forcing the Irish into the air for both of their touchdowns, but in the fourth period, well, the Cadets succumbed to the same weariness that overtook Georgia Tech, Navy and other Irish opponents this season.

Army couldn't withstand the amazingly rugged Notre Dame team in that fourth quarter. The Irish, showing no effects of what already had been a terrific pace, poured it on as if they had just come out for the opening kickoff. They outlasted the Army to get those last two touchdowns.

There wasn't any noticeable defection in Notre Dame's operation of the T-attack without Angelo Bertelli in there. Young Johnny Lujack, taking over for the first time as first-string quarterback, gave the team great direction. If his handling of the ball from center wasn't as smooth as Bertelli's, it was scarcely noticeable. And he reacted to his new job in the presence of a crowd of 78,000 as if he was an old hand. The kid had poise; that was apparent from the first time he drew back his pitching arm and spiraled a touchdown pass 28 yards over the middle to Yonakor.

But somehow, there is no temptation to discredit this West Point team. Like Navy, they were beaten by a 26-point margin by the Irish, but Navy scouts in Yankee Stadium last Saturday must have taken back to Annapolis a fat sheaf of notes on Army's potentialities.

Don't Worry About Lujack, Army Game Shows He Has It

New York, Nov. 7 (AP).—If you are a Notre Dame alumnus, real or synthetic, and are worried about the football team now that Johnny Lujack has replaced the transferred Angelo Bertelli at quarterback, forget it.

If you are coaching the Great Lakes, Northwestern University or Iowa Seahawk elevens and think that the Irish may be softer because of Lujack's presence, stop it.

And if you are just a casual football fan and are doubtful that the Notre Dame outfit, called the game's greatest in some quarters, can keep that ranking with the erstwhile sub as boss, quit it.

Because John (Lu) Lujack is good.

60 Minutes of Football

The 18-year-old youngster made his debut as starting quarterback for the Irish Saturday in their 26-to-0 victory over Army before some 76,000 fans and completed eight of 16 passes for 176 yards, hit his target in the end zone twice for touchdowns, banged over another personally and played a full 60 minutes of rugged football.

His generalship was satisfactory even to Coach Frank Leahy, a man hard to please, and Lujack's defensive ability brought recognition from Lieut. Col. Earl Blaik, coach of the Cadets.

While the Ramblers were tacking the seventh straight victory on their record, Purdue remained undefeated by scoring in the final 40 seconds to beat Minnesota, 14 to 7; Michigan, Navy, Northwestern, Duke, Texas A. & M., Georgia Tech and Dartmouth all triumphed handsomely, but Southern California was spilled by San Diego Naval and its own errors, 10 to 7.

Little Harold Hamberg brought Navy its 24 to 7 victory over Pennsylvania with Bob Odell getting the lone Quaker counter; Otto Graham virtually was Northwestern's entire offense in downing Wisconsin, 41 to 0; Elroy Hirsch engineered Michigan's 23 to 6 win over Indiana and Don Kasprzak was Dartmouth's big gun in the 47 to 13 verdict over Columbia.

U. S. U. Bowl Bid Hit

Eddie Prokop and his Georgia Tech mates stopped Louisiana State's bowl boom, 42 to 7, while Texas A. & M. blanked an outmanned Southern Methodist aggregation, 22 to 0. Duke, despite the loss of a horde of naval trainees, trounced North Carolina State, 75 to 0.

There were other surprises in Saturday's results in addition to the Trojan setback. Texas Tech blazed for 28 points in the final quarter to down Texas Christian, 40 to 20; Villanova surprised Princeton 45 to 22, and Brown nosed out Yale, 21 to 20, on the two points gained from a safety.

It was a dreary weekend in the Hawkeye State. Illinois spoiled Iowa University's homecoming, 19 to 10; Missouri gave the same treatment to the Iowa State Cyclones before returning alumni, 25 to 7, and Doane College shoved Drake from the unbeaten list, 12 to 6.

Oklahoma kept pace with Missouri in the Big Six by downing Kansas, 26 to 13, while Tulsa found Oklahoma A. & M. easy, 55 to 6. Ohio State approached that score in drubbing Pittsburgh, 46 to 6.

Wake Forest caught the North Carolina Pre-Flight outfit in the midst of its reorganization and won, 20 to 12, and North Carolina mastered South Carolina, 21 to 6.

Irish Meet Wildcats

Notre Dame invales Evanston this week for its annual tussle with Northwestern before closing out its schedule against the Great Lakes Sailors and the Seahawks. Michigan bumps into hapless Wisconsin and Missouri entertains Oklahoma for the Big Six crown.

Army may have another rough afternoon with the Sampson Naval Station club, coached by Mal Stevens, and Navy comes to New York for a workout against Columbia. Penn entertains North Carolina, while Georgia Tech charges into New Orleans for Tulane's scalp.

Southern California bumps into March Field, generally regarded as a stronger team than the San Diego outfit. Texas and Texas A. & M. prep for their Thanksgiving Day meeting by playing Texas Christian and Rice, respectively.

B. C. Eagles Beat Rome Airmen, 64-0

Boston, Nov. 7 (AP).—Eddie (The Brain) Doherty perpetrated another masterpiece of ball handling black magic today as he sparked his informal Boston College eleven to a 64-0 route of the Rome (N. Y.) Army Air Base football team.

Doherty collected two of his team's 10 touchdowns with dazzling runbacks of 42 and 58 yards after intercepting Rome aerials and whipped a 37-yard spiral to Halfback Jim Cahill for a third.

Bears Paste Packers, 21-7, Near Title

Chicago, Nov. 7 (AP).—The Chicago Bears gained revenge for the only blot on their National Football League record, a 21-21 tie by the Green Bay Packers—by beating the Packers today, 21 to 7, in the slime of Wrigley Field before 43,425 damp and chilled spectators.

In passing and running to their sixth straight triumph since that opening day stalemate with Green Bay, the Bears came within two wins of clinching the Western Division championship—or one more Bear victory and a Packer defeat would do it.

Sid Luckman Star

Sid Luckman again was the major factor in compiling the Chicago margin. He broke a 7 to 7 tie in the third period with a 38-yard touchdown pass to Harry Clark—Sid's 15th scoring aerial of the season—and plunged across the goal from the 1-yard line after a 70-yard Bear march at the start of the final quarter.

Luckman also gave the ball its initial impetus when the Bears scored to catch up with the Packers, 7 to 7, midway in the second period. He completed a lateral to Ray McLean who lived up to his nickname of "Scooter" by scooting 66 yards across the goal line.

Packers Attack Stalls

The Packers, a formidable outfit in the first half, stalled sadly in the final two periods to make only one first down and complete but one aerial, after having forced the yard sticks forward 10 times in the opening two frames and connecting on five passes.

Don Hutson drew in a throw from Tony Canadeo for a 45-yard gain in the first period and downed the ball 20 yards from the Chicago goal. Canadeo then ripped off the remaining distance and Hutson's placement put the Packers ahead, 7 to 0.

Dodgers Top Cards for 1st Win, 7-0

Brooklyn, Nov. 7 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers downed the Chicago Cardinals, 7 to 0, today to break a season-long tie in the standings and leave the Cards in undisputed possession of all honors as the "Winless Wonders" of the National Football League.

The Dodgers pushed over the lone tally in the third quarter with the help of a rarely called penalty against the Cards to hit the win column and leave the woeful Windy City collection as the Loop's "losingest" ball club.

Each Lost Six Straight

Up to that point, the two clubs had been deadlocked for the doubtful honors with six straight previous defeats each this season and two scoreless quarters through half-time today.

The Brooklyns finally settled the thing, however, with a 45-yard march late in the third quarter. Dean McAdams pitched for 8 to Merle Condit and the Dodgers got 29 more when McAdams heaved to Ray Wehba and Ray lateraled to Pug Manders on the Cardinal 16.

On the next down, Manders pitched to Condit, who was standing out on the flat, but behind the line of scrimmage. Before the former Carnegie Tech back could catch the ball, however, Vaughn Stewart, the Cards' center, rushed him.

The officials called interference on Stewart and penalized the Cards half the distance to the goal line—winding up on the Chicago 8.

15 Yards, First Down

The penalty for ordinary interference, beyond the line of scrimmage, is first down at the spot of the foul, but the officials pointed out that for interference with a receiver back of the line, the "sentence" is 15 yards and first down. Since the Cardinals were inside their own 30-yard line, however, they were set back half the way to their goal line.

Taking full advantage of this break, the Brooklyns scored two plays later, with Condit going around his own left end for the marker.

Alameda Tars Tie St. Mary's Preflight, 13-13

San Francisco, Nov. 7 (AP).—The Alameda Coast Guardsmen held a favored St. Mary's Preflight eleven to a 13-13 tie in their football game today before 21,000 fans, the largest crowd to watch a contest between service teams here this season.

The Preflighters scored a few minutes after the contest opened, with former Minnesota Halfback Star Bruce Smith racing 9 yards around left end for the touchdown. The extra tally was converted.

The Coast Guardsmen evened the count in the third period by capitalizing on a punt by Smith that went out of bounds on Preflight's 30-yard marker. Gonzales Morales, Coast Guard left half, passed to Dale Halbert, right half, for the touchdown. Morales added the extra point to tie the score.

Preflight retaliated with a touchdown, after taking the ball on the Coast Guard 35. Smith passed to Ray Riddick, right end from Lowell, Mass., who caught the ball over the goal line.

The Coast Guard tied the score again in the final quarter on a 44-yard pass and touchdown run from Morales to Bill Russo, fullback.

Double Tackle, Double Trouble for L. S. U.

Although two Louisiana State tacklers are about to hit Frank Broyles (51), Georgia Tech halfback, it meant not a thing because Broyles tallied a touchdown on this very play, despite the valiant efforts of the two Bayou Boys. Giants Battle Lions To Scoreless Tie

Detroit, Nov. 7 (AP).—In rain and mud, the Detroit Lions and New York Giants played to a scoreless tie today in a National Football League game before 16,992 spectators. Detroit had three field goal attempts and New York had one as neither team got inside the 15-yard line.

The Giants got past midfield only once, in the third period when the veteran Mel Hein intercepted Bill Callihan's pass and returned 31 yards to the Detroit 20. An offside penalty moved the ball to the 15 and on fourth down Ward Cuff tried a field goal that was wide.

Augie Lio had two long-range placement tries, from behind the 32 and 42, before a fourth-period attempt from behind the 15 that sailed wide. On this drive, fireball Frankie Sinkwich returned a punt 14 yards to New York's 31 and Detroit ripped off a first down in three plays. But the Giants stamped out the running attack at this point and compelled Detroit to kick.

Detroit gained a 6-to-3 edge in first downs. Sinkwich sparked the Lions with three quick kicks or more than 50 yards in the first half and with hard-running punt returns in the last two periods. From scrimmage Frankie compiled 46 yards in 16 tries. The individual leader was Cuff with 53 yards in 12 attempts.

Because of an ankle injury, Bill Paschal, New York's top running back, got into only the last few plays.

Star Losses Blamed for Trojan Flop

Los Angeles, Nov. 7 (AP).—It took quite a bit of unconscious planning for Southern California's Trojans to build up to the point where they could blow a perfect season football record to an inspired but hardly comparable San Diego Naval Training Station outfit.

Unbeaten, untied, unscored-on, the Trojans took a 10-to-7 pasting Saturday just as many unbiased and uninterested observers predicted they might do. They did it the easiest way, by fumbling at critical junctures. At least seven promising scoring drives were stalled by loose ball handling.

The statisticians took a look at the record books after the Men of Troy had fumbled away the ball eight times and discovered Coach Jeff Cravath's boys had committed 38 such miscues in seven games. The answer is simple enough. Up to two weeks ago the Trojans acted like a first class college team.

Then the Marines called up officer candidates and four stars, Mickey McCardle, quarterback and sparkplug of the attack included, were yanked from the squad. Finesse in ball handling went along, too.

Today the Trojans are just another football team. Last week they looked very bad in beating California, 13 to 0. Saturday they were unsure of themselves. Generalship was bad, and the ball handling—well, Cravath said it was the worst he had ever seen in his years of coaching.

The defeat probably didn't change the Rose Bowl picture which still looks like a playoff between Southern California, southern division winner, and the Washington Huskies, unbeaten in the north.

Seahawks Top Marquette for 7 in Row, 46-19

Milwaukee, Nov. 7 (AP).—The Iowa Naval Preflighters covered themselves with mud, but kept their record clean today as "homecoming" Art Guepe led the Seahawks to their seventh straight victory, a 46-19 triumph over Marquette University.

Guepe, one of the touchdown twins who masterminded the Marquette Cotton Bowl squad of 1936, collected 145 yards on 14 tries and scored two touchdowns, going 68 yards for the first and 18 for the second, as he paired with Todd to give the Navy a 20-0 first-quarter lead.

Marquette dug in during the second period, with Capt. Paul Copoulos lugging successive kick offs 82 and 85 yards for touchdowns in brilliant fashion. Fullback Hal Eigner plunged for another and Harvey Baerwald added the point, but the Navy came back with Higgins slashing through for one counter and Guepe tossing to MacGregor for another.

The third period was a scoreless tussle, but Marquette gave the Navy one to open the final stanza when Johnny Rudan fumbled on his 12. The ball rolled back over the goal line, where Bob Carlson pounced on it. A sustained drive gave the Seahawks their last counter in the final minutes, Hoppe scoring from the 6.

The visitors' T-model seemed to travel at will, rolling up 470 yards rushing against Marquette's 46.

Rough Game Marred by Penalties

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Philadelphia, Nov. 7.—The winning ways of the Washington Redskins were brought to a sudden end today in Shibe Park, but only after the professional champions and Philadelphia-Pittsburgh Eagles packed a million dollars' worth of action into a 14-to-14 tie before 32,541 fans, the city's largest pro grid crowd.

The tie, first in a long series of thrilling games between the Eastern rivals, snapped the Redskins' streak of 13 consecutive league victories over two years and left the National League without an unbeaten, untied team.. The deadlock was not harmful to the 'Skins' drive for the Eastern Division title, however, as the Eagles were in second place and the Giants, in third, were tied by Detroit.

The bruising encounter was marked by occasional flareups between the keyed-up players of both squads, harsh words, many penalties and hard, vicious tackling with a tendency to "pile on" by both clubs. Sammy Baugh had two jerseys torn from his back in the first half.

Zimmerman Looks Good

Former Redskin Roy Zimmerman, traded to the Eagles after three years of futility with the Redskins as Baugh's understudy, made good in his first showing against his former teammates who held little respect for his play. The former San Jose College back tossed a 35-yard aerial for the tying touchdown and booted both extra points. He handled the ball on every Eagle offensive maneuver and took care of the kicking, one of which was blocked and backfired into a Redskin touchdown.

Baugh, rushed off his feet, tossed to the ground and manhandled for one of the first times in his seven years in pro football, watched the chargin Eagle forwards shove the Redskin line like a swaying gate and although Sammy completed 15 of 30 passes his yardage gain was only 147 yards.

Baugh completed his only touchdown pass of the game in the second period, a 15-yard heave to Wilbur Moore who took the ball standing between the goal posts and tied the score after the Eeagles took the lead on Larry Cabrelli's 30-yard runback of an intercepted Baugh pass.

Throughout a crazy third period marked by five intercepted passes, a fumble, two beautiful runs, one for each team, called back due to penalties, and several player square-offs, the teams remained tied at 7-7.

Kick Blocked

The Redskins had been threatening to block a Zimmerman kick all day and they finally did in the fourth period, Bob Masterson's leap deflected the ball to the ground and Lou Rymkus dragged and pushed the ball for some 12 yards before he finally fell on it over the goal. Bob Mastern added both extra points.

As in the second period, when the Redskins scored less than 3 minutes after the Eagles broke a scoreless deadlock, the Eagles came from behind in the fourth, less than two minutes after the Redskin score. Zimmerman had sent Tony Bova to the right for a first down pass gain and he then sent Ernie Steele to the left and Steele raced 35 yards to score, free of Redskins until Bob Seymour knocked him out of the end zone as he passed the red flag.

Field Goal Attempts Fail

Three times the Redskins tried field goals, although the third attempt served a double purpose. Twice during the first period Masterson took long-shot boots from 34 and 31 yards out but both were wide and short. With the score tied 14-all in the fourth quarter, Joe Aguirre tried a placement from his own 45 on fourth down but the Redskins were satisfied when the kick went out of bounds on the Eagle 16-yard line, which is all they could have expected from a punt.

The first quarter was peaceful

Locals Miss Tie Game in Final Period

By Tom Moore McBride

Clarence Adams, the speedy Negro halfback of the Boys Town, Nebr., team, li ed up to advance notice and snatched a ball game away from game Gonzaga, which threatened to make a tie of the 12-6 score right up to the final minute of play, yesterday at Griffith Stadium.

In addition to making one of the touchdowns for Boys Town, making consistent gains throughout the game and handling interference with finesse, Ad ms broke up the pass play that would have meant a touchdown for Gonzaga just before the game ended.

An enthusiastic crowd of 12,000 attended the charity event and when the game ended swept over the field to mob the Boys Town team with congratulations.

Boys Town looked good early in the first period as Adams went through the line for two first downs to midfield, but Gonzaga recovered a fumble and Angelo Zanger immediately went through the Boys Town line for 9 yards. Joe Hickson took over at that point and made a long run around right end to the Boys Town 10. Murphy took it to the 2-yard line and Hickson bucked it over from there.

Boys Town Scores First

Boys Town took the kick on its 20 and scored from there. Adams started it off by taking it through the line to the 30. Then came the play of the game. With perfect interference Clarence went through the line again, got into the open and made it all the way to the Gonzaga 20. Leo Vigil was waiting in the end zone on the next play, a pass from Dickie Thomas that caught the Eagles flatfooted.

A line buck for the extra point failed.

Paul Hall's interception of a Gonzaga pass on its 45 in the third period set up the march for the winning score. Adams and Thomas made short gains, then Thomas took it the long way around the end for 14 yards. Dickie had a clear field ahead of him and the touchdown seemed right there, but Chester Coakley came up from nowhere for a hard tackle from behind. Then Vigil went off tackle for another 12, bringing the ball to the 10, and Adams took it over from there on a sweet plunge through the center of the line.

Came the last quarter, and Gonzaga set to work to rectify matters anent that 12-6 score. The Boys Town lads were doing a job of holding, however, until the last four minutes of play when the Eagles began to fly over their heads. Zanger started it off with a lateral from Hickson that carried Gonzaga across the mid stripe and to the Boys Town 40.

Eagles Reach the 25

Another, two plays later, same combination, brought it to the 25. Hickson took a short one from Zanger there for another five and the next one was incomplete.

Then came the heartbreaker for Gonzaga. Chester Coakley was in the clear when Hickson tossed another long one right at him, but Adams was in between and tipped it with his fingers. Coakley had to reach for it then, and it bobbled in his hands for a moment, then bounded away. To make everything definite, that was fourth down and there was just a minute to play. It was a simple matter for Boys Town to put it under wraps then.

'Skins, Eagles Battle To 14-14 Deadlock

enough but at the start of the second Bob Seymour became ruffled when he took a knee in the ribs and the Eagles tried to steal the ball. A few minutes later the Redskins were penalized 15 yards for roughing the kicker, with Willie Wilkin protesting the penalty, called against him. From this point the defensive play had a sting.

Zimmerman's best kick of the day, a high punt which sailed out of bounds over the 4-yard line, put the Redskins in trouble and set up the first Eagle score. From his end zone Baugh crossed the Eagles by completing a 25-yard pass to Masterson, but his next pass, a flipped flank pass for Seymour, did not find its mark as Cabrelli rushed in, grabbed the ball and casually strolled 30 yards for a score. The time was nine minutes of the second period.

Moore Drops Pass

Baugh's 74-yard quick kick, a partially blocked Zimmerman kick and two penalties against the Eagles helped the 'Skins knot the count at 11:50 of the second period. Moore dropped a potential touchdown pass from Baugh, but the officials gave the ball to the Redskins on the Eagle 20-yard line for interference. A 5-yard offside penalty placed it on the 15 and after Hinkle blocked an end-zone pass for Aguirre, Moore shook off his interference and raced between the posts to grab Sammy's pass for the score.

Seymour, playing in the place of Andy Farkas, who played only a few moments of the fourth period due to a leg injury, made the most brilliant run of the day on a punt return early in the second half. Big Bob, running low and with power in every step, marked off 57 yards, only to have the play called back due to clipping by Dick Farman before Seymour was under way. Farman bitterly protested the penalty.

Then in quick succession, Zimmerman intercepted a Baugh pass, Baugh intercepted a Zimmerman pass, Eagle Tom Miller recovered a Seymour fumble, Baugh intercepted another Zimmerman pass, and after the Redskins kicked Seymour intercepted a Zimmerman pass. Before the third period was over Ben Kish recovered a Bob Masterson fumble after Masterson took a Baugh pass.

At the outset of the fourth period, Eagle Charlie Gauer raced 57 yards on a screen pass play only to have the play called back for holding. From this point, his own 22-yard line, Zimmerman tried the kick which was blocked and enabled the Redskins to move ahead.

'Skins Threaten

After Zimmerman's pass completion spree which tied the score, the Redskins came back to threaten. With Ray Hare and Farkas carrying the ball and Baugh completing short passes, the 'Skins moved to the Eagle 30, but here Conti tossed Baugh for an 8-yard loss and after a penalty Aguirre tried the placement, fourth down with 23 yards to go for a first.

The Eagles couldn't gain, kicked, and the Redskins roared back but Graves intercepted Baugh's desperate pass from the Eagle 27 just before the gun.

Wilbur Moore played another of his great defensive games for the Redskins, and Baugh fell into the spirit of the rough game and was a defensive standout himself, with Rymkus, Farman and others.

Young Murray 'Wuz Robbed' In Terp Game

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 7 (AP).—The statisticians almost pulled a fast one on Jack Murray, right halfback for the University of Virginia Cavaliers and son of head Coach Frank Murray, in the game with the University of Maryland here Saturday.

The story from the Cavalier shower room goes something like this:

Young Murray was chided by his mother for not having scored a touchdown during the season prior to the Maryland game, and the son dutifully promised to make at least two during the game. Well, the statisticians noted that the halfback fumb'ed the ball on Virginia's first touchdown and gave the score to De Buskey, the quarterback. The true situation, however, was that Murray had lugged the ball across for the score before the fumble, and therefore should have been credited with the score.

To complte his promise to his mother, Jack carried the pigskin across for the third Cavalier score, and the statisticians game him full credit for this one.

(Statisticians alibi: You'll never know how difficult it is to read the numbers on a besmeared jersey until you've tried it from the press box.)

Navy Points For Columbia And Army

By William O. Varn

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 7 (AP).—Back on the winning track again with a decisive victory over Pennsylvania's previously undefeated Quakers, Navy's Midshipmen came out of that gridiron struggle in good shape and high spirits, ready today to sharpen their attack for final games with Columbia and Army.

In trouncing by a 24-to-7 score the Pennsylvania team that had battled Army to a 13-13 tie the previous Saturday, the Sailors were far from the smooth attack displayed in five straight wins before their defeat by Notre Dame.

Not until the last two periods did the habitually slow-starting Middies get up steam to smash the undefeated record of the Quakers, and then they seemed to do it the hard way until that final touchdown. There a brilliant forward lateral, Hal Hamberg to Roe Johnston to Hillis Hume, completely baffled the Penn eleven, just as it had crossed up Duke's Blue Devils.

The Navy line was nearer early season form—an encouraging sign after its lethargic display against Notre Dame—and thoroughly outplayed and outsmarted Penn.

Again little Hall Hamberg was the spark that fired Navy and again he turned in an exhibition of personal brilliance, figuring in every Navy touchdown. His 20-yard pass to Capt. Al Channel on the Penn 2-yard line set up the first touchdown and his great 48-yard punt return through the Penn team to the 12-yard marker made the second one possible.

Hamberg scored the third touchdown himself after Bobby Jenkins and Vic Finos had battered deep into Penn territory, and his aerial to Johnston on the Penn 10 and a subsequent lateral accounted for the fourth score.

For the first time this season Finos missed the uprights in placekicks afterward. Prior to the Notre Dame game he had kicked eight straight, and against the Irish the failure to add the extra point was not his, because the ball was fumbled and he never had a chance to kick. Against Pennsylvania he missed all of his four attempts. He made up for that, though, with a fine exhibition of line smashing that heartened Navy fans.

Jenkins was leading ground gainer against Penn with 83 yards in 14 tries, with Ben Martin accounting for 55 yards in 13 attempts and Finos the same yardage in 17 efforts. Hamberg carried the ball 12 times for 36 yards and Hillis Hume 11 times for 35 yards.

Altogether the Middies rolled up 300 yards, 244 on the ground and 56 in the air. Hamberg tossed only seven passes and completed three for all the overhead gains in a game where Navy's running attack was powerful enough to win. The Sailors amassed 18 first downs against 3 for Penn. Penn completed 3 of 9 passes.

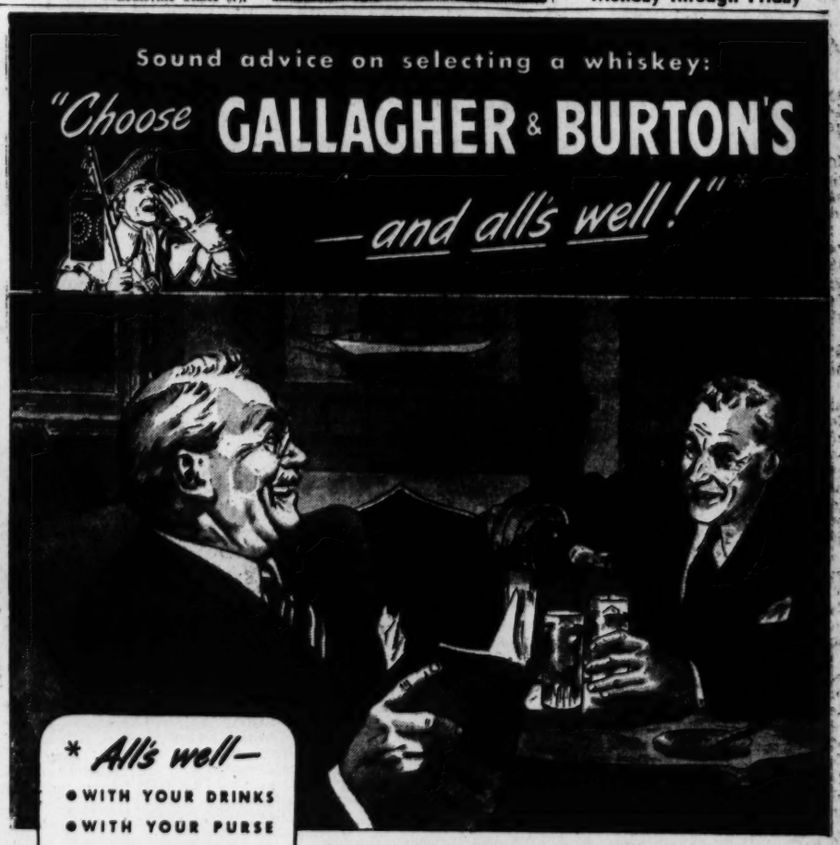
"Choose GALLAGHER & BURTON'S —and all's well!"


* All's well—
• WITH YOUR DRINKS
• WITH YOUR PURSE
• WITH YOUR REPUTATION AS A HOST
Mr. Gallagher: "There are many theories on how to lick inflation."
Mr. Burton: "Well, one practical way is for every consumer to refuse to pay one cent above the fixed OPA ceiling prices—and that includes the price on Gallagher & Burton's, too!"
Experts disagree on economics—but there is practically unanimous agreement on Gallagher & Burton's as one of the great blends of all time. This whiskey enjoys a reputation for dependability dating back to 1877.
In spite of shortages due to the war, keep asking for Gallagher & Burton's until new supplies arrive. OPA ceiling prices for this city are:

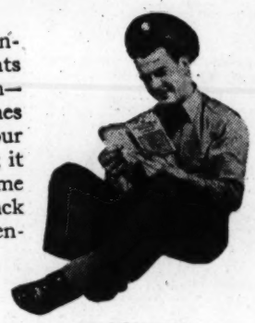
Letters, From Members of Our Armed Forces In All Parts of the World, Tell How Much POCKETBOOKS Mean to Them

From the Australian Jungle



"Somewhere in the depths of an Australian jungle, isolated from civilization, where sanity fights a feeble battle with Time and the blazing Sun—are we. A few year-old newspapers and magazines are all that trickle through. Then one day your POCKET BOOK edition of 'The Door' turned up; it was as if our parched dreams of ice-cubes came true! Worn, soft—almost pulverized, and black with grime, this literary gem is still handed, tenderly, from tent to tent to be read and re-read countless times."

—S/Sgt. F. P., Australia

From Alaska

"Up here in Alaska—somewhere in Alaska, as the communiques would have it—books are most avidly sought and digested. Your POCKET BOOKS are by far the most popular ones here."

—Pvt. G. J., Alaska

From the Navy

"POCKET BOOKS are extremely popular in the Navy. It seems that every sailor, marine, and officer, has one 'stowed' someplace on his person. They certainly make the war a lot more pleasant."

—Ens. R. P., USS Enterprise

"The Print Is Read Right Off the Paper"

"POCKET BOOKS have been a great source of relaxation to us all. We take tender loving care of each book, and when it is finally discarded, the pages are worn through, and the print has literally been read right off the paper. You are surely doing your part though the grand publications that we are receiving."—Cpl. H. T., San Francisco, Cal.

From Guadalcanal

"The fellows out here find it quite boring at times and since a few of the POCKET BOOKS have come ashore they are eagerly grabbed for."—Pfc. E. G., U. S. Marine Corps, Guadalcanal

"Made the Long Hours of Waiting Bearable"

"I want to tell you how much my buddies and I have appreciated your books. One of us would buy 4 or 5 on a trip in town. Then each one would be carried by different fellows. Sort of a walking library as it were. It made the long hours of waiting (for which armies are notorious) bearable."—Pvt. J. S., Camp Edwards, Mass.

From North Africa

"We have derived great pleasure from reading a few of your pocket editions. We would greatly appreciate it if you would send us your latest editions. You will never realize how much pleasure and comfort this will bring us."—Pvt. N. P., North Africa

MILLIONS of 25 cent POCKET BOOKS have been pouring from the presses. But the supply still cannot keep up with the demand. Shortages of paper and other limitations mean that thousands of people who want to buy POCKET BOOKS cannot get them. This includes members of our armed forces to whom (as the letters on this page indicate) these books mean a very great deal. No matter where our forces go, they are looking to POCKET BOOKS for entertainment, education, relaxation. These pocket-size books, originally planned for the coat pockets and handbags of Americans at peace, have gone along with fighting Americans everywhere!

If you have been a regular buyer of POCKET BOOKS you can help to relieve this shortage—and at the same time get for yourself, free, the POCKET BOOKS of your choice. Below you will read the special offer being made for the next 30 days. Your immediate action—if you have any used and already-read POCKET BOOKS that are in good condition—will make more of these books available both for civilians and for members of the armed forces whose large orders from Post Exchanges, U.S.O. Clubs, and other service centers are impossible for us to keep up with!

How to Trade-In Used POCKETBOOKS To Get New Titles Free

If you are a regular buyer of 25 cent POCKET BOOKS, you probably now have a number of used copies in good condition. You have read them. But thousands of others (both civilians and members of the armed forces) have not read them—and would be glad to get them! Therefore—

If you will send us your used POCKET BOOKS that are in good condition, WE WILL GIVE YOU ONE NEW POCKET BOOK FREE for every three POCKET BOOKS you "trade in" on this offer.

SEND NO MONEY—NOW OR LATER!
Here's All You Do:

Mail your used POCKET BOOKS to us. Mark the package "Book Postage." The book-postage rate is only 3¢ a pound. You can mail an average of 3 of the lighter (or 2 of the heavier) POCKET BOOKS for each 3¢ stamp. Put your name and address on the back of this package—so we can credit YOU with the number of books you send in! (Or, if more convenient, cut out the shipping label below, write your name and address on it, and paste it on your package.)

Then also send the coupon below in a separate envelope. Indicate on it the title numbers of the new books you want. These will be sent postpaid to you at once, on the exchange basis of one new POCKET BOOK for every three used copies you send to us.

Which New POCKETBOOKS Do You Want?

Go over the books in your library at home. You will probably find quite a few POCKET BOOKS which you have already read but which are still in good condition. Get these POCKET BOOKS together in a package and send it to us.

Also check over the list of 25 cent POCKET BOOKS at the left. There are probably quite a few which you have meant to buy. Now you can get them free—one for every three POCKET BOOKS you turn in. Just jot down on the coupon the title numbers of the new POCKET BOOKS you want. By doing this promptly you will be helping more people to share in the limited number of POCKET BOOKS we can produce at this time—both for civilians and members of our armed forces who are eager to get them.

Do This At Once

This offer can be held open for only 30 days from the present date. So mail your package as soon as possible. Be sure that the books you send are in good condition. Your free books will be brand new and will be sent to you postpaid.

To share the pleasures of POCKET BOOKS in these limited-production times send your package (and the coupon in a separate envelope) at once!

The Federal Diary

is increasing its production of mail bags to take care of overseas mail. An extra 300,000 will be made this year . . . And the Bureau of Engraving and Printing underestimated by about 40 per cent the number of Government checks that would be written this year. It had to go back and ask Congress for $252,000 to finance the printing of 100,685,137 additional checks, making a total of 356,073,012 . . . Paperwork in Treasury's personnel office apparently will continue to lag. The House refused its request for funds to hire a dozen additional employes to wipe out the backlog. The House, however, told Personnel Director Ted Wilson to borrow the employes from other Treasury units.

ADD EMBARRASSING MOMENTS: Carl N. Lovegren, a big California packer, is the new head of the canned fruits and vegetables division at the Office of Price Administration. The other day he was asked for a report on a memo from the Nation Canners Association which raised the roof about some OPA regulation. The association's memo was based on a letter Lovegren had written as a businessman. . . . The House Ways and Means Committee is shooting at the New York newspaper PM and Marshall Field, its owner, by a provision in the new tax bill which has the effect of forbidding deductions for income tax purposes of heavy losses sustained in any business for more than five years. . . . WPB Boss Donald Nelson was tremendously impressed by the Russians and all they had accomplished.

A merger of War Production Board with War Manpower is being rumored in high places. The consolidation has been discussed, but apparently it has got no further than that. Manpower is now the paramount problem. Materials is secondary. But in order to increase production, WPB officials must work on manpower problems—for example, Deputy Administrator Charles Wilson's recent work with the aircraft industry. Moreover, Clinton Golden and other labor leaders work with both WPB and WMC. A merger of the two war agencies would be a logical step and it would wipe out what duplication and confusion now exist between the agencies.

Internal Revenue Bureau will show one of the largest personnel increases, in terms of percentage, of any Federal agency during this fiscal year. Assistant Administrator Harold Graves has told Congress the bureau will add 13,125 new employes this year; 11,204 in the field and 1921 in the District. More than 4000 already have been hired. Graves explained that the bureau's paper work had reached mountainous proportions; that it would receive more than 111 million returns from taxpayers during the year. Despite the huge new staff, the cost of collecting taxes has decreased steadily. In 1939 it cost $1.39 to collect every $100 in taxes. Graves predicts the figure will be 35 cents this year, the lowest since 1918.

Both Internal Revenue and War Shipping Administration are seeking men mustered out of the armed services as employes. WSA already has 75 it was able to get through the veterans' placement service. The men are being trained to examine ship construction . . . Jurisdictional disputes between the food distribution and food production divisions of War Foods Administration may be resolved shortly by merging the two units. In fact, the chances are excellent that the entire Agriculture Department may be overhauled and another attempt made at streamlining it. Assistant President Byrnes is now reported to be actively working on the problem. . . . Chairman Cannon of the House Appropriations Committee speaking: "Marc Sheild knows more about parliamentary budgets and procedure than any man who ever served the Congress in any capacity. He's one of the keymen in Government." A deserved tribute to the committee clerk.

Workshop Offers 'Righteous' Jazz At Press Club

Jazz, of the most "righteous" sort, will come to the National Press Club tonight in the form of Billie Holiday, tops among sophisticated blues singers.

The concert, which begins at 8:45 o'clock in the auditorium, is sponsored by the Washington Workshop, Government employes' recreation group.

Accompanying Billie Holiday will be Eddie Heywood, whose trio also will dish up some jive for Capital cats. Miss Holiday, who grew up in Baltimore, first sang with Benny Goodman when she was only 15. She has also vocalized with Artie Shaw and, as Lady Day, with Paul Whiteman. Currently she soles at the Onyx Club in New York City.

Leaders Here Sought for War Tasks

Civilian War Services, organized to meet "any homefront emergency" in the crucial war months to come, will set out today to recruit more than 10,000 block leaders when a special information center will be opened at the Washington Gas Light Co. lobby, 10th and H sts. nw., at 1 p. m.

The recruiting campaign for the block leaders, who are to be trained in taking care of neighborhood problems like child care, war job recruiting, victory garden and carsharing programs, and other wartime projects, will be carried on from November 15 until December 1.

In the meantime, the appointment of a District Inspection Committee to pass on nominations for the new OCD National Security Award has been announced by the commissioners.

The award is presented as recognition of "outstanding achievements of essential facilities in protecting the safety of their employes, plants and production schedules from air raids, fire, sabotage, and accidents."

Col. J. D. Arthur, assistant engineer commissioner, is chairman of the committee which includes Sylvan King, assistant chief air raid warden in charge of industrial establishments, Fire Marshal R. C. Roberts, and Porter M. Lumpkins, executive officer, District Department of Civilian Defense.

Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, civilian defense director, said that companies already nominated for the awards, which will be made by the U. S. Office of Civilian Defense, include the C. & P. Telephone Co., the Washington Terminal, National Airport, and the Capital Transit Co.

$734,500 Will Balance Fund Books

While disease races to epidemic proportions in Nazi-dominated lands, the Community War Fund is still seeking $734,500 from Washington pockets—approximately the gift destined for rehabilitating the health of our Allies through local agencies of United Nations War Relief.

Reports of threatening health conditions abroad, wherever the Axis hand has slaughtered, were revealed yesterday by Herbert L. Willett, jr., executive director of the fund here, who characterized them as "just some of the reasons why the people of Washington must put over our Community War Fund goal of $4,800,000."

Matter of Survival

Willett detailed stories of suffering as related by member agencies of the fund, citing that neither these agencies nor the people they care for can survive unless Washington answers the fund "brotherhood" appeal with generous donations.

Belgium War Relief Society ($4063 needed here from the fund quota): civilian death rate has risen 25 per cent over prewar years; one-third of the youth population is tubercular; shortages of milk and vegetables have resulted in rickets, with infants and expectant mothers hardest-hit.

Queen Wilhelmina Fund ($2500 needed): shortages of medicine, hospital facilities and doctors, leading to an epidemic in communicable diseases.

French Relief Fund, Inc. ($27,288 needed): vast increases in typhoid, dysentery and virus pneumonia, as a result of lack of fuel, food shortages and decreased clinical and medical facilities.

United Czechoslovak Relief ($2925 needed): lower health standards due to the long strain of underfeeding, with starvation a constant threat.

Final Major Effort

These are some of the reasons why Willet pleads, "Don't put it off until it is too late. We need your gift now."

Meanwhile, workers for the fund prepared this morning to reach every possible contributor to send the campaign beyond the $4,800,000 mark in time for the next report meeting of all divisions on Wednesday in the "Hall of Flags," U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

To garner further support for the Government division, Chester Bowles, OPA administrator, will lead a meeting of 4500 employes of that agency today at 4:55 p. m. in front of the Second st. entrance to the building. R. R. Brooks, director of the labor office, will be master of ceremonies, and guest speakers will include Pvt. Henry J. Jubinville, a patient at Walter Reed's Forest Glen Hospital after losing a hand in the battle of Tunisia and Willett.

POSTLUDE

National Symphony Starts Season to Delight Audience

By Ray C. B. Brown

Hans Kindler conducts the National Symphony Orchestra on Sunday afternoon in Constitution Hall. Soloist: Egon Petri. Program: Concerto Grosso in D minor, Opus 3, No. 11 (Vivaldi-Bach-Kindler), Symphony in C major, "Salomon" No. 1 (Haydn), Czech Rhapsody (Weinberger), Piano Concerto, Opus 39 (Busoni).

Congratulations are due to everyone concerned in the concert with which the National Symphony Orchestra began the Sunday afternoon series of its 13th season. Program and performance were pleasurable from start to finish; Hans Kindler conducted with a stimulating blend of command and persuasion; Egon Petri was masterfully authoritative in his reading of the Busoni piano concerto, and the rejuvenated orchestra played with admirable consentience and verve. The other element essential to the reciprocity upon which music thrives was present also: a large and enthusiastic audience.

Dr. Kindler took a good stride forward as a transcriber with his arrangement of Vivaldi's Concerto Grosso in D minor in the Bach version for organ. Dealing with two factors, the ideas of the composer and their modification through the temperament of Bach, he welded them excellently in an instrumentation that preserves the organ tone while emphasizing the virility and drive of Vivaldi's style. Powerfully motivated and richly colored, it is a stunning piece that should take an immediate place in the general orchestral repertoire.

The Haydn symphony selected was the C major from the Salomon set, one that has not been played threadbare. A fresh Haydn symphony is always a delight because it presents the composer in a fresh light unshadowed by reminiscences. One was struck by two things in the C major—the outdoor quality of the music, so different from Mozart's courtly atmosphere, and the anticipations of Beethoven, particularly in the adagio movement.

The first local performance of Busoni's piano concerto was fortunate in having Egon Petri as the exponent of the solo part, for he was not only a pupil of the composer, but also his friend and associate. The work needs on a first hearing just such an interpreter, for it is not the kind of music that is readily understood. Indeed, apart from his piano transcriptions of Bach, Busoni is still a stranger to the average listener. A solitary thinker, he made no concessions toward popularity, and it will be some time yet before his achievements are generally recognized.

The concerto, even truncated as it was by the omission of the last movement with male chorus, embodies all features of his art—his aloofness, nobility, delight in the pure beauty of design, mystical feeling and straining toward an almost unattainable perfection. The effort is magnificent, and one is left with the impression of an intelligence powerful and keen working through a poetic temperament.

Covenant-First Presbyterian Church presents the Chancel Choir in a performance of Gabriel Faure's Requiem Mass on Sunday night. Minister of music and director, Theodore Schaefer. Solo quartet, Bernice Rickman Gordon, Henrietta Bapper Plum, George Barritt and Gordon Barnes. Assisting artist, Dorothy Remson, harp.

A reverent audience of goodly proportions assembled in Covenant-First Presbyterian Church last evening when the requiem mass of Gabriel Urbain Faure was sung by the chancel choir under the direction of Theodore Schaefer. This beautiful work, restrained and poignant, was presented by Mr. Schaefer on a previous occasion, and one appreciated the opportunity to hear it again. There are requiems that surpass it in power, in dramatic contrasts and in structural dimensions, but none that has so intimate and tender an appeal.

The music in its softly luminous quality and its clarity of design reminds one of the painting of Puvis de Chavannes. It glows with personal feeling and strives for no emotional effects; it breathes a spirit of devotion resigned to suffering and certain of eventual peace.

Piano Recitals

A large audience in the Pan American Union's Hall of the Americas heard Frederick Bloch, native Bohemian pianist, and professor at the Central University of Quito, Ecuador, give a program of South American music yesterday afternoon. Five countries of our sister continent were represented: Ecuador by Jose Ignacio Canelos, Pedro P. Traversari, and Cristobal Ojeda; Peru by Pablo Chavez Aguilar; Guatemala by Ricardo Castilla; Colombia by Julio Florez, and Bolivia by Francisco Chavez.

Their compositions were described as music "for the piano utilizing indigenous melodies." The description led one to expect material of a distinct native flavor. Some was. In more of it, however, the "indigenous melodies" were difficult to distinguish, hidden as they were by compositional display. In general, the music was marked by simplicity of expression and emotional warmth. It was played sympathetically and competently by Mr. Bloch.

Alexander Sklarevski, pianist and teacher at the Peabody Conservatory of Music in Baltimore, played last night for an attentive and enthusiastic audience overflowing the National Gallery of Art's East Garden Court.

Servicemen and civilians sitting on the Mellon marble floors when chairs and standing space had been filled reminded one of newspaper descriptions of the London Gallery where Myra Hess has been playing concerts for a music-hungry war populace.

The program, consisting of familiar compositions, was played in two parts. The first included Gluck's D minor melody, Rameau's The Hen, Caprice on "Alceste" melodies played with particular freshness and gaiety, and the Beethoven E flat major sonata, opus 81A. For the second portion Mr. Sklarevski offered the poetic Griffis' "The Fountains of Acqua Poala," Shostakovitch's Prelude in C sharp minor, Debussy's l'Isle Jayeuse and the Chopin group which included the tremendous F sharp minor polonaise. The artist, in excellent form, played with spontaneity and finish. N.F.

Convalescent Fighters to Have Art Courses Here

Art courses for soldiers, sailors and Marines convalescing in Army and Navy hospitals in the Washington area will open soon under the auspices of the Red Cross, it was announced yesterday.

Mrs. Cass Canfield, 3201 P st. nw., vice chairman of Volunteer Special Services in charge of the new project, said last night:

"Embroidery is one of the most popular of all the courses taught in the hospitals of many large cities where the art project is now underway.

"Prize for one of the best pieces of embroidery in one hospital went to a wounded man who had been a riveter before going into service."

Capt. John P. Whiteney, 43, USN, of 1726 Massachusetts ave. nw., yesterday grappled with and captured a man ransacking a trunk belonging to Mrs. Whitney. The man, a Negro, was being held at No. 3 Police Precinct on an open charge.

The officer told police he and his wife were in process of moving from the apartment and had left the door open while taking baggage out. Upon his return he found the man rifling a trunk. While the naval officer held the marauder, Mrs. Whitney called police.

Wallace at Chapel Dedication

Wallace Talks At Chapel Dedication

By Robert Tate Allan

Vice President Wallace yesterday declared that treatment of other nations in "the spirit of democratic Christianity" must be the foundation of peace.

"We must make our religion practical," he said at dedication exercises for the Irving O. Ball Memorial Chapel at Foundry Methodist Church, 16th and P sts. nw.

"In our relations with China, for example, we must act in such a way as to enhance the material as well as the spiritual well being of her people," he went on. "So doing will not only be of spiritual advantage to ourselves, will not only do much to prevent war, but will give us more material prosperity than we can otherwise enjoy. And in saying this, I do not speak in the missionary spirit as a forerunner of a new imperialism."

Christianity Is Practical

Mr. Ball, who died January 31, 1941, at the age of 76, was for many years proprietor of the old Hamilton Hotel. He was an active layman of Foundry Methodist Church for half a century and chairman of the official board for 20 years.

Later in his message Wallace said that "Christianity is not stargazing or foolish idealism," and said that when applied on a global scale, "it is intensely practical."

"Bread cast upon the waters does return," he assured. "National friendships are remembered. Help to starving people is not soon forgotten."

"We of the United States who now have the greatest opportunity that ever came to any people do not wish to impose upon any other race or to thrust our money or technical experts or ways of thought on those who desire them," continued Wallace. "But we do believe that if we measure up to the responsibility which Providence has placed on our shoulder, we shall be called on for help by many peoples who admire us. When we respond to this cry for help, we shall be manifesting not only a Christian spirit, but also obeying a fundamental law of life."

U. S. Must Help Other Nations

In urging a demonstration of the practicality of our religion, Wallace said:

"We must extend a helping hand to China and India; we must be firm and just with Prussia; we must deal honestly and fairly with Russia and be tolerant and even helpful as she works out her economic problems in her own way; we must prove that we ourselves can give an example in our American democratic way, of full employment and full production for the benefit of the common man."

Wallace spoke in the sanctuary of the new chapel, whose stained-glass windows depict "The Four Freedoms." On one of the windows is a figure of Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, who once attended Foundry Church while touring America. On another window is a figure of Abraham Lincoln and a reproduction of his membership certificate in the Missionary Society of the old Foundry Methodist Church, which once stood at 14th and G sts. nw., on the site of the present Colorado Building. While it is not known where Lincoln actually held church membership, he is said to have attended the old Foundry Church frequently.

Introduced By Dr. Harris

Wallace was introduced by Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, Foundry pastor and chaplain of the United States Senate. Other participants in the dedication service were Arthur S. Flemming, a Civil Service Commissioner and lay leader of Foundry Church; Harry O. Hine, chairman of the church's board of trustees, and the Rev. Richard W. Buckingham, associate pastor of Foundry Church.

Leaders of the dedication marched with Vice President Wallace into the new chapel after the morning service, with the choir leading the procession.

Twelve United States Senators participated in last night's phase of the chapel dedication, including the formal unveiling of the chapel's stained-glass windows of "The Four Freedoms."

Three Senators Speak

They were Senators Thomas of Utah, Revercomb, West Virginia; Gillette, Iowa; Wiley, Wisconsin; O'Daniel, Texas; Brewster, Maine; Hill, Alabama; Connally, Texas; Ferguson, Michigan; Truman, Missouri; Burton, Ohio, and Willis, Indiana. Senators Wiley and O'Daniel spoke on "The Need for Spiritual Undergirding in These Testing Days," and Senator Brewster discussed "The Work of the Chaplains as I Saw Them on the Far-Flung Battle Lines."

One of the features of the memorial chapel is a tiny auxiliary chapel in which a painting, "The Defense of Man," was exhibited during yesterday's service. The painting depicts a soldier kneeling in battle before a figure of Christ, its theme being fighting for God and country. It is the work of Pvt. Benn Lewis, an Army private at Fort Myer, who was cited by the Army Chaplains' Corps at the recent Back the Attack war show for his paintings of chaplains.

Bird Show Held Despite Transit Lack

Despite transportation difficulties that cut deeply into their ranks, 161 cage birds were arrayed yesterday at the Hamilton Hotel by the National Capitol Canary Club.

Interest of local breeders in development of a red canary was responsible for the large section of birds with coloring ranging from a dull burnt orange to a bright apricot. A true red canary has not yet been bred though persistent bird fanciers here are still hoping that the brilliant plumage of the red Siskin, a graceful little bird with wild notes from South American marshes, may be mated with an American canary to produce real scarlet.

This year's show fell considerably below last year's 200 birds. One exhibitor lugged four bird cages from Baltimore on the coach of an overcrowded train and another saved enough gasoline ration coupons to drive his 18 exhibits from Lansdowne, Pa.

G. E. Letner, manager of the show, explained that the color bred section was the largest except for the chopper or the familiar American canary. Washington led all other Eastern cities except Boston in color bred birds, according to C. A. Schell, an inspector of the Philadelpha Telephone Co., who visited shows last year in New York, Baltimore, Trenton and Philadelphia.

The bird show took on a patriotic phase in the awarding of prizes this year. Most of the 70 prizes were war stamps, with a $5 stamp for the best bird in the show going to Shell for his border fancy canary. Mrs. Maude Anderson, president of the local club, won a $3 war stamp for the second best bird in the show. The Atherton Trophy for the best bird bred by a club member went to Letner for his variegated border fancy, and the Smith Trophy went to Mrs. Clara Mahoney, 4906 Seventh st. nw. for her Washington Fancy bird.

Federation of Citizens to Win D.C. Suffrage, Wender Predicts

The Federation of Citizens Associations will bring suffrage to the District, Harry S. Wender, newly elected president of the group, predicted last night. He said that the body would stand behind every movement to that end.

As he mapped plans for the coming year, pledging all-out effort of the citizens committee to alleviate war-aggravated problems, he asserted that "We will nail home some form of District suffrage."

Wender disclosed that a special meeting of the federation will be held November 20 to hear reports of the local suffrage committee on the McCarran bill and similar measures, adding, "We will begin action then." Support of the District Delegate bill has already been authorized.

A "Better Job" This Year

"We've done a real job during the past year," Wender said proudly, "and this year, now that we're better organized and geared on a wartime basis, we'll do an even better job."

Although the federation received its greatest support from member associations this year, Wender hopes to make the federation even stronger during his second term as president, he said.

Housing will be one of the major local problems to be studied by the federation, which, Wender said, has supported rehabilitation of slum areas and slum clearance in the past. Under current consideration is the 100 million dollar low-cost housing program proposed by John Ihlder, executive officer of the National Capital Housing Authority.

Temporary Housing Opposed

"I am absolutely opposed to any more temporary housing," Wender declared, however. "Such properties have no practical value after the war and become a wasted investment. It's a crime that so much has been spent on temporary housing which could have gone into permanent homes for lower-paid workers."

Wender said that the federation will fight for appointment of a people's counsel, a post which has remained vacant. He said money was appropriated for the office last year, and enlistment of a large corps of block leaders was undertaken in an effort to develop the civilian war services program.

Driver Taken In 85-MPH Auto Chase

A 20-mile chase at speeds exceeding 85 miles an hour ended in Hyattsville last night with the arrest of a 20-year-old automobile mechanic who was stopped only after police shot off the left rear tire of his car.

Booked at the Hyattsville police station as Ira Dunn, of 1708 Lawrence st. ne., the youth was charged with reckless driving, exceeding 85 and failing to obey a police officer.

The chase started at Laurel, Md., when a Maryland State police car attempted to halt Dunn for speeding. As he sped toward Washington, Prince Georges County and District police cars were warned of his approach by radio.

An elaborate trap was set at the District lines on Rhode Island and New York aves., and Bladensburg rd., by 12 local scout cars.

However, when the speeding machine raced through Daniels Park, Md., it was intercepted by County Patrolmen Richard Pearson and Charles Caldwell.

Unable to force the car to stop, the policemen fired two shots, blowing out a rear tire. Dunn stopped at the Hyattsville Viaduct, less than two blocks from the county police station.

Girls Partake

3 Blithe Sailors Pass Doughnuts

Three American sailors yesterday put Washington canteen hospitality in reverse.

Standing in front of the Hamilton Hotel, they distributed a full box of doughnuts to girls who passed by, offering their refreshments with the cheery salutation: "Have a cake, baby?"

In blithe spirits induced by the beautiful day and perhaps some interior uplift, the sailors speculated as each young woman hove into view as to whether she would accept their doughnuts.

"Here's a neat looking number; I know she'll want a doughnut," commented a sailor.

"No, sir, I bet she doesn't," said another. "She's too high hat."

The "number" surprised the skeptical sailor by helping herself to a doughnut. And so it went until the doughnuts were all distributed (no males were invited to partake) and the happy sailors sauntered up 14th st. pleased with their singular way of entertaining in wartime Washington.

Senators to Tour Housing Units

More than 3000 units of war housing in the metropolitan area will be visited by members of a Senate District housing subcommittee in a series of tours beginning Wednesday at 10 a. m.

Senator Burton (Republican), of Ohio, chairman of the subcommittee, and Senator Capper (Republican), of Kansas, for years one of the District Committee's most enthusiastic members, will be making their seventh tour to observe local housing conditions, all of them conducted by John Ihlder, executive officer of the National Capital Housing Authority.

NCHA manages many hundreds of family dwellings occupied by warworkers and has developed 3200 units of war housing, which it also manages. Of these, 2000 are demountable so that they may be taken down in sections at the end of the war and erected on other sites, and the remaining 1200 are demolishable, to be razed when they have served their temporary purpose.

Senator Capper declared at the end of the tour Saturday that he felt confident that he and Burton would be able to present to Congress the most thorough picture possible of local housing.

"It is just a question of getting Congress to make sufficient appropriations," he said. "I think the city is making excellent progress in housing developments and is doing a pretty good job. Congress has to be convinced to come across as

Triangle Killing Inquest Delayed

The body of Warrant Officer John H. Worthington, 35, of Washington, who was fatally shot at his Lehobeth Beach (Del.) home last Thursday, was still held in a funeral home there last night pending a coroner's inquest. Originally scheduled for Saturday, the inquest has been indefinitely postponed as officials continue the investigation.

Although no charge has been placed against them, Worthington's wife, Elaine, and his friend, Warrant Officer Carl Moulinie, meanwhile remained in custody at Sussex County Jail. Deputy Attorney Daniel J. Layton, jr., revealed that both had told police Moulinie held the pistol which killed Worthington, after he had accused them of "intimacies." Worthington was the son of Mrs. S. L. Gilroy of 1339 East Capitol st.

Former Ambassador to London, the minister is the son of the founder of the Czechoslovak Republic, Thomas G. Masaryk.

BARNABY By Crockett Johnson

"A bright star shone outside the castle window and the Prince's Fairy Godmother appeared . . ."
Fairy Godmother, eh?
"She waved her magic wand and said, 'Your wish is granted.'"
Very neat! . . . I don't suppose I've got a Fairy Godmother? By any chance?
No, I'm sure there aren't any Fairy Godparents taking care of you, Barnaby . . . Sometimes I wish there were.

Soviet Embassy Fete Marks Red Anniversary

They came by the hundreds, and they came early—with invitations in hand. Guests who forgot those important crested pasteboards were detained at the door until their names could be checked on the list of the 2000 who were asked.

Many who stayed until after 7 o'clock missed the unscheduled climax to the evening's entertainment—the impromptu scene that centered around a cake that would not cut. It happened shortly after the Vice President and Mrs. Wallace and their daughter, Miss Jean Wallace, arrived. Accompanying the Soviet Ambassador and Mme. Gromyko to the dining room, the quintet soon was surrounded by a solid flank of cameramen. Their high-powered lights were focused on the big two-tiered birthday cake, covered with icing and decorated with a toy Soviet tank on top.

"Please cut the cake," urged photographers, and Mme. Gromyko took knife in hand to comply with the request. The crowd pushed in closer. Mme. Gromyko made an attempt to cut the cake once . . . twice. Being made of papier mache, it resisted remarkably. But by that time cameras had clicked out their record of the cake-cutting anyway, and everybody roundabout, including the host and the Vice President, had enjoyed the interlude.

Wreathed in smiles, members of the Soviet Embassy staff mingled in the crowd that jammed the huge drawing room to the walls and overflowed into the second drawing room, the big dining room, and the adjoining picture gallery. Yard-long sturgeon from the Siberian steppes and caviar by the bowlfuls, along with sliced turkey, chicken, ham and every other teatime dainty you can imagine were served in the dining room, and at buffet tables on both the second and third floors. It was a menu of no-rationed proportions, and it served as Sunday supper for just about everybody there. Good will eddied and flowed freely through the champagne and a variety of other drinks that went the rounds time and time again.

"Of course I'm here. I came—even when it wasn't the popular thing to do," said Leon Henderson. He was referring, of course, to the Soviet party back in 1939, which happened to fall on the heels of Molotov's blast at President Roosevelt. Capitalites showed their displeasure then by staying away in great numbers. Maury Maverick was another who proved himself a friend of La Belle Soviet back in her less popular days; and yesterday, he and Mrs. Maverick were among the first to arrive and the last to leave.

There were no "incidents" at yesterday's party—nothing, that is, similar to the flurry back in 1941 when Admiral Nomura, Japanese Ambassador, put in an appearance at a similar reception. . . . and met an array of frozen smiles above stiff handshakes. Yesterday's was definitely a "Red"-letter, United Nations event, turning the spotlight strongly on notables whose war-effort activities need no "plugs" here.

Very much a center of attention was Mrs. Cordell Hull, just back from a sojourn at Hot Springs and now awaiting the return of the Secretary of State from his sensationally successful mission to Moscow. House Speaker Sam Rayburn came early, with plans well laid for an early departure. An hour later, he was still there, completely surrounded with friends who were urging him to stay even longer. Donald Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lehman, the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Frank Knox, Mrs. Henry L. Stimson and the Undersecretary of State and Mrs. Edward Stettinius were seen in the crowd moving down the reception line during the first half of the party.

Generals and gold-braided admirals were all over the place. Just to mention a few—there were Field Marshal Sir John Dill, Maj. Gen. William N. Porter, Maj. Gen. George F. Lull, with Mrs. Lull; Rear Admiral Ben Moreell, Rear Admiral J. S. McCain, Maj. Gen. Lewis Hershey, Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, Cuban Military Attache Col. Felipe Munilla, accompanied by Senora de Munilla and Col. Oneta Culp Hobby, WAAC director.

"Why there's Bill Bullitt!" That whisper rippled through the crowd watching each contingent of newly arrived guests, as the one-time United States Ambassador to the Soviet Union, William E. Bullitt, came in with Attorney General Francis Biddle. Although Mr. Bullitt is just recovering from a crushed ankle and a crushing defeat in the Philadelphia mayoralty race, he smiled and bowed as if he had never been happier in his life and stayed at the party for quite a while, gayly greeting old friends.

Another former envoy to the Soviet Union, Joseph E. Davies, was among those present, arriving early with Mrs. Davies. The State Department's Stanley K. Hornbeck, just back from London, was greeting friends on all sides. Mr. and Mrs. William L. Batt, the former of whom is another notable recently returned from a wartime mission outside the country, were among those present, as were Justice and Mrs. Hugo Black, Senator and Mrs. Lister Hill, Senator Scott Lucas, Senator and Mrs. Guy V. Gillette, and enough Representatives to pass a Congressional bill.

"You see, I've started something," boasted Senator Arthur Capper, as he displayed an autograph on his shirt cuff. It had just been written by the Soviet Ambassador. Even more avid in the autograph-gathering group was a small, unidentified woman who had a sizable blank book in her hand. Among the celebrities toward whom she thrust it, and a fountain pen, before the evening was over were the British Ambassador, Viscount Halifax; Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Claude Wickard, Mr. and Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, Justice and Mrs. Stanley Reed, and Mrs. William E. Borah, Senator Pat McCarran, Senator and Mrs. Ralph O. Brewster, Senator and Mrs. Tom Connally, Representative Sol Bloom and his daughter, Miss Vera Bloom, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson, Mrs. William D. Byron and so on—through the diplomatic blue book, the Congressional Directory, the social register, and any other record of important names in wartime Washington.

This One Is Strictly 'On the Cuff'

Whether or not his boss, Premier Joseph Stalin, does business that way, Ambassador Andrei A. Gromyko, who represents the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics in this country, has been caught in an "on the cuff" transaction. In this case, it was at the reception at the Soviet Embassy, to celebrate the twenty-sixth anniversary of the great October revolution; the cuff is that of Senator Arthur Capper and watching Ambassador Gromyko place his autograph on the cuff is Mme. Gromyko

Mrs. French Myers and members of her committee sponsoring the Officers' Midweek dances at Sulgrave Club, announce that the next dance is to be held next Friday evening, November 12, instead of Thursday evening, the customary night for these gay parties which young officers of the United Nations stationed in the capital find great fun.

Although several members of the committee have been married this fall, among them Billie Byrd West, since last Wednesday Mrs. William Bell, and Miss Elizabeth Fish, now Mrs. Insley B. Pyne, they are still working on plans for the coming dance.

Other members of the group who gathered at Mrs. Myers' apartment for a session this past week are Miss Patricia Prochnik, Miss Jane Culbertson, Miss Achsah Dorsey, Miss Mary Lord Andrews, Miss Natalie Sutherland, Miss Sheila Broderick, Mrs. Oliver Hammonds, Mrs. Nelson Robertson, the Misses Marian and Mary T. Norris, Miss Catherine Hambley, Mrs. Kenneth Watson, Mrs. Lee Murphy and Miss Emily French Myers.

Lieut. Rufus Henry Alldredge, AUS, stationed here at the Army Medical Center, Walter Reed Hospital, and his bride, the former Miss Mary Elizabeth Barrett, will make their home in Washington following a wedding trip to Point Clear, Ala., on Mobile Bay. Their wedding took place in the First Methodist Church of Hammond, La. last week with the Rev. H. D. Marlin officiating.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Foster Barrett, was gowned in traditional white satin with long train finished in scallops, matching the scalloped sweetheart neckline. Her full length veil of tulle was caught with a headdress of tulle, seed pearls and orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of white orchids, surrounded by white roses, with showers of stephanotis. Her father gave her in marriage.

Her attendants included Miss Anne Barrett of Huoston, Tex., maid of honor, and Miss Laurraine Goreau, Miss Fay Alford, Miss Elaine Herring and Miss Lola Sue Purcell, bridesmaids.

Dr. Edward L. Levert was best man for the bridegroom, who is the son of John Whaley Alldredge and the late Mrs. Alldredge. Dr. Emile Naef, Dr. Ruble Moor, Capt. Moss Bannerman, and James Lemann were groomsmen. B. C. Purcell, C. G. Kidder, Dr. S. L. Newsom, and T. W. Kent were ushers. A reception at the Casa de Fresa Hotel followed the ceremony.

A STORY WITH WHISKERS

Please don't stop us if you've heard this one . . .

We'll be saying it often, over and over, and we'll mean it with all our hearts, s'help us.

Years ago, we used to start this little ding-dong Christmas hope about Thanksgiving time with the prayer that most of you would take us seriously along about December 15th. That mad, last-minute scramble was fun. Everyone was good-natured and full of secrets. Everybody jostled about with everybody. You bumped into people you hadn't seen for months, and blocked the aisles while you talked over all the news there was to catch up on, and everybody else walked around you, and nobody minded.

We'd like to keep it that way. We will keep all the fresh, bright-eyed eagerness, the laughter, the boundless excitement, and our solemn pledge to serve you to the best of our ability . . . we're "all in the same boat" as far as the patriotic necessities are concerned. We'll just have to "Shop Early" this year . . . or miss the boat. There's really plenty of merchandise to go around this year, but there can be no dilly-dallying with the problems of transportation, manpower, delivery curtailment.

Come now, everybody who's kidding whom? We must Shop Early and Mail Early. Uncle Sam says: "Mail Christmas Gifts before December 1st."

Mary Haworth's Mail

In Accepting Appointment to Government Service, Man Was Obliged to Leave Family Behind; Long Absence From Home Has Worn Out His Welcome

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a man in my forties and have been married almost 15 years. My home is in a distant city, but some years ago I came to Washington with my wife's consent, to take a temporary job with the Government. She stayed on there, with our only child, sharing our home with her mother. My wife was employed in a well-paid position, and so was her mother. Employment conditions had proved very unfavorable for me, so when this Government job was offered, on a temporary basis, it was agreed (after full discussion with my wife and her mother) that it would do no harm to accept. After a year on the job I was asked to take the regular Civil Service examination to qualify for permanent appointment. Again, I took the matter up with my family; and again I was given the "green light," as employment conditions for me had not improved on the home front during that year.

I passed the examination and was given the usual probationary and then the permanent appointment. Meanwhile, my wife's mother passed away and she was left alone with the child. Since she was still employed, she persuaded a relative to come live with her, acting as housekeeper in exchange for a home and a nominal compensation. The years have rolled by since then, and my Government employment, as well as my absence from home, have become an accepted fact in my home city. From time to time I have tried to persuade my wife to give up her job and come here, but she always contended her job was the more permanent of the two, and that I might be "let out" by the Government. She also mentioned that our child would have to change schools by such a move, and that she might lose by such a transfer.

I have always deferred to my wife's wishes, in the interests of maintaining our home. I was an orphan and lost my father early in life. But my cooperative attitude hasn't borne the dividends it should. My present position is anomalous. Where I live here it is hardly likely that anyone even knows I am married, as my wife has never once visited here. Last Christmas she telephoned long-distance to say she would not object to my getting a divorce if I so desired; but, so far as I know, she is not at all interested in the opposite sex. She is a college graduate and very active in church work. I am in a serious quandary about the whole affair, as I have recently met another woman who is very deeply interested in me. I have the necessary grounds for a divorce here; but I hesitate to act, because of my sense of family loyalty, or whatever you might call it. There seems no possibility of getting my family to come here, and it is impossible to go back home and leave everything I have built up here over a period of years. What would you suggest, from your experienced viewpoint?

PUZZLED.

Haven't We Covered This Ground Before?

DEAR PUZZLED: If I am not mistaken, you took this problem up with me once before,—a year or more ago. The same situation was described, in almost the same words; and you expressed mournful dissatisfaction with your anomalous position. As I recall, the resultant discussion,—which undertook to sift carefully the various angles to be considered,—led to the conclusion that your wife's consistent, though amiable, refusal to accept your offer to make a home for her here (in the city where you have permanent employment) amounted to tacit repudiation of her wifely obligations; and invested you with the legal, as well as the ethical, right to ask release from the marriage contract, so that you might be free to build a new family life with another partner (more enthusiastic and compliant), if you so desired.

This course was by no means urged upon you. Rather, it seemed (and still appears to be) the only alternative to pursuing, for the remainder of your life, an essentially meaningless "lone wolf" existence. And I believe your previous letter implied, somewhat more strongly than this one does, a definite reluctance on your wife's part to have you come back home under any conditions. You left the impression, which you had gleaned from infrequent visits back home, that any move on your part to go back home, to reconstitute yourself head of the household, would meet with cool resistance. The gist of the matter seemed to be that your wife had grown so pleasantly accustomed to leading an independent career woman's life,—managing her home and child and social program to suit herself,—that she tended to regard you as a tedious intruder, even as a weekend guest. In other words, that she had outgrown any need or desire she may once have felt for your companionship or support. This view of the situation is substantiated by her long-distance telephone message of last Christmas,—that she will give you a divorce whenever you want it.

Decide on Course And Stop Fretting

WAS THIS message by any chance, a direct response to a hinted ultimatum from you? Is your continuing indecision the result of being sharply taken aback by her candid willingness to untie the knot and let you go, with no strings attached? When you learned you could be free, did you lose appetite for the prospect? If so,—and I imagine such is the case,—it is time to stop bellyaching about your predicament; and time to stop blaming your wife, by implication, for it. Doubtless it is this very weakly indecisive, self-concerned aspect of your personality that precipitated the untidy situation; and that caused her to feel only mounting relief at having full responsibility for her welfare gradually restored to her own shoulders. As for what to do now,—that is up to you. I believe the die is already cast, in relation to your wife. I believe you are a permanent outcast from her life. I believe the time is past for "going back," either to your old status or to a new beginning with her,—that is, if her feelings are to be given decent considera-

[illegible]. If you are strongly dissatisfied with your "anomalous" status, have the contract dissolved. But if you prefer feeding disconsolately on memories of the past, and on futile thoughts of "what might have been," to briskly clearing ground for a second trial at family life, then let the contract retain its legal form. But in that case, let's not hear any more about your self-perpetuated forlorn plight. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

'Whoa,' Thin Girls, Relax; Slow down to Gain Weight

What many of you thin girls have to do to gain weight is s-l-o-w down. Just eating more food won't put weight on if you keep burning up the calories as fast as you take them in. Get up 20 minutes earlier and ease into your day. Rushing builds up tension and tension wastes energy.

Claudette Colbert is almost a thin girl. She keeps her weight up by drinking a quart of milk a day. It gives her a nice complexion, too

Avoid everything that piles up tension. Don't worry about making the green light. Don't go against the red light and have to dodge traffic. Avoid cramming your day with appointments that almost overlap. You hate to be late—it's part of your make-up. So you actually lean forward in your haste to get places on time. You not only hurry in your actions but in your mind—whether you walk or sit on a bus. The feeling of being pressed for time is more wearing than fast movements. Practice serenity.

Jerky, staccato movements are another waste of energy. You race to answer the telephone, and it's the wrong number. When you go through a revolving door, you do the pushing for the big placid lady going through with you.

Another trouble with you thin girls is that you will carry out your plans! When you begin to feel tired, you just try harder. You go on past the tired stage and you should rest before you get tired. But, at least, you can rest when you begin to feel weary instead of keeping on.

Also, you need some organization in your life. It will let you get more done and take things easier. "Order is Heaven's first law" and you'd better make it yours.

If any of these tension-builders fit you, then you must slow down to gain weight. You have to have food to gain and one of the biggest improvements you could make would be to eat breakfast.

If all these suggestions leave you cold, wondering if they apply to hypochondriacs, then you are a strong, healthy lean girl and a little vigorous outdoor exercise and better food habits will give you curves.

Homemaker's Work to Be Easy After War

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin
Consolidated News Features, Inc.

The bigwigs are arguing heatedly pro and con about whether future houses will be utterly revolutionized into a "push the button" and "turn on the hose" type of housekeeping. Well, let's leave them to argue that out and take a look at the improvements that are already "in the bag."

We'll have filters for the furnace to head off most of the dust, grease, grime, odors that make extra cleaning and dusting. . . . We'll have wall finishes (paper, paint or plastic) with surfaces as washable as the kitchen sink or linoleum. And wooden floors with plastic impregnation that preserves their gleaming finish so they can be cleaned like linoleum.

Outside, there'll be paint that is sprayed on, does an insulating job in the bargain, never needs repainting, can be cleaned. Nylon screens will be more resistant to the elements than copper and easier to keep.

Poster Exhibit to Raise Funds for Surgical Truck

The Poster-Bond Drive, sponsored by The American Newspaper Women's Club, to raise funds for surgical operating trucks for the United States forces, will open at the Mayflower Hotel, Friday evening, November 12, with a reception in the ballroom at 9 o'clock.

Plans for an elaborate program are under way, and the affair promises to be colorful and interesting. Mrs. Alice Eversman, president of the club, to which many wives of ranking officials of the United States and ladies of the Diplomatic Corps belong as associate members, states that reservations for the occasion are pouring in, and official Washington will be well represented. Speakers of the evening will vie with auctioneers who will sell, to the highest bidder in bonds, or cash, a group of First World War Posters, original duplicates of a collection which will be displayed in an exhibition in the Mayflower Promenade November 12 to 15 inclusive.

The posters have been loaned, and contributed, by Frederick T. Merrill of the State Department. Mr. Merrill, a native Bostonian, started his unusual collection when a small, but enterprising young lad, during the first World War. The collection, numbering well over a thousand, excluding the duplicates which have been donated toward the drive, grew when relatives and friends contributed enthusiastically to those he had earnestly "badgered" on his own. Friends in diplomatic service, and those serving in the armed forces, were ever mindful of "Freddy's" hobby, and supplied some of the interesting French, Belgium, British numbers the collection boasts. A goodly number in the American group dramatically portray the Liberty Loan and War Bond drives, which strove for what was then thought to be astronomical goals. Some of the American posters were creations of Howard Chandler Christie, whose conception of American womanhood is vigorously interpreted in the Red Cross and recruiting numbers.

Thirty food posters, stressing the "save food" campaigns launched during the first World War, bring back memories of sugar shortages unheard of during this war era, and are reminders of sky-rocketing food prices so far averted. Mr. Merrill, commenting on this group, stated that as an erstwhile collector, it was interesting to him how few food posters have been produced during this global campaign, in which food plays such an important role.

Armour Ideas Make the Most of Meat

To Extend Flavor Try Star Bacon Rolls!

Just about everybody goes for the meaty, smoked flavor of really good bacon. And here's a new trick to spread that bacon flavor a long way. Serve these Star Bacon Rolls stuffed with toasted bread crumbs. They give you bacon-goodness in every bite!

To serve 4 persons, you'll need only 8 slices of Star Bacon. We suggest Armour's Star Bacon because it's slow smoked over fragrant hickory and hardwood fires . . . has that smoky savor that is America's favorite.

First, brown 1 cup chopped onions and ⅓ cup chopped celery in 2 tablespoons bacon drippings. Lightly toast 4 cups day-old bread crumbs and add onions, celery, ¾ tsp. salt, ⅛ tsp. pepper, ¼ cup chopped parsley and ¼ cup water.

You make the rolls by crossing two slices of bacon and placing the dressing in middle. Then fold over the bacon slices and secure with toothpick. Bake rolls on rack in uncovered pan for 30-35 minutes in 375° oven . . . or until bacon is nicely crisped. Serve with broiled tomato halves and your favorite creamed vegetable.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

A New Dog Star Appears In Filmdom's Firmament

PAL, THE COLLIE, cast in the title role of "Lassie Come Home," is far and away the most appealing and most perfectly trained canine star that has come to the screen since the remote days of Rin-Tin-Tin and Strongheart. . . . Saturday morning's preview of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's Technicolor picturization of the late Eric Knight's book of the same name gave this sagacious animal top place in the picture even over such distinguished human associates as Roddy McDowall, Donald Crisp, Dame May Whitty, Ben Webster (her husband), Edmund Gwenn, Nigel Bruce, and Elsa Lanchester. . . . Since "Lassie Come Home" is the story of a dog, rather than any human, it would almost have to do so . . . But, so far as I know, there is not another dog actor living that could so completely live up to its responsibility as this one. . . . The liberties Hugo Butler has taken in adapting the Knight story to the screen will be considered when the time comes. . . Not all are in the film's favor. . . . Even so, it deserves the National Board of Review Award for the week of October 23, the Scholastic Magazine's Blue Ribbon Award for October and its four weeks of capacity business at the Radio City Music Hall. . . . The Technicolor treatment is superb. . . . Once "Sahara" decides to vacate the Metropolitan's screen, Bob Hope and Betty Hutton will move in to take its place in "Let's Face It." . . . If you are interested, Capt. H. H Crane, former Public Relations Officer for Artillery, now overseas as recreation director for servicemen, has named the largest of four theaters under his supervision the "Earle." . . . Has written Managing Director Harry Anger it is in commemoration of the many swell shows he used to enjoy here on 13th st.

EDMUND GWENN

It begins like this: "Dear Nelson Bell:—Slam !!!0'&—Bang *¼@ //¶½—Boom '&%$$" –Crash '&—Screams)*¼@/—Shouts ('&%-Zip !!!&%$$—Zoom*½@¶? Zowie ('&%$—Gorillas !! ?/@½¶$$—in other words, Olsen and Johnson speaking." . . . The rest wouldn't be becoming in this column to which they refer as "erudite" and one thing and another. . . . If I had time, I could sue them, I suppose! . . . Sidney Lust's nearby Maryland theaters are reaching out into the big time. . . . Will be presenting Borrah Minevitch's Eight Harmonica Rascals at the Bethesda Theater next Sunday, at the Marlboro next Monday and Tuesday, Milo, in Rockville, Wednesday and Thursday; Hyattsville Theater and the Cameo, in Mount Rainier, both on Friday and Saturday, November 19 and 20, rounding out a full week. . . . These lung-power instrumentalists will appear in conjunction with the regular screen bills three times nightly and four times on Sunday and Saturday. . . . The ballet is looking up in Washington. . . . This month will bring the Russian Ballet to Constitution Hall for the adults, and on Saturday morning, November 27, at 10:30 o clock, in the National, Clare Tree Major will inaugurate her series of six Children's Theater of New York programs with Edwin Strawbridge's "America Dances," a new ballet for children. . . . The Children's Museum of Washington is Mrs. Major's sponsor in the Capital. . . . Or maybe it's the other way around. . . . The theater interests are understandably concerned by the Ways and Means Committee's proposal to raise the amusement tax from 10 per cent to 20 per cent. . . . The picture industry is out for a sliding scale, foreseeing a slump in business in many locations, which would offset any theoretical Treasury gain. . . . A 100-per-cent boost does seem plenty steep.

"Noah's Ark," Ferenc Molnar's newest comedy, has been acquired for production by the Theater Guild, it is announced by Lawrence Langner and Theresa Helburn. . . . Scheduled for the current season, it will be their fourth Broadway subscription play. . . . Molnar is no stranger to the Guild. . . . In 1920 it produced his "Liliom"; in 1924-25, "The Guardsman," and in 1925-26, "The Glass Slipper." . . . In addition, Molnar is author of "The Good Fairy," in which Helen Hayes starred; "The Play's the Thing," "The Swan" and numerous other Broadway hits. . . . The second edition of "This Is the Wacks," to be presented at the Jewish Community Center next Sunday night, is taking on elaborate shape. . . . The "Russian Winter Scene" will feature an original number by Edith Pear, Irving Berlin's "Russian Winter," with original lyrics and a chorus of 50 voices, and Phil Hayden's dancers in a Russian routine. . . . The "Stage Door Canteen" interlude will be even more so, if you know what I mean—impersonations of Eddie Cantor, Dinah Shore, Eleanor Powell, Lunt and Fontanne and other noted stars. . . . Hy Feuerstein, former partner of Jackie Miles, will be m. c. . . . Music by Barnee's Shoreham Hotel Orchestra. . . . Rose Franken's new play, "Outrageous Fortune," which opened in New York last week, seems to have been aptly named. . . . One Broadway critic wrote of it, "The most pointed, accurate criticism that can be made of 'Outrageous Fortune" is that it does not mean anything." . . . Elsie Ferguson, coming out of retirement after a decade and a half; Maria Ouspenskaya, Margalo Gillmore and Frederic Tozere won individual acclaim, but the implication is that after "Claudia," Miss Franken should have reclined comfortably on her laurels. . . . She had a warehouse full of them.

Jan Masaryk, Foreign Minister of the Czech government-in-exile, will go to Russia soon with President Benes. "I am for World Federation," he said. "But when I sign a document, I want three godfathers, Joe, F. D., and Winston." . . . Masaryk addressed the Overseas Press Club and told of how he became a diplomat. "I chose my father carefully," he said, speaking of the founder of the Czech republic, "and he made me a diplomat. Then my people helped me. But I really learned diplomacy, working as an iron-moulder with laborers of all nations, in the Crane Co. making bathroom equipment here in America."

EUGENIE LEONTOVICH

Masaryk was asked: "When do you think the war will be over?" He answered: "At 3 o'clock." Then he turned to the newspapermen present, and reminded them of their responsibility: "The press is the No. 1 weapon of this war, next to the Bren gun, which comes from Czechoslovakia."

Ambassador Claude Bowers is showing, to a few friends, the book he's written about Spain, based on his experiences in the embassy at Madrid. He once threatened to publish the book only if Franco's assistance to the Axis becomes important. Franco's congratulatory wire to the puppet Philippine government, and his refusal to withdraw his men from Russia, may do the trick . . . The Theater Guild has accepted Ferenc Molnar's new play . . . George S. Kaufman listened to a discussion of the Wayne Lonergan murder case. "At that," sighed Director Kaufman, "he got better notices than 'The Naked Genius.'"

Georgie Price, member of the New York Stock Exchange and star of the Latin Quarter show, sometimes finds his broker-actor roles confusing. Price, who never has abandoned his screen ambitions, went to Hollywood recently. Darryl Zanuck spied him, and welcomed him enthusiastically. "You're just the man I want to see," said the film producer, Actor Price beamed, confident that his movie ambitions were to be realized. This confidence was strengthened by Zanuck's rushing him to his office. "Let's get to the point." Zanuck began. "I understand that you know more about Twenties Century-Fox stock than anybody else. W. Somerset Maugham tells of his Hollywood experience, when he agreed to write a picture. The producer ushered Maugham into the elaborate office which had been prepared for him and pointed to the expensive desk, drapes, carpeting and furniture. On the desk were sheets of paper and a long, newly sharpened pencil. "And by 5 o'clock, Mr. Maugham," said the producer, holding up his thumb and forefinger, two inches apart, "I expect the pencil to be down to this."

Fans Are Dunne Favor!

Hollywood, Calif., Nov. 7.—Irene Dunne's fans aren't moanin' low these days. She's got "A guy Named Joe" and "White Cliffs of Dover" coming from Metro. Her next is "Road to Yesterday" at Columbia, and maybe she'll have Charles Boyer co-starring with her. They haven't been together since "Love Affair." Both Irene and Charles would like another one. . . . Maureen O'Hara interviews her prospective maids at her manager's office to save gas. One applicant wanted $200 a month, a car at her disposal, two days a week off. "What! No breakfast in bed?" asked Maureen. . . . Dickie Moore, just turned 18, has been deferred until he gets his high school diploma . . . Mayris Chaney gets her screen opportunity in "Weekend Pass" with Noah Beery, jr. and Martha O'Driscoll. . . . Jane Frazee teamed so well with Joan Davis in "Beautiful But Broke" that Columbia has signed her for three more. Her next has the dignified title of "Kansas City Kitty"—taken from that song, remember?

IRENE DUNNE

And No Gag

Bing Crosby and Bob Hope were doing a golf tournament down South when they ran into Jack Pepper, who was entertaining at a little night club there. Jack asked them if they'd put in an appearance one night to help boost trade. They agreed. To get the crowd, he had 1000 pamphets printed, telling the good news. The night came, so did Bing and Bob, but not another soul showed up. Townsfolk thought it was a gag till Jack started phoning friends. They wouldn't believe it till Bing sang a song. By midnight the place was packed . . . "Duffy's Tavern" will soon be visited by Bing Crosby's parents. If they talk as well over the air as they do in real life, Bing's going to grab 'em and sign 'em for his own show . . . Our most gruesome sweater girl is none other than Red Skelton . . . Tony Bennett, Navy pilot, who played with Clark Gable and Spencer Tracy in "Boomtown," was killed in action in the South Pacific.

Ronald Colman had a line to Edward Arnold in "Kismet" about 24 dancing girls: "My daughter would make these look like swamp rats." After the take, he came down off the throne and said, "I'm terribly sorry, girls, the speech was written that way. I think you're all awfully good"

Trans-Lux

The new bill on the screen at the Trans-Lux Theater this week affords the usual vicarious opportunity to keep up with the fighting on numerous fronts, attend some of the more notable football games and cover a considerable area in the short-subject section.

The war news centers for the most part in the Italian sectors and the northern sea lanes leading to Russia. Secretary Hull, incidentally, is shown en route to the epochal Moscow conferences. Away from the firing lines, Nancy Marigny aids her husbands defense in the Nassau trial, Brazil chips in with a five-million dollar gift of coffee to the American armed forces, and Notre Dame smears Navy to the tune of 33 to 6.

Foremost among the "shorts" is the "Red Army Film News," which finds itself surrounded by a novelty reel, "Babies by Bannister"; "Cue Wizards," a sports release; "Scenic Oregon," a FitzPatrick Traveltalk in color, and, for laughs, one of those fox-and-crow cartoon comedies. "Room and Bored." Nice pastime, by and large.

Pix

The combination of "You're a Lucky Fellow, Mr. Smith," and "The Strange Death of Adolf Hitler," currently at the Pix, offers the contrast of a frivolous musical "quickie" with a grim and novel treatment of a problem of this war.

Allan Jones fans will find in the first as much of Jones' singing as any heart could desire, since he sings on every possible occasion throughout. The film has little Patsy O'Connor's singing and that of the King's Men, and the beautious presence of Evelyn Ankers further to recommend it, but is burdened with a trite plot.

"The Strange Death of Adolf Hitler" is a misleading title, obviously appended for boxoffice appeal, but an unfortunate choice because when the film ends without Hitler's dying, you feel cheated. It is a story of a young Austrian, played well enough by Ludwig Donath, who can imitate Hitler perfectly. The purpose is to use him as a dummy Hitler, who will protect the real one by making public appearances in his stead. The Austrian has other plans.

The ending of this parable is surprising but not satisfactory, pathetic but not tragic. It brings out its theme so obscurely that a narrator has to come in at the end and explain it to you. M. K.

The Washington

Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

LAST WEEK'S SMASHING Republican victories have had two effects upon the White House.

Effect No. 1 is on those around the White House—a greater determination that the President is the only man who can save the Democratic Party, that he must run for a fourth term.

Effect No. 2 has been on the President himself. As usual he is keeping his mouth shut. But close friends report less inclination to run for a fourth term.

Even FDR's severest critics have to admit he is one of the shrewdest political observers in the country. As previously reported in this column, he had warned White House associates that politically the Administration was trailing. His exact words were: "We're behind."

If he thinks he is still behind next June, it will take more than Frank Walker to drag FDR into a race for a fourth term.

Meanwhile, tides may shift. Anyway he will not make up his mind until June.

Note: Middle-of-the-road Democratic leaders who believe the party should begin thinking about a candidate if the President steps aside, more and more have their eyes on General Marshall, the Chief of Staff. Marshall couldn't get into West Point because his father, the only Democrat in Uniontown, Pa., could not get an appointment from the McKinley Administration.

Secret GOP Meeting

It isn't supposed to be noised about, but Republican Congressman "Ham" Andrews of Buffalo and his near neighbor Congressman Jim Wadsworth of Geneseo, N. Y., are planning a significant meeting soon with a view to launching a new GOP candidate for President.

That candidate is Jim Wadsworth himself.

They are meeting with GOP National Committeeman for New York, Russell Sprague, Nassau County boss, and Republican State Chairman Ed Jaeckle of Buffalo to try to convince them to line up the New York State delegation for Wadsworth. The meeting is to be held very quietly on Long Island with no blare of trumpets.

Behind the meeting is the feeling of reactionary Republicans that the country is swinging vigorously to the right, that they can put across a good solid conservative next year. This was the interpretation they placed on last week's elections.

Jim Wadsworth, now 66, has a great record in Congress in preparing the Nation for war and in supporting Roosevelt's foreign policies. A veteran legislator, he served in the New York State Assembly for five years; also 12 years in the United States Senate. After his defeat in the Senate he had the courage to stage a comeback in the less important House.

On other than war policies, however, Jim's political thinking dates back to the days when he opposed woman's suffrage.

Wheat for Alcohol

ALL ALONG THE eastern seaboard, distillers are grinding wheat by the millions of bushels for industrial alcohol, at a time when wheat for food is running tragically short.

Largest plants are New England Alcohol, at Everett, Mass., U. S. Industrial Alcoho', at Baltimore and Yonkers, N. Y.; DuPont Company, at Deepwater, N. J.; Publicker at Philadelphia. They are consuming wheat at the rate of 60 million bushels a year.

These plants normally make their alcohol from molasses. They were located near tidewater for the specific purpose of getting their raw material, molasses, by sea from Puerto Rico or Cuba.

But today, that molasses is being used to make Puerto Rican and Cuban gin for the thirsty United States market, while the alcohol companies, denied molasses, haul wheat all the way from St. Paul and Chicago.

Cubans are making gin as never before. Quantity is high, quality low. Current production is running 100 times that of last year. Sailing vessels from the Caribbean tramp fleets have been pressed into service to deliver the stuff from Havana to Miami.

One such schooner dropped anchor in Havana one evening, and the skipper expressed anger on finding that the cargo of gin he was expecting to load next morning was not yet on the docks.

"Don't worry," he was told. "The alcohol is arriving at the plant at midnight, and the gin will be ready for you in the morning."

United States officials are still negotiating with the Cuban government to get molasses instead of gin. Discussions broke down but are being resumed.

Combating Disease

MISS FLORENCE KERR, an intimate friend of Mrs. Roosevelt, is optimistic about the progress made during the war period in the cure of venereal disease.

She has personal responsibility for funds under the Lanham Act to set up rapid treatment centers, and she has a long-time personal interest in the problem of delinquent girls.

When soldiers contract a venereal diseases, they report to their own officers and are quizzed as to the source of the infection. In the majority of cases, the woman can be identified and found. She is taken to a rapid treatment center for application of the new heat therapy process, which cures some cases of syphilis in five days. Not all patients can be subjected to this treatment, however, since the high fever which is induced is a severe strain on the heart.

Experts now hope—but it is still only a hope—that the experience of this war may open the way to the complete eradication of venereal disease from human society.

STUNNINGLY DIFFERENT is the new Justin Stone orchestra in the Victory Room. The 20 musicians led by young Maestro Stone (he looks like Eddie Duchin) play with softness and finesse, only occasionally dive into a maelstrom of swing just to show they can do it. The band is already booked for big things in radio, and a probably Hollywood career is a-brewing. Its career will not be interrupted by Uncle Sam since Justin was injured seriously in an air accident after 14 months as an aviation cadet.

Olsen and Johnson pitched a terrific birthday party at the Club Bali on Saturday night with Bette Davis and John Garfield, now making Washington scenes for their next pecture, as guests of honor. Ella Fitzgerald sang and the entire cast of "Sons o' Fun" had a great romp.

LONG DISTANCE RECORDS as band leaders are being set up by Bill Strickland of the Lotus and Carr van Sickler of the Madrillon. Carr's start on his eighth year at the Madrillon was recently marked by an ad lib party. Bill Strickland's tenth anniversary at the Lotus will be celebrated this week. P. S. The Lotus' new "Can Can Revue" starts today with dancers Dorn and Delsa, swingstepper Peggy Turner and shadowgrapher Ed Rickard.

WASHINGTON CAB DRIVERS are given a keen ribbing by Romo Vincent, new Troika star. Here's hoping none of the local taxi fraternity recognizes chubby Romo when he hails a cab. Otherwise he'll be left standing on a corner for a week from next Tuesday. Romo's swell, too, as Father Divine and the complete artist when he undertakes to mimic Charles Laughton.

Evelyn Nesbit, who opens at Copocabana today, may become the owner of the spot, is the whisper. For the benefit of the younger generation—Evelyn was the central figure in the sensational Harry K. Thaw trial, a cause celebre to which the current DeMarigny case is only peanuts.

FEMMES AND FRILLS. Carole Page of the Mayflower Lounge, is bedazzling beholders with a creation of aqua and .hocking pink all covered with crystals and sequins like a Christmas tree . . . Betty McHugh of Bill Grassick's band in the Metronome Room, is trimmed out with fresh gardenias every night. They're from that pleasant guy, "Anonymous Admirer" . . . Marian Carl of the Old New Orleans, has a gorgeous new hair-do and a low-cut black velvet formal with huge puff sleeves . . . Muriel Maidy, who greets you at the King Cole Room, wears wrought silver earings and a clip in an army design. They were a gift from her soldier husband . . . Mayfair's Ida Clarke is chic in a beautifully cut white chiffon with a crystal encrusted jacket . . . Grace Pierson of Restaurant "400," is a curvaceous cherub in a figure hugging white crepe devoid of decor save for a slather of silver paillettes at the neckline . . . Most becoming headgear ever worn by the Balalaika beauties are those sequinned pillboxes with drapes of white chiffon. Crossroads' Lydia Allen looke like the spirit of autumn in dubonnet Jersey . . . touched up with gold.

Treasure Island hates to see Rocco Terrone's band leave, but they'll be setting sail on November 27 for either New York, Florida or Ohio. Paul Kain's vivid radio orchestra will arrive on Monday, November 29.

MADDER MOMENTS. When Jackie Miles, now at Paul Young's, tells those fables about finance companies and winning 20-horse parlays. . . . That "McCarthy Had a Party" ballad sung by Hal Yates at Olmsted's Club. A shillalagh festival, so it was. . . . When Maestro Pete Macias of the Lounge Riviera lets his piano take care of itself and falls to retailing yarns that would be worth money to Esquire. . . . When Mayor Ciro of Ciro's goes to town on his French horn—but good. . . . When Fred Browne of Harold Nagel's band at the Carlton sings love songs at those bandy-legged Ethiopian nymphs that decorate the bandstand. . . . When Frankie Donato juggles a stepladder at Kavakos (Club K) and gets what would be a fractured skull if it weren't Frankie.

Holiday Outlook

By Roger W. Babson

Shop Now Or See Empty Shelves

New York City, Nov. 7.—New York has taken on the festive air characteristic of the pre-Christmas shopping rush. If conditions here are any indication—and they should be reflected proportionately in other cities and towns—retailers are going to wind up with a big year-end business. I expect to see Christmas trade in dollars equal the gross of last year. I am, however, concerned over stocks of merchandise. If shoppers do not immediately get busy they will find pretty nearly empty shelves. It is more important than ever to shop early.

Manufacturers of consumers' goods are now receiving some small increase in materials, but this will not relieve the pre-Christmas inventory situation. Consumers' durable goods are way down. All kinds of merchandise are difficult to replace. Anyone, for instance, trying to buy miscellaneous household furnishings knows this. For the last month of record in New York City, sales of furniture were up 9 per cent over a year ago, but inventories were down 33 per cent. Any increase in the manufacture of consumers' goods will not be felt for some months. For some time, customers will have plenty of money to spend, but merchants will continue to have trouble with inventories.

Wages, money in circulation, bank deposits and national income have reached such proportions that they have little meaning to the average man. I may say, however, that national income for the first seven months of this year showed an increase of 20.7 per cent over the corresponding period of a year ago. Seasonally there is usually a decline in November due to a decrease in the shipments of farm products. This, however, will have little effect upon the extent of this year's Christmas trade. The money for that is already in the pockets of customers.

Customers must now buy what they can find, not necessarily what they want. The average American family has scarcely felt any wartime inconvenience comparable to those existing in other countries at war. This is because we have been living upon inventories. These inventories are now running out. Labor shortages and military demands for replacements will prevent civilian supplies from being built up. Customers for many lines of consumers' goods may be decidedly out of luck.

The outlook for toys is tough—no metal nor soft wood. CHILDREN'S CLOTHES are really scarce. This is due partly to an increase in the birth rate and partly to the fact that manufacturers can get more money out of other lines. SHOES are being affected by the leather shortage. Cobblers are doing a big business but have difficulty finding workers. FURNITURE inventories are certainly going down. Replacements are of an inferior quality. The output of PERSONAL ITEMS such as razor blades, needles, hairpins and similar small articles is rising.

RADIO TUBES are in almost universal use. More are being manufactured than ever before, but civilians will get few of them. Few new radio sets are being made and inventories of prewar models are about exhausted. Housewives are limited in their use of certain ELECTRIC LIGHT BULBS. Essential replacements can be filled but odd shapes and sizes are disappearing. Mechanical REFRIGERATORS are practically off the market. The old-fashioned ice box has come back fast. This is okay if it were not for the uncertainties in the delivery of ice. Laundries are rushed to death. Hence there is an unprecedented demand for WASHING MACHINES. Revival of production for these and refrigerators is doubtful because low-horsepower motors are needed by the military.

LUXURY GOODS are being affected by labor shortages. FUR COATS, however, are plentiful as is also EXPENSIVE JEWELRY. USED AUTOMOBILES are getting scarce. Two-car families should take advantage of the large cash prices that will be paid in many instances sight-unseen for one of their cars. NEW CARS are practically off the market. Manufacturers of HOUSEHOLD SUPPLIES are now setting aside a small percentage of their output for civilian requirements. This in no wise meets the demand. Watches, clocks, plated silverware, lamps, lighting fixtures and similar items are scarce. This also applies to KITCHEN UTENSILS. Glass, aluminum, enamelware and stainless steel items are negligible in the market, but the production of glassware is rising.

This Christmas shopping season finds both merchants and shoppers in peculiar positions. My sympathies lie more with the merchants. They have certainly done a wonderful job. I hope in the end they will not get caught with large inventories of synthetic war-made products. Many consumers will go without while waiting for up-to-date postwar merchandise.

Old Concept of Thrift Retained By Folger, New IBA Head

John Clifford Folger, the new president of the Investment Bankers Association of America, wants to get back to "the old concept" of the dollar: a coin hard to get, hard to keep and, if borrowed, hard to pay back.

"I've worked in the sun all day for a dollar," said the man chosen to head the Nation's largest investment banking group.

Folger, 47, tall and almost lanky, carries with him a country conservatism with an overlay of Washington, D. C., which is headquarters for his firm, Folger, Nolan & Co. He was born in Pullman, Wash. (population about 2500) but came here many years ago.

That probably accounts for his hope that the "good old habit" of thrift will result from current war bond purchases.

He sees in such savings the capital he believes will be needed to finance business reconversion and expansion after the war ends.

Personal Thrift Best

Folger likes to see individual war bond buying—piling up funds against future contingencies, for he disagrees with the idea social security for all is the way to Utopia. He'd rather see individual savings against the future.

"I know for sure my mother and dad, and a lot of others like them, wouldn't take kindly to any such Social Security idea," he says.

"We've got to keep and encourage this war bond thrift habit instead. For instance, in respect to war bonds, keeping them in supporting the Government and preserving individual self-respect.

"And because of that kind of thrift we are building up today a postwar investment era that is going to be the greatest in history.

SEC Called Umpire

"We know new enterprises will be there to absorb the savings, with profit for the lender and the enterpriser."

Asked if postwar expansion might bring questionable securities flotations, Folger declared:

"That's what the Securities and Exchange Commission is for, it's the umpire. Even so, it should draw the line between regulation and harassment."

He suggested simplification of the exchange act and lifting to one million dollars up from the present $100,000 up the size of securities issues coming under SEC jurisdiction.

"I'd rather see a lot of small merchants rather than a few big ones," he said. "That's where this country got its strength, from a spreading of power throughout the Nation.

"And the little fellow with the big ideas needs easier access to the capital markets."

It is up to the investment banker anyway, he said, to be sure the stocks and bonds he sold his customers are of the right caliber.

That touched on one of Folger's pet ideas, home talent in the investment business. While his election puts him at the head of an organization that includes large investment firms with millions in capital and offices in scores of cities, he feels that there has been in the past decade a trend toward home-town ownership of investment banking concerns and he likes it.

"It brings about a closer, more personal relationship," he said, "where the investment banker knows his customer, his wife plays bridge with his customer's wife, and he feels a sense of intimate, personal responsibility in every transaction."

Lawyer Hits Plan to Extend Quezon's Term

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

A Filipino lawyer formerly attached to the office of the Philippine High Commissioner in the United States broke what had been considered a solid front of his nation last night when he issued a statement opposing the Tydings resolution extending the eight-year term of Manuel Quezon as president of the Commonwealth Government of the islands, beyond its legal expiration on November 15.

Vincente Villamin, who identified himself as a "lawyer and economist of California," issued a statement in which he declared that the Tydings measure "nullifies the will of the Filipino electorate," adding a strong note of support for Sergio Osmena, vice president of the islands, for the presidency. The Tydings measure, he said, "Deprives Vice President Osmena of his constitutional right to be president and shatters the legal and moral foundation of Philippine-American relations."

The sponsor of the legislation in question, Senator Millard E. Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, said last night in discussing Mr. Villamin's statement that the measure had the indorsement of Mr. Osmena along with the unanimous support of all the present personnel of the Philippine Government in residence in Washington. Senator Tydings added that the language of the resolution was not precisely what he has in mind, but that it was drawn up in a hurry so it could be introduced and referred to the Committee on Territories and Insular Affairs, of which he is chairman, for action tomorrow.

He was confident that changes in the wording which he will recommend, to cover safeguards of the Philippine constitution, would meet any major objections to the measure as it now stands.

Mr. Villamin, in expressing his opposition, asserted that Vice President Osmena had received more votes than President Quezon in Filipino elections, and is ready with plans "to make Filipino collaboration in the war more substantial."

Allies Didn't Bomb Vatican City, Checkup Shows

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Nov. 7 (AP).—Allied headquarters announced today that thorough investigation showed Vatican City was not bombed by the Allies Friday night.

"While it is manifestly impossible to establish beyond doubt the fall of bombs of aircraft participating in night operations, a thorough investigation of missions carried out during the night of November 5-6 indicates that crews adhered to their definite instructions and did not bomb Vatican City."

The Vatican radio said an unidentified plane flew low over Vatican City and dropped four bombs which did considerable damage but caused no casualties.

District Youth Participates In Rabaul Raid

A Washington youth was the engineer of the first ship to swing into the target area as a large force of American heavy bombers fired fuel dumps, buildings and wharfs of the northwest section of Rabaul Saturday, an AP report from "somewhere in New Guinea" stated yesterday.

"Every bomb landed in the area, and only one of our planes is missing," declared the intelligence officer, who briefed the pilots before the daylight attack. He called the mission "a regular dream job."

Stephen D. Batson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel C. Batson of 1051 Crittenden st. ne., participated in the raid.

More than 80 tons of bombs left the entire area covered by smoke, the report disclosed. One huge fire was followed by an explosion of what was probably an ammunition dump Toboi Wharf. Three other fires were discernible, one covering an area of 300 feet, and explosions were noted in the vicinity of a wireless station.

Batson was born here 24 years ago. Educated in West Palm Beach, Fla., he was employed by the Palm Beach Mercantile Co. before enlisting in the Army Air Corps in December, 1940. His family has just received word that he was awarded the Air Medal for meritorious achievement while participating in flights in the Southwest Pacific. The citation came in August, when he had completed 100 flying hours in that area.

Japs Allocate Two Islands to Puppet Regime

New York, Nov. 7 (AP).—Japan has allocated the Japanese-occupied Andaman and Nicobar islands, in the Bay of Bengal, to Subhas Chandra Bose's puppet "provisional government of Free India," the Tokyo radio said tonight.

The broadcast, recorded by NBC, said the grant was announced by Premier Hideki Tojo at the assembly of "greater East Indian nations" just concluded in the Japanese capital.

Pastor Tells Serviceman's View of Future

The feeling among servicemen is that if democracy is to work at all, it must work for the common good, Dr. Roy A. Burkhart said yesterday at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 9th and Massachusetts ave., nw.

Dr. Burkhart, pastor of the First Community Church of Columbus, Ohio, in a pulpit exchange with Dr. John W. Rustin, Mount Vernon's pastor, described observations gleaned on a preaching mission he is now conducting in Army camps.

Considered Authority

The Ohio clergymen, a nationally-prominent authority on courtship and marriage, said, in part:

"As one talks with the more thoughtful boys, he soon gets this impression—that when the war is over, the soldier will have no say—that the decision will be in the hands of the politicians, the great industrial leaders, who the other time wielded such a mighty stick. So if we want the soldier to have hope and to look out into the future with flaming vision, somehow or other the American people—the industrialist, the labor leader, men in Government and civilian life will have to come to the realization that there are some things far more important than money and dividends and profit.

Freedoms Defined

"And those are the freedom of all people to live and to share in the processes of life and achieve the opportunity to earn their security. And somehow we will have to have our boys—all our young people for that matter—come to believe in the influence of the ballot box and the possibility of having representatives in Washington who truly represent their constituency without being the victims of high-pressure groups. These boys realize, if they think at all, that if democracy is going to work at all in the next 50 years, it will have to work when this war is over, and that it can work only if it works for the common good of all.

"What is the ideal? To be free, free to build the highest ideals of brotherhood into all areas of life; free as I've said so often, to live by the will of God."

Few Turkeys Arriving In Washington

Despite the lifting of the ban on sales of turkeys to civilians, which resulted from the armed forces filling their quotas, few of the birds are arriving in Washington, local dealers said.

However, this is due to lack of a strong demand rather than any shortage, it was said. It is not expected that turkeys will be in real demand until Thanksgiving time.

Raising of ceiling prices on the fowl by the OPA to make cost to civilians commensurate with that paid by the armed forces will make Mr. and Mrs. America pay between 60 and 65 cents a pound for their traditional Thanksgiving turkey.

While the national production of turkeys is reported to be at the all-time high of 485,000,000 pounds, and the armed forces taking 35 million pounds, there still will be left for civilian consumption 450 million pounds.

From turkey producing nearby Maryland comes the report that there are ready for marketing 405,000 birds.

Pulpwood Drive Indorsed by Knox

New York, Nov. 7 (AP).—Navy Secretary Frank Knox yesterday indorsed the 27-state pulpwood cutting campaign sponsored by the Nation's newspapers in an effort to avert any further shortage of paper for essential civilian and military uses.

"Cut a cord of pulpwood for every local boy in service" is the slogan of the intensive drive scheduled November 11 to December 11 under the direction of Walter M. Dear, Chairman of the Newspaper Pulpwood Committee.
